Mr. Miller has been a continuous member for twenty years.

The Presbytery concluded its all-day session last night with a public meeting in the United Church at Prince William, and Rev. Mr. Burge, of Devon, was the principal speaker. The day's business was routine in character. There were fairly large attendances at each session.

Mention was made of Laymans' Sunday occurring on Oct. 15th, and W. M. Burns, of this city, brought the matter before the Presbytery. During the afternoon the ladies of Prince William served a very excellent repast.

A large congregation was present during the evening and Rev. Mr. Burge spoke inspirationally, taking as his subject: "What It Means To Be A Christian." Rev. J. W. Bartlett, pastor of Wilmet United Church, in this city, was another speaker and he told of various phases of the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago, which he visited this summer.

F'TON BUSINESS COLLEGE HAS A FINE RECORD

Commenced New Term on Sept. 5th at Queen Street Site

FOUNDED IN 1894

Frank B. Osborne Is the Principal and Heads Teaching Staff

The Fredericton Business College, colorful educational institution in the city, began its fall term last week, registering the opening classes. Frank B. Osborne, its principal, stated today that the usual registration was made, though in sympathy with the times, those taking business courses this year would be somewhat lessened in number he expected.

The local business college was founded in the year 1894 and has had a notably efficient career since that time. A. W. Young was the founder. Two years later the college was taken over by Col. W. J. Osborne, whose death ensued in 1924. Frank B. Osborne, his son, who was associated with his father, took over the principalship upon his father's death and has conducted it ably ever since.

The college has had many distinguished grads, one being none other than S. R. Noble, who at the present time, is assistant general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada. Several thousand students have passed through the portals of the Fredericton Business College.

The college is a full member of the Business Educators' Association of Canada, whose schools range from Halifax as far as Vancouver. Courses in secretarial, stenographic and general office work, are given.

The present principal has associated with him, Guy B. Pond, a very efficient assistant, and the staff is augmented from time to time if needed.

While the fall course opened on September 5, the registration continues all year, students being taken in at any time. The course lasts from six to eight months, according to the aptitude of the individual student.

The College has the record of having graduated every member of a family of six—over a period of time of course. Such a record speaks itself of the proficiency and consistent popularity of the Fredericton Business College courses.
