WANT CLEANER POLITICS.

"I believe that we have arrived at a time when the people of Canada want cleaner politics. I have never believed it necessary to be dishonest in public life, while being honest in private life. I believe the people of Canada are looking for better things, and are expecting service from the public men, men who occupy positions of trust in the different. And never in the history of Canada has there been a more opportune season than while this struggle is on. Let us have cleaner politics and more honest business in the conduct of our public affairs."—Premier Norris, of Manitoba, at London, Ont.

MESSAGE TO YOUNG MEN.

"After a long life I shall remind you that already many problems rise before you; problems of race division, problems of creed differences, problems of economic conflict, problems of national duty and national aspiration. Let me tell you that for the solution of these problems you have a safe guide, an unfailing light, if you remember that faith is better than doubt, and love is better than hate.

"Banish doubt and hate from your life. Let your souls be ever open to the strong promptings of faith and the gentle influence of brotherly love. Be adamant against the haughty; be gentle and kind to the weak. Let your aim and your purpose, in good report or in ill, in victory or in defeat, be so to live, so to strive, so to serve as to do your part to raise the standard of life to higher and better spheres."—Sir Wilfrid Laurier at London, Ont.

ANARCHIST AMONG NATIONS.

Viscount Grey, Great Britain's Foreign Secretary, was the principal speaker at a luncheon by the Foreign Press Association at the Hotel Cecil, London, a short time ago. He delivered an address which has been described as one of the ablest deliverances by a British statesman since the war began. On the subject of peace, Viscount Grey made this explicit statement:

"If we are to approach peace in the proper spirit, it can only be by recollecting, recalling and never for a moment forgetting, what was the real cause of the war. Some people say, 'Oh, we needn't go back to that old ground now; everybody knows it.' You cannot go back to it too often; it affects the conditions of peace."

Turkey was described by Viscount Grey as the vassal of Germany. He declared that "there has gone on and there is still going on in Turkey, on a scale unprecedented even in that country, and with horrors unequalled before, an attempt to exterminate the Christian population of Turkey; horrors which Germany could have prevented and which could only have gone on with her toleration. In letting loose these things," he continued, "and in introducing them into the war, Germany has been the great anarchist who has let loose in the world a greater and more terrible anarchy than any individual anarchist ever dreamt of."

The language of Viscount Grey is amply justified by the facts. Since this war broke out, many foul crimes against humanity have been brought out by the Huns. They have razed cathedrals, murdered women and children, made use of poisonous gas in trench warfare, torpedoed hospital ships; in fact, Germany has ruthlessly thrown down all the barriers which civilization had built, and has made no effort to keep the horrors of war within decent bounds.

Discussing the subject of peace, Viscount Grey pointed out that before the war European nations were living within the shadow of Prussian militarism, and he declared that there could be no peace until that shadow was removed. Here are his words:

"There must be no peace except a peace which is going to ensure that the nations of Europe will live in the future free from that shadow, will live in the open air, and in the light of freedom. For that we are contending. We know that if mankind has any birthright, as we believe it has—the birthright of peace and liberty—then our cause is just and right, because it is for that we are fighting."

There is no doubt that Germany would be willing to make peace tomorrow, providing she could do so on her own terms. She is even now making overtures through the medium of neutral nations. But it will be all for naught. So far as the Allies are concerned, there will be no peace until Prussian militarism is completely crushed.

PECULIAR DISCRIMINATION.

