USUAL WRONG

Certain fallacies have been mentioned so often, talked and written about so freely, that we have come to accept them as truths. Most of us have just naturally believed all our lives that ministers' sons are usually "wild," that brilliant persons are often subject to nervous breakdowns, that beautiful women are likely to be dumb, and that "one man is as good as another." And yet, as the able Dr. Wiggam capably points out, such ideas have been exploded by the facts long ago. Look at your "Who's Who in America" and discover that more sons of preachers are in the volume than sons of men in any other line. From top-level writers up to bankers or vice versa the sons of clergyman pretty much rule the world.

And Dr. Wiggam also relieves us of the idea that the pursued ostrich shoves his head in the sand that you can read a man's character by his face or tell his future by looking at the stars.

One Scoteloman who achieved immortality does not appear to get even honorable mention during St. Andrews day festivities. We have reference to the late Capt. William Kidd, a famous sea rover of two hundred years ago. Capt. Kidd was a native of Greenock, Scotland, and having been sent out by the British Government to round up pirates he found that the business possessed such great possibilities for a frugal Scoteloman that he became one himself. He hid his loot in places where it has never been found and eventually lost his head. A lot of money has been squandered by Scotelmen and others in an effort to locate Capt. Kidd's treasure.

Quebec's population of 2,869,793 divided by sixty five shows that the unit of representation in the next Parliament will be in the vicinity of 45,000. Only one single member constituency in New Brunswick has a population in excess of the unit and that is Westmorland with 57,387. Saint John-Albert, which returns two members has a population of 68,657. Restigouche-Madawaska is next to Westmorland with 42,977 people. Charlotte is now the smallest constituency with a population of 21,364, and is in danger of being wiped out by the redistribution.

Complete census returns show that the population of Canada is now 10,353,778, which is an increase of 1,565,829, in ten years. The increase during the previous decade was 1,581,840 over the census of 1911. This goes to show that the country has had a steady growth of population for the past twenty years. A Conservative government held power at Ottawa during practically the whole of the decade which ended in 1921, while a Liberal administration held office all except one year of the past decade.

The men who served in his majesty's infantry during and just after the war will be interested to know that one of their bet bugbears is likely to disappear. This is the puttee, the strip of cloth which the recruit was expected to wrap round the calves of his legs, in a neat and soldier-like way. And heaven help him if the result didn't come up to the sergeant-major's expectations!

A modern proverb tells us that when things look blue nobody can help the situation by turning yellow. The attitude of indifference that is so easy to assume when one is thrust into the midst of a difficult situation is little different from the futile gesture of the quitter. Too often we are inclined to make no effort to do what we can simply because the task looks hard or the percentage on the winning chance is small.

A man who had been dead for several weeks was named on an election ballot at Richmond, Va., and received 2,730 votes. A certain number of voters always would rather vote for a "safe" candidate than for one too brilliant and aggressive.

True love conquers all—even the revelation that one's secret crush along the Hollywood blonds is wearing a baby bonnet to bed to flatten her ears.

The Kansas Highwaymen who held up a college professor, with the results one would expect, have evidently heard of the virtues of shadow boxing.

Secretary Stimson has a telephone where ten people listen while two talk. It may be a great invention, but we still have it on the rural party line.

Another thing we all know from last year's experience, is that a pretty pleasant November can make a mighty cold finish.

To New Homes

Ten Indian families will move to their newly furnished homes in the Devon Reservation within a few days, according to plans of the Indian Branch of the Dominion Department of the Interior. The work which remains to be completed on the buildings is only that of painting the interiors. Next year accommodations for the 15 families remaining will be provided.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? WORRY, SAYS PROF.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Dec. 1—University of Alabama professors are answering the old query, "What's in a name?" with a retort these days of "Plenty of worry."

In one freshman class John James, Buffalo, N. Y., and James John, son of John John, West Chester, Pa., occupy seats near each other. Across the aisle are Jacob Jacobs, Mobile, Ala., and Roger Rogers, Morris, N. Y. But patience reached its limit when three Bernard Cohens signed up for the same course. The professors solved that problem by placing the Cohens on different schedules.

SAYS WHEAT WILL LEAD THE WAY OUT

Montreal, Quebec, Nov. 30—Just as wheat led the way into the depression so it would lead the way out, Premier J. E. Brownlee, of Alberta, told the Canadian Club of Montreal today. He was decidedly optimistic over conditions in the West, although not discounting the seriousness of certain troubles.

Some balance must be struck between the market needs of the West and the protection needs of the East, the Alberta, Premier said. The better thinking people of Western Canada, he said, were prepared to discuss the matter of tariffs with the financial and merchantile interest.

It might have no significance but he had seen more pessimism in two days in the East than he had seen in the West since the depression started. That was perhaps due to the fact that in the West the people did not come into such close contact with international movements as the people in the East.

Love and seasickness may be felt, but they can't be described.

PREDICTS HUMANS WILL HAVE PUG-LIKE FACES

London, Dec. 1—Curious facts about the nose were revealed by Harold S. Barwell, a specialist, at the Institute of Hygiene.

For instance; Nearly a quart of water is supplied by the nose in 24 hours in moistening the air we breathe; the nose warms and moistens at least 10,000 liters of air in the 24 hours, and frees it of some 30,000.

Barwell thinks that puglike faces will be prevalent among human beings in a few hundred years.

When married life gets to be so very different from the courtship, it's pretty sure to end up at the Court-house.
