NO OPIATES IN
Nyal's Baby
Cough Syrup
Very few Cough Remedies that are useful for Adults are safe to give to babies. It is dangerous to experiment. Nyal's Baby Cough Syrup contains neither Opium, Morphine or other dangerous opiates. It is especially designed for Babies and just suits them. It is made so pleasant they like it, but it does help baby to throw off the choking secretions. It loosens the cough quickly and gives the child normal rest.
A good safe cough remedy for larger children.
Sells at a quarter a bottle.

MY TERRIBLE HACKING AND SPITTING COUGH WAS ENTIRELY CURED BY DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP.

Mrs. Clara Jackson, Huntsville, Ont., writes us under date of January 12th, 1915. "I take great pleasure in writing you concerning Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Last winter I contracted a very bad cough which troubled me all through the summer. This winter I started to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after taking three bottles I can truthfully say that I felt like another woman.
The terrible hacking and spitting cough, and the dry sensation in my throat is entirely cured. I would certainly recommend it to anyone troubled with bronchitis or lung trouble. I have not words too grateful to give you." All obstinate coughs and colds yield quickly to the action of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, combining as it does all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree, and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs, roots and barks.
Dr. Wood's has been on the market for the past twenty-five years, and we claim that it is the best cure for a cough or cold that you can possibly procure.
The thousands of testimonials we have received prove that our claim is right.
All we ask you to see that you get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it, and don't accept some no-account substitute.
Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price, 25c and 50c.

A Romance of Monte Carlo

"There you are!" he said. "The author speaks out. I believe if an author were being tortured to death by red Indians, his last words would be, 'What an advertisement this will make for my last book!'" "And why shouldn't he? It only proves that he thinks more of his work than of himself. Shows his sense, too. There's nothing in the world living for but just one's own work. It's the thing I'm going to live for in future."
The warmth of the fire, her tiredness and the soporific mountain air were having their effects. She saw Carslake getting up to put more sticks on the fire, then he seemed to grow immensely in height and then to dwindle to nothingness. Then she was talking to Jack on the Carino steps and Mrs. Freke was coming out of the building with a bundle of bank notes in her hand, dressed in a hop-back skirt and a beehive bonnet; then even dreamland vanished with all its fantastic people chloroformed out of existence by the mountain air.

Julia was awakened by Carslake's voice.
"It's time for us to go," he said.
"The sun is not over the hills yet, but it will be very soon and those workmen may be here at any minute now."

She rose in a panic and put on her hat.
"What time is it?" she asked, as he drove the pins through.

"I don't know—my watch has stopped. Fortunately, I woke up in time, though. Are you ready? That's right."

They came out into the fresh, sharp morning air.

The sun had risen over Italy and was striking the seraphic blue of the early morning sea. The snow-clad Alps far inland were all flushed and rosy and golden in the level light.
Only the club-house and the golfcourse were still in shadow.

They found the road without getting any one and began the descent to La Turbie.

Half way down they were passed by a motor lorry filled with workmen.
They were the workmen ascending to club-house.

"They'll never suspect us," said Carslake. "We look too respectable!"
"Do we?" replied Julia. "I don't feel it. I feel grubby and I'm sure my face is black and I don't know in the least if my hat's on back to front or not."

However, it's all in the morning's work. I say—"
"Yes?"

"How about going back to the hotel? Hadn't we better go separately?"

Carslake laughed.
"I don't see the good, so far as the hotel people go, simply because—because—"

"I know—they'll know we were both out last night. Were people ever put in such a position before? We can't tell them about the fog, for if we did we'd have to tell about the club-house and then there's the possibility that they might talk and we'd be had up and the thing would get in the papers. I could tell the landlady that I stayed in Monte Carlo with Mrs.
Freke—Mrs. Freke would never know.
But explanations are abominable, and no one ever believes them."

"Bother explanations!" said he.
"We'll face it out. No, better still we won't. I won't go to the hotel at all. I'll go right down to Monte Carlo and won't turn up at hotel till later on. You go to the hotel and when you arrive, should you see any one, simply say you stayed last night with some friends. I don't come into it at all."

"Ah," said Julia, "that's better; but it seems a shame that all this bother should fall on you. You must be longing to get back to your room and a bath and now you have to go to Monte Carlo. What will you do there?"

"I'll be all right. They know me at the Hotel de Paris. You need not worry about me."

"Well, I'll never forget it."

"Neither shall I."

"I meant the kindness of your thought. Most men don't think for other people like that."

They passed down the zigzag road, now bright with sunshine, till they reached the Route Nationale and the road that led downwards to Monte Carlo. Here they parted and Julia took her way to the hotel.

She had not gone far when she saw a figure walking in the same direction and only a couple of hundred yards ahead. It was Jack.

She quickened her pace almost to a run. She was anxious to get the interview over and done with; she firmly believed that Jack had been out hunting for her and was now returning to the hotel after his fruitless quest.

Then, as she drew nearer, some instinct told her that Jack had not been hunting her, that he had been out all night and was only now returning from Monte Carlo. There was a hang-dog look about the unfortunate Jack to her eyes, his hat was tipped on the back of his head and he walked in a spiritless manner—almost slumped. He was wearing, too, the light overcoat which he always wore over evening clothes.

