THE IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT WHICH WAS OPENED TODAY IS CONFRONTED BY BIG PROBLEMS

London, Nov. 21—The second session of the eighth Parliament of the United Kingdom will be opened tomorrow by His Majesty King George, and will be faced almost at once by such weighty problems as war debts, unemployment, reorganization of the agricultural industry, the tariff war with the Irish Free State and a new constitution for India.

In consideration of the immediate problems connected with war debts, Parliament itself have little to say. It may discuss the question in either the House of Comons or the House of Lords, but whatever action is taken will rest entirely with the Government.

That action, it appeared tonight, would be to raise $95,550,000 to meet the Dec. 15 payment to the United States. The prospect of the United States declaring postponement of the payment appeared unilkely in the light of Washington despatche sreceived here.

Interest Keen

Nevertheless, observers looked with keen interest to tomorrow's Washington conference between President Herbert Hoover, President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, and leading members of their parties in the hope they might reach a last-minute decision to accept the British proposals for a re-examination of war debts.

Possibility that the United Kingdom might default payment appeared not to have been entertained for a moment in any circles, although there is no provision in the current budget for the remittance.

It was felt, however, that tne government would meet the payment if necessary through a supplementary budget, a special loan or by drawing on the gold supply it has been accumulating during the last few months.

Other problems facing Parliament and the treatment they are likely to receive from the government, will be indicated in brief outline by the speech from the throne tomorrow.

Whatever schemes the government may decide on to solve the many questions confronting it will almost certainly be carried out. The government counts on support of 553 members of the House of Commons out of a total of 615 and its defeat would be impossible unless a huge proportion of its supporters should bolt to the opposition.

Unemployment

I nits dealings wkith the unemployment problems, the government will seek among other things to reorganize the administration of the "dole," non-contributory relief, in such a way as to make the dole fund solvent. It will work in the light of voluminous report presented a short time ago by the Royal Commission on Unemployment Insurance.

Its efforts to reduce the number be linked to a certain extent with problems surrounding agriculture. Late last session, when the House of Commons formed a sort of national committee on unemployment, several members, including the veteran Liberal statesman, David Lloyd George, expressed the opinion Britain would never get rid of unemployment without a vigorous back-to-the-land movement which would send at least 1,000,000 men to work on the soil or in industries supplementary to farming.

What steps, if any, the government will take to settle the dispute with the Irish Free State over non-payment of land anuities due the Bank of England, remain to be seen.

The dispute has resulted in erection of tariff walls about both countries which have about killed their trade with one another. The British government has indicated its willingness to end the disputat any time the Free State shows a willingness to meet its demands. The Free State however has shown no such willingness, although there have been numerous expressions of popular feeling in various parts of the country to indicate the Irish people themselves would welcome a settlement on the terms laid down.

The new constitution for India now being worked out by the third Indian round table conference will not commence before Parliament until Christmas time or later. Whatever the conference decided, however, cannot become effective without enabling legislation passed through the usual stages of parliamentary procedure.

City Will Do $4,000 Relief Job for Jobless

tric Power Commission system from Minto to Newcastle is carried out, that the unemployed of this city be given jobs clearing the right of way. Ald. George W. Brown and Ald. G. Hedley Forbes, were appointed a committee to wait upon the premier.

Well Attended

Fredericton City may have a new trousers manufacturing plant in future, the meeting disclosed. A communication was received from such a firm in Bangor, Maine. It was decided by the council to grant the firm exemption of taxes, for a period of five years if it locates in this city and employs thirty persons. Pueblo, Colorado, Nov. 22—A cold, and not liquor, caused him to act a bit unusual, Claude Young testified in police court in answer to drunkenness charges. Night Schools in the Province Are Fewer Edmundston this year but those in St. John, Moncton and Fredericton are to continue.

In the latter three, the number of classes have been reduced but those remaining are larger and better organized. In Saint oJhn there is twenty five night classes including chemistry, pharmacy, woodworking, dafting, mechanics and geneal education. The latter includes a class in which students can receive in five years the equivalent of a high school education. Another innovation is a class in the field of radio which has gained much popularity.

The Moncton night school has four classes, two in general education and two in dress making. The Fredericton school has eleven classes including shorthand, typing, mechanics, woodworking, handcraft, drafting and French.

Hopes are held that the Dominion grant will be resumed and that vocational education improvement will continue. At present the municipalities are bearing part of the burden of decreased finances.

"EVERYONE LIKES THE IRISH" SAYS PRINCE OF WALES

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Nov. 19—"Everyone who knows Irishmen likes them," the Prince of Wales said in a farewell speech to Ireland last night, just before he boarded a special train to catch a channel boat back to England.

The Prince said he liked Irishmen, "for we have many tastes in common. They like a joke and are always ready for a bit of fun."

"Your attachment to the throne," he continued, "is proverbial, and I am delighted to have had this opportunity of seeing it for myself on your own soil."

The Prince's desire to see for himself provided some work for the authorities charged with escorting him during his three-day visit here for the purpose of opening the new Northern Ireland Parliament buildings. The Prince evaded his escort whenever possible.

Cheered by Thousands

He was cheered by thousands of persons as his special train pulled out.

Earlier yesterday the heir to the throne was almost mobbed by a crowd of gay working girls at Barbour's linen thread works in Lisburn. The girls clung to the mudguards of his automobile and jumped on the running boards. The Prince smiled throughout the demonstration.
