TEN PREMIERS
WILL BE HEARD
THIS EVENING

Radio listeners will have a unique opportunity of hearing the leaders in Canadian political life this evening at 10 P. M., Atlantic Standard Time, when the Prime Minister, the Minister of Finance and the premiers of the nine provinces will be heard on a coast-to-coast hook-up. Each premier will speak from his own province. Right Honourable R. B. Bennett and Hon. E. N. Rhodes will open the broadcast speaking from Ottawa.

The brief addresses will have a bearing on the new government loan which was offered today. The premiers who will be heard are as follows:—

Hon. James D. Stewart, P. E. I.
Col. The Hon. G. S. Harrington, Nova Scotia.
Hon. Charles D. Richards, New Brunswick.
Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Quebec.
Hon. George S. Henry, Ontario.
Hon. John Bracken, Manitoba.
Hon. J. T. M. Anderson, Saskatchewan.
Hon. J. E. Brownlee, Alberta.
Hon. S. F. Tolmie, British Columbia.

Mysterious and hotly pursued craft, say the wise ones, are constantly throwing valuable cargoes overboard at no great distance from the shore, and the rolling waves and the creeping tides often push small sack-wrapped bits or these cargoes close enough in to be reached by a far flung hook. A good stout line and a strong arm do the

MR. HOOVER WAS GREETED AT
INDIANAPOLISPresident Says Governor
Roosevelt Made a Change of Base on His Tariff Policy.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 28—President Herbert Hoover tonight declared that Franklin D. Roosevelt had directly reversed himself upon the question of agricultural tariffs, and said that if there was sufficient time for debate with the Democratic nominee for the United States presidency he could drive him from every position he has taken in this campaign. "They are all equally untenable," the President asserted.

Speaking in Butler University Stadium before an overflow audience of 23,000 after a drive through cheering, crowd-lined streets, the Chief Executive said Roosevelt on Oct. 25 had announced "within two weeks of the election that he does not propose to reduce tariffs on farm products."

"Most Startling"

He asserted this was the most startling shift in position by a presidential candidate in recent political history.

Mr. Hoover stated at the outset that his theme would be a "contrast" of Republican policies with the ideas of the Democratic party leadership and its representatives, and immediately reiterated that the administration was "driving the forces of this depression into further retreat."

It was estimated 50,000 choked the streets surrounding the Stadium to hear the Presidents words over amplifiers. As he entered the hall a nine-minute demonstration of cheers and shouts greeted him. It was the longest ovation he had received on any of his campaign swings.

"If there shall be no change in the strategy of this battle, if there shall be no delay and no hesitation," he said, "we shall have the restoration of men and women to their normal jobs and lift agriculture from its anxieties and losses."

He quoted the Democratic nominee as having said earlier that the Hawley-Smoot tariff was "a ghastly jest" and as having described it as "a wicked and exorbitant tariff."

When these statements were made, he said, it was known that the major increases in the 1930 act were on farm tariffs. He maintained "the evidence is complete" that the Democratic party intended to reduce farm tariffs.

During the past three weeks, he said, "I have reiterated this plain and evident purpose of their party and their candidate. Unquestionably my exposition has given their candidate great anxiety, because just 21 days after my statement he announced another new deal. He now announces within two weeks of the election that he does not propose to reduce tariffs on farm products."

"Does the Governor realize that he has overnight thrown overboard the great historical position of his party? That he has rewritten the Democratic platform? That he must withdraw half of his speeches in which he denounced the Hawley-Smoot Act as the origin of this world calamity?"

The Chief Executive declared also that Roosevelt "has not yet stated to the American people fairly and squarely" his position on the Veterans' bonus.

"One thing I will assure the Veterans," Mr. Hoover said, "and that is when they are paid they will be paid in real money."

rest. And many's the day, say the wise ones, when a preserving fisherman rambles home through the dark joyously burdened by six or a dozen bottles of prized, uncut liquor.

BOGUS PRIEST IS HELD BY THE MONTREAL AUTHORITIES FOR PASSING PHONEY CHEQUES

(Montreal Star)

Admitting to passing a number of worthless cheques, James Carson, 37, with two local addresses, was arrested yesterday afternoon when he was alleged to have gambled for big stakes while masquerading in the guise of a priest as "Father" James Callaghan, professor of theology at the University of Ottawa, Carson, was taken in custody by Sergeant-Detective McCoy and Vanini after a report was received from a well known local brokerage house concerning suspicious connected with an order for the delivery of bearer bonds to the value of $45,000. An accepted cheque alleged to be fraudulent on the Bank of Toronto for the sum of $41,126.36 was found in Carson's wallet when he was arrested.

Companions Arrested

A man named E. Latour, alias George Bellefleur, 42, no address, and a 23-year-old French-Canadian girl of Montreal, were arrested later upon information obtained by the police. The girl, however, was released after she told her part in Carson's alleged schemes, and that all her clothes had been purchased with cheques furnished by Carson, said to be worthless.

The girl will be on hand when needed by the police but whether she will appear as a witness against the accused when he appears in court tomorrow morning to face at least 25 charges of false pretenses and fraud is not yet decided.

Carson, who is alleged to have left a trail of false cheques behind him during his operations and visits between here and Toronto, has a long record, police say.

