"I am driving the professor in his automobile," Craig explained. "It occurred to me that if he were going to be long here I should have time to go and order another tire. It is of no consequence, though. I will go down and wait in the car."

Lenora stood at the top of the stairs and watched him disappear. Then she went thoughtfully back to her work.
The professor and Quest were talking at the farther end of the room.

"I was in hopes, in great hopes," the professor admitted, "that you might have heard something. I promised to call at Mrs. Rheinholdt's this afternoon."

Quest shook his head.

"There is nothing to report at present, Mr. Ashleigh," he announced.

"Dear me," the professor murmured.
"This is very disappointing. Is there no clue, Mr. Quest—no clue at all?"

"Not a ghost of one," Quest acknowledged. "I am as far off solving the mystery of the disappearance of your skeleton and Mrs. Rheinholdt's necklace as I have ever been."

The professor took a courteous leave of them all and departed. Lenora crossed the room to where Quest was seated.

"Mr. Quest," she asked, "do you believe in inspiration?"

"I attribute a large amount of my success," Quest replied, "to my profound belief in it."

"Then let me tell you," Lenora continued, "that I have one, and a very strong one. Do you know that when I went to the door a few minutes ago the professor's servant, Craig, was there, listening?"

"Inspector French has had his men watching Craig ever since the night of the robbery," quietly remarked Quest.
"What's that? Answer the telephone, Lenora."

Lenora obeyed.

"It's Inspector French," she announced. "He wants to speak to you."

Quest nodded and held out his hand for the receiver.

"Hello, French!" he exclaimed.

"Anything fresh?"

"Nothing much," was the answer.
"One of my men, though, who has been up Mayton avenue way, brought in something I found rather interesting this morning. I want you to come round and see it."

"Go right ahead and tell me about it," Quest invited.

"You know we've been shadowing Craig," the inspector continued. "Not much luck up till now. Fellow seems never to leave his master's side. We have had a couple of men up there, though, and one of them brought in a curious-looking object he picked up just outside the back of the professor's grounds."

"What is the thing?" Quest asked.

"Well, I want you to see whether you agree with me," French went on.
"If you can't come round, I'll come to you."

"No necessity," Quest replied.
"We've got over little difficulties of that sort. Laura, just tack on the phototelephone," he added, holding the receiver away for a moment. "One moment, French. There that's right," he added, as Laura, with deft fingers arranged what seemed to be a sensitized mirror to the instrument. "Now, French, hold up the article just in front of the receiver. There, that's right. Hold it steady. I've got the focus of it now. Say, French, where did you say that was found?"

"Just outside the professor's back gate," French grunted. "But you're not kidding me—"

"It's a finger from the professor's skeleton you've got there," Quest interrupted.

Quest hung up the receiver. Then he turned toward his two assistants.

"Another finger from the professor's skeleton," he announced, "has been found just outside his grounds.
What do you suppose that means?"

"Craig," Lenora declared confidently.

"Craig on your life," Laura echoed.
"Say, Mr. Quest, I've got an idea."

Quest nodded.

"Go right ahead with it."

"Didn't the butler at Mrs. Rheinholdt's say that Craig belonged to a servant's club up town? I know the place well. Let me go and see if I can't join and pick up a little information about the man. He must have a night out sometimes. Let's find out what he does? How's that?"

"Capital!" Quest agreed. "Get along, Laura. And you, Lenora," he added, "put on your hat. We'll take a ride towards Mayton avenue."

CHAPTER IX.

The exact spot where the bones of the missing skeleton was discovered, was easily located. It was about twenty yards from a gate which led into the back part of the professor's grounds. Quest wasted very little time before arriving at a decision.

"The discovery of the bones so near the professor's home," he declared, "cannot be coincidence only. We will waste no time out here, Lenora.
We will search the grounds. Come on."

It was hard to know which way to turn. Every path was choked with tangled weeds and bushes. They wan-recognizable Creature.

dered about almost aimlessly for nearly half an hour. Then Quest came to a sudden standstill. Lenora gripped his arm. They had both heard the same sound—a queer, crooning cry, half plaintive, half angry.

"What's that?" he exclaimed.

Lenora still clung to his arm.

"I hate this place," she whispered.
"It terrifies me. What are we looking for, Mr. Quest?"

"Can't say that I know exactly," the latter answered, "but I guess we'll find out where that cry came from.
Sounded to me uncommonly like a human effort."

They had made their way up as far as the hedge, which they skirted for a few yards until they found an opening. Then Quest gave vent to a little exclamation. Immediately in front of them was a small hut, built apparently of sticks and bamboos, with a stronger framework behind.
The sloping roof was grass-grown and entwined with rushes. The only apology for a window was a queer little hole set quite close to the roof.

There was a rude-looking door, but Quest, on trying it, found it locked.
They walked around the place, but found no other opening. All the time from inside they could hear queer scuffling sounds. Lenora's cheeks grew paler.

"Must we stay?" she murmured. "I don't think I want to see what's inside. Mr. Quest! Mr. Quest!"

She clung to his arm. They were opposite the little aperture which served as a window, and at that moment it suddenly framed the face of a creature, human in features, diabolical in expression.

"Say, that's some face!" he remarked. "I'd hate to spoil it."

Even as he spoke it disappeared.

WOMAN'S COLUMN

FOR GEM PANS.

When you have greased your gem pans and are filling them, if you have not batter enough for a fill the empty ones with water, put in oven as usual.

This will prevent grease from burning on and discoloring pans.
Also will prevent gems from burning, if oven is hot.

If you will grease your pan well before putting in a roast the roast will not burn and the pan will wash more easily.

RECIPES WORTH TRYING.

Recipe for Oatmeal Cookies—One cup sugar and 2-3 cup butter creamed together, 2 eggs, well beaten, 1/2 teaspoon soda dissolved in 1-3 cup hot water, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 2-3 cup chopped raisins, 2 cups rolled oats, 1/2 teaspoon baking powder and 1-2 teaspoon salt sifted with 2 cups flour. Drop from teassoon on buttered tins.

Pineapple and Orange Marma-lade—Pare 2 large ripe pineapples, then peel and remove core. Peel 6 navel oranges and slice them, also the pineapples allowing 3-4 of a pint of sugar to each pint of fruit.
Put all in a perserving kettle. Let it simmer over a slow fire half to three quarters of an hour; cool and put away in tightly-fitted fruit jars.

English Monkey—A chafing dish rarebit which never disappoints.
Even the most delicate person can eat it without ill effect: One and one half cups bread crumbs 1 1-2 cups milk, 1 1/2 cups cheese, 1 teaspoonful mustard, 1 teaspoonful salt, a dash of cayenne pepper, 1 egg well beaten, butter size of walnut. Mix first six ingredients in chafing dish or double boiler.

When they have cooked to a smooth paste add the well-beaten egg. Lastly add butter. Serve on toasted bread or crackers.
