THE FISHERY REGULATIONS

The Saint John Telegraph-Journal, which has all along professed to be a staunch friend of conservation of our fish and game, has suddenly developed a keen interest in the fishermen of the Saint John Harbor and Bay of Fundy who catch salmon by the netting process during spring and summer months. Amended regulations governing the netting of salmon, recently adopted by order-in-council at Ottawa, following a conference of fishery officers and others interested, seem to have aroused the ire of some of those who net salmon in Saint John Harbor and the Bay of Fundy. After expressing the opinion that any regulation of the fishing industry should be made with the sole idea of controlling the operations of fishermen, and should be made with a view of effecting necessary improvement in conditions surrounding the industry, the Telegraph-Journal goes on to say:

"The necessity for altering the open season for salmon in the New Brunswick district, recently announced at Ottawa, is questioned by fishermen along the New Brunswick coast. While formerly the open season was from March 1st, to August 31, the new order curtails it from June 1 to July 31, and it is argued on behalf of the fishermen that this will work a hardship, on them, cutting them off from their operations at the most profitable season. They aver further that there is no necessity for shortening the season as the fish have been steadily increasing from year to year."

If the net fishermen of Saint John Harbor and Bay of Fundy have a cause for complaint against the new regulations it should not be necessary to misrepresent the facts in their behalf and this has been done by the Telegraph-Journal. In the first place the netting season for salmon has not in recent years been from March 31st to August 31st, and it has not been curtailed from June 1st, to July 31st, as our contemporary says. The netting season for some years past started in May and ended on August 15th and under the new regulations it will start on June 1st, and close on August 15th, and not July 31st. The only difference is that netting cannot start quite as early as was formerly the case, but there has been no change in the closing date.

The principal kick from Saint John against the new regulations is that they impose a license of three cents per foot on all nets used for salmon fishing, with a minimum charge of one dollar. This is not a very weighty matter as the price of one or two salmon will pay the cost of a license. Non resident anglers willingly pay as high as twenty five dollars for the privilege of trying to hook a salmon on a fly and in many cases receive no value whatever for their money, because of the fact that too many fish are taken in nets. Net fishermen ought surely be good enough sports to give the anglers a chance, and should not object to the payment of a small license fee for the privilege of catching the greatest food and game fish to be found on this continent. They should also bear in mind that the salmon which they are after, are en route to the spawning grounds at the head of the river and unless some are successful in running the gauntlet of nets the supply will be sure to diminish. It should therefore be a case of live and let live. They should not be overly keen on killing the goose that lays the golden egg. The contention of the Telegraph-Journal that the Federal government cannot legally impose a tax on net fishermen will not be taken seriously. It was done for many years on the Saint John river without any complaint and can be done again. The federal government pays for protecting the salmon on this river and we presume, has a right to compel those who benefit from such protection to contribute to the cost.

The announcement from Montreal that the Canadian railways are to make drastic cuts in fares for week-end trips during the summer months will be well received throughout the country. The cut will apply to all stations and the rate for a trip from Friday until Monday night will be only one and one third of the present single fare. The change will be a whack at the motor busses and will be sure to develop business. Perhaps some day the railways will get back to the special rates for excursion trains that prevailed in pre war days.

"About the time a man of moderate means thinks he can see his way clear to getting a new topcoat and maybe a pair of spats somebody has to go and leave the basement light on all night and part of the next day. And while that is bad enough in all conscience, it's darned sight worse when he remembers that he left it on himself. About two-thirds of a man's grief comes from having nobody to blame it on.