A short time ago it was stated by a St. John newspaper that a party of American baseball magnates had planned a hunting trip to New Brunswick, and that "the Government had extended the courtesy of licenses." It seems the plans of the parties miscarried; they did not come, and therefore the Government, most fortunately, was not called upon to issue the free hunting licenses which had been promised. Now, licenses to hunt big game are issued under the authority of the Minister of Lands and Mines, and he has power, which he is supposed to use rather cautiously, to issue complimentary licenses, and in cases where, in his opinion, the public interests would be thereby served. It is a well known fact that when this government has any favors to bestow, the same usually go to political friends and supporters, and as applicants for hunting licenses are, as a rule, strangers who live outside the province, their applications generally get scanty consideration. It has in the past been almost as difficult for a camel to get through the eye of a needle as it is for a non-resident sportsman to get a hunting license from the New Brunswick Government without first putting up his fifty plunks in exchange therefore. Last season an employee of the famous Smithsonian Institute at Washington, which is under the control of the national government, applied for a permit to shoot some extra specimens of big game for the big American museum. He was backed by letters from the museum authorities at Washington, but they availed him nothing. His application was, rightly or wrongly, deemed by the Crown Land authorities to be not in the public interest, and was turned down cold. A few weeks ago an American citizen who had fought for the Allies in the great European war as a member of the French Foreign Legion arrived in this province to hunt big game. He had been severely wounded while playing the part of a soldier of fortune, at a remuneration of five cents per day, and came here to have some sport and recuperate his health. Here was surely a case where the Minister of Lands and Mines could have used his discretionary powers and extended the courtesy of a free license, but he did nothing of the kind, and thereby lost an opportunity of performing a gracious act. Having held the lid on tight in the cases referred to, it is passing strange that the Minister of Lands and Mines should be so ready and willing to remove it when a party of Yankee baseball magnates come along. These men gather in a lot of easy money from the public, and if they want another kind of sport at the close of the baseball season they should be made to pay for it. There was a dozen or so in the party which had planned to invade New Brunswick, and according to the statement of a St. John paper, they were to have had complimentary hunting licenses. In other words, they were to have privileges which are denied even to our own citizens, who own the forests and the game. They were to have licenses worth at least $600 and all the game they could kill, and by decree of the Minister of Lands and Mines were not to contribute a cent to the revenue in exchange therefore. It was a fortunate thing for the province that the scheme fell through, but for this no thanks is due to the Minister of Lands and Mines. Complaints are frequently heard to the effect that the game law is administered in a very slipshod way by the present Government, and the Mail is inclined to think that they are amply justified by the facts.

The Boston Transcript says: Germany began the war by regarding a treaty as "a scrap of paper" and by invading Belgium; doing so in full confidence of a successful rush to victory and to the conquest of the world. Now she again regards a treaty as "a scrap of paper," and deports Belgians as prisoners, doing so, however, in a desperate and futile endeavor to avert her inevitable fate.

Cure Your Bad Cough By Breathing "Catarrhazone"

You may dislike taking medicines—but coughs are best cured without medicine. The modern treatment is "Catarrhazone." It isn't a drug—it's a healing vapor full of pine essences and healing balsams. It spreads over the surfaces that are weak and sore from coughing. Every spot that is congested is healed; irritation is soothed away; phlegm and secretions are cleaned out, and all symptoms of cold or catarrh are cured. Nothing so quick, so sure, so pleasant as Catarrhazone. Beware of dangerous substitutes meant to deceive you for genuine Catarrhazone. Dealers sell Catarrhazone, large size which lasts two months price $1.00;

It is about as easy to be popular with yourself and please the neighbors at the same time as it is to sit on a barbed wire fence.

ECZEMA ON FACE

Was So Bad Had to Stay in House.

All skin diseases such as eczema or salt rheum, itching or burning rashes, eruptions, ulcers, boils, pimples, etc., are all caused by bad blood, and while not usually attended with any fatal results, may sooner or later develop into some serious blood trouble, and the entire system become affected.

Burdock Blood Bitters, that old and well known remedy, will cleanse the blood of all its impurities, and by this means cure all skin diseases and other blood troubles.

Mrs. Ernest Andrews, Hamilton, Ont. writes: "My face was covered with eczema and was so terribly bad I had to stay in the house. I had ten different doctors but got so tired of their treatment that I went and bought a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and it helped me so I kept on taking it. Now I am cured and have a lovely skin."

"People who used to see me when I was so bad and see me now, will not believe it, but I always tell them that nothing cured me but Burdock Blood Bitters."

How about an eight-hour law for the Christmas shopper?

"Children Hate Pills." Guess we're all children, then.

Who'd name a waltz after the Danube nowadays.

We used to worry about alum in the bread, now we're looking for it in the water.

Maybe the price of paper went up to see what the price of food was doing up there.

"Son Weds Father's Wife." Well, where does the old man come in these days, anyhow?

Life has not yet lost all its zest for a girl whose heart still leaps at the sound of the tinkle of the telephone.

She was only a bird in a gilded cage, but we all of us loved her lay. A white Wyandotte of a tender age, who forked out an egg every day!

No girl will believe that there is any scarcity of leather who has tried to make an impression on a few bachelors' hearts.
