ANOTHER DILL PICKLES

Put grape leaves in bottom of large jars, pack in good sized cucumbers and place a bit of horseradish, a clove of garlic, a tablespoon of dill seed and another grape leaf or two on top of each jar. Boil four quarts of water, one quart of vinegar and one cup of salt together and pour it boiling hot over the cucumbers to fill the jars and seal at once.

These days many a girl, who marries in her mother's wedding dress, wears it for other than sentimental reasons. If you associate with a man who is too everlastingly brilliant, you become a "yes man."

Gertrude Nieson To Sing Green's "Body and Soul"

Johnny Green's greatest song hit, "Body and Soul", will be sung by Gertrude Nieson to an orchestral accompaniment under his baton when the program, "In the Modern Manner", is broadcast over the WABC-Columbia network, Sunday, September 17, at 8:30 P. M., A. S. T.

The young composer first wrote "Body and Soul" for Gertrude Lawrence, English actress, who, although she never sang the tune herself, had it introduced in London where it became an immediate success. Later, when Miss Lawrence came to this country in the show, "Candle-light", she suggested to Green that he allow Libby Holman to sing the torchy number. Miss Holman took the song, but for six months it lay amongst a pile of her music until Arthur Schwartz, author of "Three's a Crowd", heard it in England and returned to have her introduce the tune here in that show. "Body and Soul" soon became one of the biggest hits in two years.

Other highlights on this musical Sunday half-hour include the playing of Green's piano concerto, "Poem" for which Charles E. Henderson will be the guest soloist, and "Tango at Midnight" from his Night Club Suite. In the latter work, three solo pianos will be heard, with Green at the first piano.

THE STARLING IS DESCRIBED AS A NUISANCE

Large flocks of a strange bird, said to be the starling, which is very destructive, have recently been seen in the vicinity of Shediac and other parts of New Brunswick. This bird, originally coming from England, increase in number very fast and moves from point to point in flocks of hundreds and thousands. Because of its destructiveness there has for several years been a movement for its extermination in the United States and similar measures are being taken in some parts of Canada. A strong case against the starling is made out by Jack Miner, the bird lover and naturalist, who has a large sanctuary at Kingsville, in Ontario. Mr. Miner says that "Between 2,000 and 3,000 of my choice white and Scotch pines are dead, killed by the slimy, poisonous droppings of the starlings and now this beautiful nature's cathedral that I planned and planted in 1914 is a sight to look at." The photograph of Jack himself in a grove of trees killed by starling droppings is a picture of desolation. On one occasion the starlings dropped on the ground a lot of undigested shelled corn. Miner's son's chickens ate some of this corn and over 100 of a valuable strain of White Wyandottes were poisoned.

"My personal findings of the starlings up to date," says Miner, "are that they are driving out some of our best week-seed and insect destroying song birds, such as the loveable mourning doves, purple martins, woodpeckers and so forth. They are the worst weed-seed distributors America ever knew; they carry deadly chicken diseases. They are very destructive to fruit and vegetables and they are death to trees where they roost. Last, and worst of all, they are already lowering the general public opinion and appreciation of bird life."

Miner has invented an effective trap for starlings, and during June and July caught and buried over 25,000. But he has also found that they are edible. "The fact is that if properly cooked they are a treat on the table, and that is one point in the hope of controlling them. In the summer of 1931, Italians from Windsor, Ontario, caught, smothered and trucked back to that city approximately 200,000, which were used to feed the hungry. Jack Miner declares that if starlings are allowed to multiply they will be the worst pest in Ontario's history, and the same no doubt is true of New Brunswick and other parts of Canada.

COUNTRY ROADS AT NIGHT

Country roads are dark at night, Except for here and there a light Upon the little panes that stare From out the dark of everywhere, Except for fireflies that spark Across the fields where nests the lark Except for stars above the hills And moonbeams flashing on the rills.

Country roads at night are still, Except for frog and whip-poor-will, Except for cricket's chirp, and trees That rustle in a lukewarm breeze; Except for cattle on the meads, And smaller sounds' mongst roadside weeds.