"Jack!"

She was only a few yards from him when she called and he turned. He looked weary and worn; yes, he was in evening clothes still and his tie was crumpled and there was a wine spot on his shirt front.

"Jack," cried Julia, "where have you been?"

"Down in Monte," replied he.
"Couldn't get back in time. What are you doing out at this hour?"

"I came out to look for you."

-Woman's Column-

DAINTY FIVE O'CLOCK TEA.

Light luncheons are far more prevalent nowadays than the heavy noonday meal of former years. The up-to-date woman is much too afraid of too solid flesh to indulge in three big meals a day. So that an orange, a cup of coffee and toast for breakfast and a salad and a cold broth for lunch are considered quite sufficient by the average woman for the first two meals of the day.

But then by 5 o'clock she is quite famished, especially if she has been out shopping or walking, and the cup of tea and a sandwich are just enough to revive her spirits and to keep her from a feeling of real hunger, so that little by little the tea service has become a regular custom in many families.

Now, the hostess who has never bothered her head about the appointments for tea service is beginning to wonder just what is the correct way to serve tea informally. She really must learn, for everyone else is doing it.

To set the tea wagon, put on the top cups and saucers, sugar, cream, lemon, teaspoons, forks, etc., and on the lower shelf put the cakes and the sandwiches or whatever you are serving to eat with tea. There should be a cup or two extra placed on the tray in case additional guests should arrive during the course of the serving.

Bread and butter plates with tea napkins should be passed to each guest. If there are any soft cakes, forks should be passed with them, but cookies, sandwiches, etc., are eaten with the fingers. The maid sets the tea wagon in the kitchen and rolls it in to her mistress to serve, rolling it out again when all the guests are quite finished.

GOSSIP FOR HOUSEWIVES.

To keep your linen a good color, drop a few pieces of camphor gum into the drawer in which it is kept.

To keep lemons in a fresh condition place them on paper on a shelf, with a tumbler turned over each one.

If the goldfish bowl has been allowed to freeze, do not thaw it out rapidly, and no harm will be done.

Glassware should always be washed in a wooden bowl, and there will be far less chance of its getting broken.

Do not dry a silk garment after washing, but roll it up in a clean white cloth for about an hour and iron while damp.

Even such juicy pies as rhubarb will not run over if the lower crust is picked lightly with a fork in several places before putting in filling and top crust.

The wrapping papers from bakers' breads are excellent to wrap school lunches, also cake and other food you wish to keep from drying out.

MODERN MAID'S MUSINGS.

Molly is a cynic, Molly is a flirt,

Molly wears a "chin-chin" and abbreviated skirt.

When she looks demurely down—gracious, but she's shy!

Think that you are fooling her? Well, just try!

Molly trots delightfully, Molly's learned to skate,

Molly'd rather die than be a minute out of date.

Tender little debutante, with the drooping eye—
What does Molly know of life?—Oh, My!

And now that the open season for Leap Year proposals is on, it is the problem of a girl's young life to discover how to ask a man to marry her so that he won't know it until after the honeymoon is over.

Love opens a woman's eyes so that it is impossible for a man to deceive her, and closes a man's so that he insists on deceiving himself even when the woman doesn't try.

It would require the digestion of an ostrich to swallow all the sugary compliments with which a man regales a woman after dinner before marriage, and all the vinegary truths with which he feeds her after marriage before breakfast.

Beauty may make a woman fascinating and brains may make her interesting, but in the long run it is character that wins and holds a man's love —and neither a snub nose nor two negatives can kill it.

MOTOR BOAT MEN

ASK FOR A CHANCE
Ottawa, Jan. 24.—Many applications are being received at the Naval Service Department from Montreal, Toronto, Kingston, Ottawa, St. John, Halifax and other points, from motor boat men who wish to join the auxiliary patrol service of the British Admiralty. An announcement was made last week of a stated number being required. Regular forms are being sent to applicants to fill in and these will be submitted to the British naval officer who is coming out to deal with the applications.

COULD NOT BEND DOWN

COULD NOT WALK STRAIGHT BACK WAS SO BAD.

The bad back comes from the kidneys, and unless the kidneys are carefully watched and properly regulated many serious troubles may follow.

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure all forms of kidney trouble, and cure the kidneys so that they will stay cured.

Mr. J. A. Lubiniecki, Dauphin, Man., writes: "It is my pleasure to write you in regard to Doan's Kidney Pills which I have been using for some time for kidney trouble, which used to affect my back so that at times I could not bend down nor could I walk straight. I learned about your pills from your almanac, and I bless the happy hour I thought of buying this medicine. One time a druggist persuaded me to buy Doan's Kidney Pills, saying they were just as good, in fact he guaranteed they were.
I yielded to his advice, and what was the result? I had been down pains in my back for two days, so I took the balance of the pills unused to the druggist and told him to give me Doan's Kidney Pills as they would stop the pain in twelve hours at the outside. He told me he was sorry I did not use more of the pills, and lengthen the time to await results. I told him there was no need of waiting with Doan's Pills; they got right to the spot. No substitute for me."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; See that our trade mark, "The Maple Leaf," is printed on both the label and wrapper.
