DEADLY LEVEL CROSSINGS

T. P. Regan, of Saint John, president of the New Brunswick Automobile Association, makes the suggestion that every automobile should be compelled to come to a dead stop at all level railway crossings. The suggestion is a good one, and should be carried out at least so far as level crossings on the main lines of railways are concerned. There are other cases, however, where it might cause considerable inconvenience. For instance between St. Leonard and Edmundston, on a main trunk highway, there are no less than twenty three level crossings within a distance of twenty six miles with very few trains and motorists would do some gumbling if compelled to stop at all of them. With respect to main line crossings between Saint John and McAdam and Saint John and Moncton motorists should stop in the interests of their own safety. Near McGivney Junction on the Fredericton-Chatham highway there is a dangerous N. T. R. crossing which no motorist should pass without coming to a full stop. This crossing is much worse than the one near River Glade, on the main line of the C. N. R., where two young people belonging to St. John, met a horrible death a few days ago. A representative of the Mail passed over the this crossing a short time after the accident occurred and naturally wondered why the driver of the car had not seen the train approaching, as there is a clear space of fully two hundred yards on either side. Of course the train was coming straight on and travelling at a high rate of speed, and the occupants of the car must have seen it, but probably thought that they could get over ahead of it. This error of judgment cost them their lives. The car was struck squarely in the centre by the locomotive and carried on the cow catcher a distance of one thousand yards before the big train could be stopped. It was one of the most distressing accidents of the kind on the history of the province. The young woman who was driving, was killed instantly and the young man was breathing his last when taken from what remained of the car. Fortunately accidents such as this are rare in New Brunswick, but steps should be taken to eliminate them altogether.

PARADE OF THE WEEKS

A highly regarded contributor of ours wants us to "work for" and "write for" a "Better Apple Pie Week." He says that because every week in the previous year was spoken for and appropriated is no reason that that same week should be calmed by the same propagandists every year. The New Year wipes the slate clean and it is a ree-for-all for any clan or cult to jump in and seize whatever week it can. If "Better Apple Pie" can "scrounge out" Rheumatism Week or Canary Bird Week, it has that privilege. While we sympathize with our contributor in his efforts toward better apple pie, we are not altogether willing to descend into the heat and dust of the arena and dispossess weeks that feel that they are entitled to the same place in the calendar they had last year. We have a hesitancy in rejecting any week that has fought, bled and died for its location; and we hate to think of Rheumatism or Canary Birds wandering about weekless and heart-broken. Why can't propaganda that is scheduled under the same general classification share the same week? May not Better Apple Pie Week and Prune Week be bracketed? All devotees of prunes can offer their rousing cheers for their favorite alternately with the cheering for better apple pies. There are only fifty-two weeks in the year and there will have to be a sentiment in favor of live and let live, if justice is to be done.

There were three more tourist cars according to official count, entered the province of Nova Scotia via the New Brunswick border during July of this year than during July of last year, stated J. T. Rudderham, of the Nova Scotia Relief Map Directory in speaking to the Truro News. The cars, said Mr. Rudderham, were genuine tourist cars not laundry cars, baseball teams, nor cars running back and forth between Sackville and Amherst, but cars of people on tour. The hour and methods of checking cars at the Government Information Bureau, he said, were the same as those of last year.