Country roads are lone at night, Except for coats on left and right, Except for skunks and coons and toads—

Except for these they're lonely roads — Except for young folks coming home From dancing parties in the gloam. —Stanley Foss Bartlett in New York Sun.

Some of us are good losers because our frequent experiences have taught us how to be.

Gas In The Stomach

Gas in the stomach, belching, sour water brash, pain after eating, etc., can be overcome within three minutes if you will take a little Bismarck Magnesia in water after you eat. The ordinary Bismarck Magnesia which you can get at any drug store will correct acid stomach and stop acid indigestion immediately. Try it and see.

For the Women

SUNMADE DILL PICKLES

Take large clean jars—about two quart capacity with wide mouths and put a large grape leaf or two in the bottom then a sprig or two of dill and fill with uniform, medium sized, well washed cucumbers. Be sure the cucumbers are fresh and tender. Put some of the dill between the cucumbers, too, as you pack them in the jars. Lay a piece of horseradish root on top of each jar and cover with another grape leaf or two. (The grape leaves give the pickles a good green color). Then make a brine using a level fourth cup of salt to every quart of water. Boil this about five minutes, cool it and pour it over the cucumbers filling the jars and then let stand in the sun to ferment. Have plenty of brine on hand to keep the jars filled, for some will be lost in fermentation. When fermentation ceases, take extra care to see that cucumbers are well covered with brine, fasten lids tightly on jars and keep in a cool place. Don't leave jars out over night.

A CHOW CHOW

Twenty four tiny cucumbers
Two quarts of small onions
Three medium size cauliflowers, separated
Three quarts of the best cider vinegar
Six chopped green pepper
Two quarts of sliced green tomatoes
One pound of brown sugar
Three carrots cut in fine strips
One half pound of mustard
One half pound turmeric
One fourth pound of flour

Cut the vegetables that need cutting to the size desired. Put all of them in a large bowl in layers and sprinkle salt between each layer. Weigh them down with a heavy dish that has a weight put on top of it and let stand twenty four hours. Then put in a kettle and bring to the boiling point and drain thoroughly. Mix the mustard with the flour, sugar and turmeric and then slowly add enough of the vinegar to mix to a smooth paste. Bring the rest of the vinegar to a boil, slowly stir in the mustard and cook carefully and with much stirring until it is creamy and smooth. Pour this over the drained vegetables, put in small sterilized jars and seal at once. Turn upside down to cool.

A PEPPER HASH

One and one half dozen green peppers
Five red peppers
Five pounds of cabbage
Six good sized onions
Three tablespoons of celery seed
One and one half quarts best cider vinegar
Three-fourths cup of salt

Three cups of sugar
One half cup white mustard seed
Chop or grind the peppers and cabbage after removing the seeds and core. Skin and chop or grind the onions. Mix all these together thoroughly with the salt and let them stand, weighted down, over night. Then mix in the celery and mustard seed and add the sugar and vinegar and mix those in well. Pack in sterilized jars and seal.

A SWEET PEPPER RELISH

Fourteen sweet red peppers, seeds removed
Two good sized tender carrots
Four tomatoes
Two tart apples, cored
One pint of cider vinegar
Three cups of sugar
Two level teaspoons of salt
Chop fine or grind the peppers, carrots, apples and the skinned and well drained tomatoes. (Force all seeds and as much juice from tomatoes as possible before grinding). Mix with other ingredients and cook at a gentle simmer until as thick as desired. Put in sterilized glasses and seal with paraffin when cold.

END OF SEASON PICKLE

Two quarts each green tomatoes and cucumbers
One good sized head of cabbage
Six each red and green sweet peppers
Two bunches of celery
Two small heads cauliflower
Two quarts of tiny onions
Two quarts of green beans
Six tablespoons mustard
Four tablespoons turmeric
Four cups of sugar
Four quarts of vinegar
One cup of flour

Chop the vegetables except beans and pour boiling water on them to scald. Cook the beans separately until tender but not soft and mix with other vegetables after draining thoroughly. Mix sugar, flour, mustard and turmeric with some cold vinegar to make a thin paste. Bring the four quarts of vinegar to a boil and slowly stir the mustard mixture into it. When smooth and creamy, add vegetables, and cook together five minutes. Put in sterilized jars and seal at once.
