THAT BOND ISSUE

The Saint John Telegraph-Journal commenting editorially on the recent issue of $1,850,000 of five per cent provincial bonds, either intentionally or through misapprehension, seeks to convey the impression that the proceeds of the issue is intended for "new works." Our Saint John contemporary as is usual when it undertakes the discussion provincial finances has shot wide of the mark. In order to set it right we wish to point out that the proceeds of the recent bond issue are to be used for retiring treasury bills held by the banks for obligations mostly incurred during the previous year for the completion of necessary road contracts, urgent public works, the construction of the Minto power plant and the extension of transmission lines in rural districts; and further it might be stated that the expenditure for the present year, provided for by Act of Assembly, session of 1932, are for such public works as the Queenstown-Otnabog highway, strongly advocated by the Telegraph-Journal, the Campbellton-St. Leonard highway and for some new undertakings carried on for the relief of unemployment. The bond issue practically completes the desired funding of obligations held by the banks for capital expenditure, and contrary to the view expressed by our Saint John contemporary, does not reveal anything like a serious or alarming situation. The disposal of a block of provincial five per cent bonds this week at 97.70, when other provinces are selling six per cent bonds at par, should convince "business men, bankers, business organizations and economists," that New Brunswick is in a sound financial position, notwithstanding the gloomy forbodings of the self-styled independent press.

WORTH THINKING ABOUT

What Edson R. Waite, who writes "Did You Ever Stop to Think?", from Oklahoma, says is worth consideration. He says:

Money spent at home helps to build the home city, while money spent away from home helps to build some other city. Build the home city first!

Citizens who make use of the public benefits or the city should help to make it possible to increase municipal improvements by improving business.

The home merchants handle standard goods of the highest quality at the lowest prices. Why buy elsewhere?

You can inspect the goods before buying and can buy in large or small quantities. If not as represented, local dealers will make quick and satisfactory adjustments.

When all the home people trade in the home city they enable the home city to have a steady growth. As business grows so will a city grow.

Money circulating in the home city means prosperity, as the money spent at home stays in the community and contributes to the betterment of the whole town and pays actual dividends in its development.

It is a plain duty to yourself, to your family, and to your city to trade at home.

At Windsor, N. S., yesterday, Sydney A. Rafuse, a former bank manager was found guilty of conspiring and attempting to rob a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada at Shubenacadie, N. S. He was remanded to jail until Saturday to await senence. The case has many peculiar features and has aroused much interest throughout the country. Rafuse belongs to a good family and the fact that he is a former bank manager shows that he at one time stood well in his native province. The lesson to be drawn from his case, is that "Crime does not pay."

One must take into consideration diversity of viewpoints especially in the case of the little boy who maintained to his mamma that his neck was not dirtier than usual. He said this appeared so because of his wearing a clean collar.

It it stated that in spite of all the humor and sarcasm we have leveled at spinach, the consumption of that vegetable has doubled in the last 10 years. Like truth, spinach, crushed to earth will rise again—with more sand in it.

Numerous sympathetic articles have pointed out the plight of the college graduate of 1932. On the one hand, he is unable to find a job selling bonds, and on the other, he is no longer eligible to sell magazines.

An interior province in Australia is reported overrun with mice. Authorities, we hear, are to comb the woods for that manufacturer of superior traps.

Elizabeth Jordan, a speech authority, takesc American actors to task for gargling their lines. As far as that goes, some of the lines nowadays are no antiseptics.

It would be hard to convince an astronomer who journeys 6,000 miles to at an eclipse that every cloud has a silver lining.

We're of the type of cowardly gardener who goes in exclusively for asters, zinnias, etc., so as to get away from pronouncing Gladiolus.

By setting out on the motor trip at 2 p.m. Sunday one skilfully avoids all those who set out early in the day to avoid the later starters.

Once a golfer came within a yard of the cup with his tee shot on a short hole, and failed to exclaim "Missed it, by gosh!" This is a lie.

There is no weather at all, 10 miles above the earth, says Prof. Piccard, who may however merely be deceived by the absent of chatty strangers.

Famous last words: "On the level, Jimmy, what do you hear from this former bookkeeper of yours—Sherwood?"

A free country is one in which the citizen is privileged to "cuss" the government—and they remain at home on election day.

If it were true that eyebrows reveal a woman's age the fair sex would long ago have devised veils for them.

GEOLOGISTS OFFER THEORY OF AXIS SHIFT

London, Sept. 21— Chinese Geologists who have been studying a series of rocks laid down between 1,000,000 and 10,000,000 years ago in what is now the Chinese Province of Shansi have decided that the axis on which the earth now revolves really has shifted slowly during this period. This is a favorite idea among writers of fiction but one not usually accepted by geologists.

This shift also would explain, the Chinese experts beileve, the glacial periods, so many traces of which are found in North America and in Europe.

The rocks studied in China contain, Prof. Davidson Black, a European gealogists long resident in that country, explains, signs of radical changes of climate between cold and warm, just as do the rocks formed during the glacial periods in other continents.

These signs of cold and warm periods in China come, however, in a different order and at different times than elsewhere; facts which can not be correlated with the similar data from Europe and North America except by assuming that the cilmates of all the continents were changed at the time time, but in different directions, much as would happen if the earth's poles wobbled one way or another over the planet's surface from age to age like the axis of a base ball that spins irregularly.

By careful study of such signs of past climatic change in all the continents, it may be possible, the Chinese geologists hope, to trace these past shifts of the North and South Poles precisely and perhaps to predict whether all these wanderings are over or whether mankind is doomed to further shifts which might bring the climate of the North Pole to New York or that of the Sahara Desert to Chicago.

LNST RING, FOUND

Elkader, Iowa, Sept. 22—Mrs. Williamm A. Baars, lost a gold ring in 1909. While walking across a ditch on her farm a few days ago, she spied a shining piece of metal. It was her ring—still untarnished.

Keeping up with the agricultural situation, the Cleveland Plain Dealer observes that right on the heels of the advance in hog prices comes increased activity in the pig iron market.
