Suffered No End of Pain FROM BACKACHES.

If a pain attacks you in the back you should stop and think what it is and what causes it.

If the kidneys are at fault—and in nine cases out of every ten they are—you should attend to them at once, as it is impossible to have a well, strong back unless the kidneys are performing their functions in a proper manner.

Anyone with a bad back should appreciate how to get a good one. It is a very simple matter. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They regulate the kidneys, and there is no further excuse for any kidney trouble to exist.

Mrs. E. J. Graves, Oshawa, Ont., writes: "My complaint lies with my kidneys. I have suffered no end of pain with them, and with backaches. I had tried everything, so I thought, until a friend advised me to try a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. I did try them, and one box helped me fine, so I got another, and now feel that I cannot recommend them too highly to anyone suffering with kidney trouble."

Doan's Kidney Pills are the original kidney pills. Do not accept any substitutes put up under similar names.
Always see that our trade mark "The Maple Leaf" appears on the label and wrapper.

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T.
Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The cause of this exclamation was a violent ringing of the apartment door-bell—a persistent, telegraphic summons of long and short dashes that shrilled and whirled and buzzed without pause.

"Isn't that your door-bell?" asked Laura anxiously.

"I should say it was! Tom, go to the door! Why, it sounds like a mad man."

They turned from the window and followed Tom expectantly with their eyes.

"It must be Jack," observed Laura smiling. "He feels that way."

But it was not Jack. When Tom opened the door, a tall, slim, much excited individual, with his hat hanging at the back of his head, strode into the apartment. Townsend gazed at him for a moment in silent wonder and then recognized him as a man he had known slightly for some time, "Talcott!" he cried.

"Ah, Townsend, I am glad I find you in!" exclaimed the intruder.

Then, turning to Tom, he shouted "Don't shut that door!"

"What the deuce is the matter?" demanded Townsend sharply.

"There's a woman coming up."

"A what?"

"A woman."

"Confound it, I can't receive any of your friends today! What do you mean?"

"She's not a friend. You must let her in. She—"

"But, you infernal idiot, I tell you I won't! I'm busy."

"But you must, old chap. She has n't any clothes on."

"What!" shrieked Townsend.

Laura rose quickly from her chair and stared appealingly at Townsend, who was wondering what he should do with this crazy fellow. But the latter stood unabashed.

"I tell you she hasn't any clothes on," he repeated.

Then, turning toward the door, he called to some one still outside, "Right this way!" and immediately there appeared upon the threshold a tall, brawny, helmeted fireman, bearing in his arms what appeared to be a limp bundle wrapped in a rough blanket, from out of the lower portion of which protruded two small, bare, pink feet.

"For Heaven's sake, what's this?"
cried Townsend aghast.

"It's a woman," vouchsafed the fireman stolidly.

"You shouldn't mind, old man," began Talcott in explanation. "They are taking them into all the houses.
Rescued from the fire, you know."

"Where'll I drop her?" interrupted the fireman.

"Don't drop her!" cried Laura, cagerly rushing forward.

"Here, take her into my bedroom!" suggested Townsend, coming to his senses. "Laura, please see what you can do," and, opening the door that led to his chamber, he motioned to the burdened fireman to follow Miss Leslie, now all absorbed in the woes of the unfortunate member of her own sex.

Townsend turned and glared at his over-enthusiastic and misguided acquaintance.

"You jackass!" he snarled.

"I didn't think you'd mind," ventured the other meekly.

"Mind!" growled Townsend. "Do you take my apartment for a hospital?"

"I knew you lived here, and I thought you'd be glad to be of assistance. Of course if you're not, I'm sorry. I hope you'll pardon me. I'll go back now and see if I can help any one else."

"Don't you help any one else up here, or I'll brain you with a chair."

But Talcott was out of earshot before this fierce threat was hurled after him.

Townsend turned toward the bedroom and was met by the fireman coming out.

"Well," Townsend asked.

"I guess she ain't hurt," said the man, grinning.

"That's good," Townsend replied sympathetically.

"Just scared. You can't blame a woman for being scared when she's yanked out of a Turkish bath without a rag to her back."

"Eh?"

"Sure, not a rag! I borrowed the blanket off'n an ambulance horse. I guess your lady friend'll look after her, and she'll come round all right."