Bond Purchase

Negotiations for the purchase of the bearer bonds valued at $45,000 were opened in Toronto at the Toronto office of the local brokerage house.

On Friday afternoon a man who gave his name as E. Latour with an address in Hull, visited the Toronto office to make arrangements for the purchase and asked for delivery of the bonds here in Montreal on Monday.

On Monday James Carson, dressed in the habiliments of a priest and posing as Father James Callaghan, appeared at the local office and asked for the bonds, according to the brokers. When told the bonds were being held for Latour he said Latour was his agent. He said he would return with an accepted cheque on the Bank of Toronto.

Yesterday morning at 11 o'clock the brokers received a telephone call from a man who said he was Latour and who informed the brokers he would call for the bonds later or else Father Callaghan would come and get them. At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon the brokers received a phone call from Father Callaghan, who asked them to deliver the bonds at the Immaculate Conception church presbytery at Rachel street and Papineau avenue.

The broker got in touch with detective headquarters and Detectives

McCoy and aninni visited the broker and gave him a bundle of waste paper in a brief case to be delivered to "Father" Callaghan.

When the broker visited Father Callaghan, however, and told him that the two detectives with him were two of his employees, who came along for protection against a possible hold-up, the supposed Father Callaghan said he had been unable to obtain the cheque and the deal would have to wait.

The broker left and priest followed shortly after with the detectives shadowing him along Rachel street to Iberville street. On Iberville st. the man suddenly crossed the street and made his way in behind a house where he was taken into custody by the detectives.

At headquarters he continued to affirm that he was a priest and when asked how long he had been a priest he replied to Inspector Foucault, "you are a detective, that is for you to find out."

Admitted Identity

However, when his fingerprints and photographs showed that he was Jas. Carson with a long record the man suddenly smiled broadly and shaking hands with Inspector Foucault said, "I played the game to the very end but you have me beaten."

A visit to one of the addresses in the east end given the police by Carson revealed the stamps and other necessary paraphernalia for preparing false accepted cheques.

Detectives claim that they have learned that Carson bought the cheque forging outfit itself with a worthless cheque and that the priest's clothes he was wearing as a disguise were also purchased with worthless cheques.

The man has been operating between Montreal and Toronto purchasing automobiles and goods of all sorts with worthless cheques for various sums, according to the detectives.

They claim he bought cars in Montreal with false cheques and sold at one hundred per cent profit in Toronto and did likewise in this city with cars purchased in Toronto.

At noon today Carson made a statement to Inspector Foucault in which he said to have admitted his guilt in connection with the deal of $45,000 worth of bonds from the broker and also in connection with the several other charges held against him by the police.

RULES GIVEN TO JOB SEEKERS

Boston, Oct. 29—Want a job?

Prof. Charles E. Bellatty, head of the advertising department of Boston University's College of Business Administration, has compiled the following do's and don'ts for job hunters.

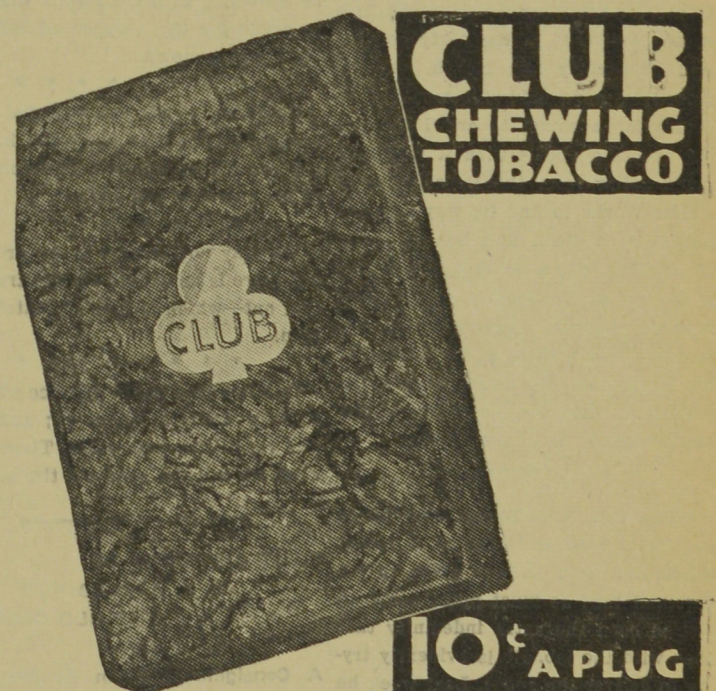

"Tap on an office door before you open it; enter with a pleasant look on your face; remove your hat, but don't place it on a desk; stand quietly at a respectful distance from the occupants of the office; don't be the first to shake hands, either when you arrive or when you leave; don't 'pull up' a chair unless you are asked to do so; try to be a good listener; don't slouch in your chair; or lean against anything; keep your eyes off the paper on the office desks; don't show interest in telephone conversations; don't punctuate what you have to say with, 'See?', 'Understand me?', or 'Do-you-get-what-I-mean?'"

Don't stare about the office. But do look about you sufficiently so that when you have completed your interview you can get out again without knocking over a hatrack."

The young men, under changed economic conditions, are said to have foregone their silken garments, but the silk-clad young women are still with us, from what can be seen.
