ANOTHER BIG RIOT IN CALGARY

Calgary, Feb. 11—Another riotous outbreak on the part of the soldiers belonging to the garrison here occurred tonight, and for two hours the authorities, police and militia were powerless to cope with the mob.

Riverside Hotel, a two-story brick and frame structure in the Riverside district, north of the Bow River, was attacked by a crowd of about five hundred soldiers and civilians and thoroughly wrecked. The windows were smashed, frames and all, and most of the furniture pitched out into the snow, where it was broken to bits by the shouting crowd.

The bar was raided and the stock passed around among the rioters, which speedily grew to at least two thousand strong, half being civilians and under the influence of the liquor an orgy of wild destruction followed. The building was reduced to a mere shell.

which we had captured, was defeated by our cross fire.

On the Black Sea Friday our destroyers demolished bridges and sank eight sailing ships.

On the Caucasus front, near Erzerum, our troops, advancing through the deep snow, with temperature 25 degrees below zero, forced almost inaccessible passes and continued to make progress. They took some dozens of officers and over 700 Turkish regulars prisoners and captured seven guns, as well as ammunition wagons and many cattle.

In Persia, in the region of Hamadan, we occupied the town of Duletabad.

WOMEN DOING THEIR PART IN THE GREAT WORLD WAR

(From the Normal Light.)

"Women are always to the fore when sacrifices are called for from humanity." What a tribute such a remark is to the gentle sex, who have proved their loyalty and patriotism in this struggle. The men of the Empire are giving up sweet life in their defence of it, and women, no longer content to watch and pray, or to wait and minister, are hastening to prove that patriotism can be shown by women just as forcibly as by men.

In the first place, they have organized patriotic movements such as the Belgian Relief Fund, Red Cross work and Patriotic Fund. We cannot overestimate the value and importance of these institutions, not only to our own country, but to all engaged in the war. Many ladies of means are equipping their own splendid homes as hospitals and in every way are trying to take on their shoulders part of the burden of caring for the homeless and suffering.

During those weary weeks of fighting in Belgium women actually went into the firing line while there were lulls in the fighting, and sitting down beside their husbands in the trenches, gave that little band of defenders the encouragement which only women can give. They frequently trudged miles with baskets of provisions, looking for their husbands, sons and brothers who were somewhere along the firing line. During the battle of Mons, too, women and girls went right into the trenches under fire to give the soldiers food and drink. One of these girls was only seventeen, yet she braved the flying bullets to minister to those fighting the great battle for European liberty. Then, again, we hear of women passing for men in the different armies, so eager are they to take part in the fray.

Today hundreds of women are burning to fight. They want to don khaki and shoulder a rifle along with the men. In Great Britain an army of drilled women called the "Women's Volunteer Reserve," is an established fact. It boasts of more than three hundred thousand recruits, with a colonel-in-chief, who is Lady Londonderry, and a colonel, who is Hon. Evelyn Haverfield. Moreover, seventy thousand of them have enlisted for work in the trenches and are using every possible influence to get the government to let them go. They have learned how to use firearms, and are skilled in rifle shooting. Lord Kitchener has bestowed his blessing and good wishes on this army of women, which is nearly three times as large as the whole United States army. This twentieth century female army is really a most wonderful thing when we remember that England is a country where woman has been kept in her place by an overwhelming masculine opinion for centuries.

One of the most striking consequences of this terrible war has been the employment of women in all kinds of strange and unsuitable occupations. The summoning of men to the front reduced the number of farmers to till the soil and produce all the women possible to go to work in the fields. It is indeed a startling sight to see a woman struggling under a heavy sack of potatoes, or even more startling to see her performing the duties of a butcher. In Paris and Berlin it is now a milk-girl and not a milkman who brings the milk at 4 or 5 o'clock in the morning. Even such dangerous and difficult labor as coal mining is being carried on by women.

Tired women have set men free to join the ranks of war by acting as railway porters, motor drivers, bus conductors, messengers and elevator men. Many a nurse girl has given up her job at the baby carriage to do the better paid but harder work of the truck driver. In the great London and Parisian stores we no longer see strong men performing the always humiliating work of measuring ribbons or cloth behind counters. Only the grey-bearded ones are left to instruct the new women and girls in their duties.

Some very odd situations have been caused by this wholesale employment of women. Hands that never handled anything heavier than lace and silk are now struggling with pick and shovel. Feet that trod the pavements in dainty shoes are now stumbling over rough and wasted fields.

Although for many of them it has been very hard, still they have shown courage which equals if not surpasses that of the Spartan women of old.

The Late Mr. A. R. Creelman, K.C.

ONE of the outstanding figures of the Canadian bar passed away in Montreal in the early part of the week in the death of Mr. A. R. Creelman, K.C., for eight years general counsel to the Canadian Pacific Rly.

Mr. Creelman was of Irish and Scotch origin, he being the son of the late James Rutherford Creelman and Isabella Christina Patterson Creelman. Born 66 years ago at Richibucto, N. B., he was educated at the Grammar School there and at the Chatham (N.E.) Academy. He studied law with the late Hon. Adam Crooks, Q.C., was called to the Ontario bar in 1876 and to the bar of Quebec in 1902, and was created a Q.C. in 1889, by Lord Stanley of Preston, then Governor-General of Canada and later Earl of Derby. Mr. Creelman's talents carried him steadily forward in his profession, and he became one of the leaders of the bar in Ontario, being for years associated in partnership with such famous lawyers as the late D'Alton McCarthy, Q.C., M.P., the late E. B. Oler, Q.C., and Dr. John Hoskin, K.C. He remained a member of the Toronto firm of McCarthy, Oler, Hoskin & Creelman until 1901, when he was appointed chief solicitor to the Canadian Pacific Railway, taking up permanent residence in Montreal at that time. He was well known as one of the leading commercial lawyers in Canada, particularly expert in insurance law. In 1905 he assumed the title of general counsel, a post he held until 1913, when he resigned, but remained a director until the following year, a position he occupied for 4 years, having been elected in 1910 to take the place of Sir George A. Drummond. He was also a director of the Kingston & Pembroke Railway. Mr. Creelman was a member of the committee which raised an endowment fund for Upper Canada College in Toronto in 1900, and was appointed an honorary corresponding secretary of the Royal Colonial Institute, London, in 1906. He was a Liberal in political belief, but took no active part in politics. In faith he was a Presbyterian, being a member of St. Paul's Church. Mr. Creelman was devoted to clean and manly sport, doing much to further the interests of cricket, hockey, curling, bowling and golf, and in 1900 he was elected president of the Canadian Cricket Association.