With which cheerful assurance, the fireman nodded pleasantly and stamped out of the room.

Meanwhile Laura was not having such a disastrous time as she had anticipated with the unfortunate young woman of the horse-blanket.
That lady was in no way burned or injured. Her emotions seemed to arise chiefly out of a realization of her lack of wearing apparel.

"What on earth am I to do?" she inquired piteously, after Laura had tucked her snugly into Townsend's bed. "Everything around here looks so dreadfully masculine. Do—do you —I beg your pardon—but do you live here?"

"No, I'm only lunching here," answered Laura cheerily. "But we'll fix you up some way. Perhaps Mr. Townsend has a bath-robe, or something that will do temporarily. And oh," she cried gleefully, remembering her morning's purchases, "I have a few things myself. Just wait a moment, and I will get them for you."

With a reassuring glance at the prisoner of circumstances, she hurried back into Townsend's study, where he found that melancholy young gentleman preparing a hot toddy.

"For our guest," he explained, with some pride. "She must need a bracer."

"But not a hot toddy, you imbe-cile! The poor girl does not want anything hot. Don't you realize that she is just out of a fire and a Turkish bath?"

Laura then turned to her parcels.

COOKING IN CASSEROLES.

Why is this cooking in casserole, or in earthenware, so popular in France? Because in no other way is it possible to obtain such delicious flavors.

There are three things to remember in casserole cooking: First the food must be entirely prepared before the baking is begun; second, the oven should only be moderately hot at first, then reduced to slow heat; third, the food should not be allowed to boil and must be given time enough for long cooking.

A meat casserole of any kind needs at least an hour and a half to cook, while many meats, fruit and desserts require from three hours upward. In the old French ovens covered crocks containing beans, or apples, or fruits, for the cooked compute so beloved by them, were put in the oven at night to cook slowly until the next morning. This was a part of the frugality, the putting to account every bit of meat, which is still the habit of all French housewives.

For the best results, or I may say the most striking results, get a cheap cut of meat, which is not liable to be tender, and see what a transformation will be worked by the casserole cooking. Cut the meat in pieces suitable for serving, and add some thickening agent which will absorb the excess moisture, leaving the food just moist enough to be served attractively.

Rice is good with game, chicken, lamb and veal; dried bread crumbs with pork; macaroni and pearl barley with beef. Sometimes with chicken or tender fish potatoes may be used, but never when long cooking is required, for they cook to a mush.

HELP FOR MRS. NEWLYWED

"How may I get this mildew off this linen dress? I shall want to wear it soon," said Mrs. Newlywed.

Soap the spots while wet, sprinkling on them fine chalk scraped to a powder and rubbing it well in," advised Mrs. Neighbor. "Or you can soak it in buttermilk and sprea it in the sun."

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN.

Three thousand women are employed in British coal mines.

Women auto drivers have less accidents than men chauffeurs.

In Ukraine, Russia, the woman always makes the proposal of marriage.

Thirty-three American nurses are now at the front with the British.

The Queen of Norway is known to all her relatives by the pet name of "Harry."

Lady Eva Dugdale is the most smartly attired of Queen Mary's ladies-inwaiting.

Indian girls educated at the Government schools are peculiarly adapted to nursing.

Wisconsin University co-eds are limited to one dance and one pound of candy a week.

A certain percentage of women have always been employed in the armament plants in England.

DON'T YOU THINK

the advice of a hundred people who have been cured of skin diseases is worth following? Then try Zam-Buk! Profit by their experience and try Zam-Buk first!
It is only because Zam-Buk is so much better than other preparations that Zam-Buk enjoys so much wider use.

Don't you think it logical that a remedy which is purely herbal would be better than any compound of harsh minerals which irritate or parch the skin; or of coarse animal fats that clog the tiny pores? Zam-Buk is free from animal fat or mineral poison. It is composed of rich, healing herbal essences that stimulate and heal diseased tissues. Suitable for babies as well as adults.

Zam-Buk cures eczema, piles, ulcers, cuts, burns, chapped hands, cold sores, abscesses, varicose sores, and other skin diseases and injuries.

All druggists, or Zam-Buk Co., for $1.25.
