The Town of Chinsi In Jehol Province Occupied by Japs

A Four-Day Battle Was Fought During Blizzard and Zero Temperature, According to Chin Chow Reports—Operations Along Great Wall Reduced to Scattered Encounters.

(Special to The Daily Mail by the British United Press)

PEIPING, Jan. 20—Japanese troops today occupied the town of Chinsi in Jehol province after a four-day battle in a blizzard and zero temperatures, according to reports from Chin Chow, one of the Manchurian bases for Japanese and Manchukuo operations.

The occupation of Chinsi was the only activity reported as the blizzard continued throughout North China, reducing operations along the Great Wall to scattered encounters between border patrols.

Forces Concentrated

The activity of the Manchukuo troops and the concentration of heavy Japanese forces east of Shanhakwan indicated that when Japan resumes the drive on Jehol province, the southern route, via Lingquan, will be chosen. On the north, Japanese columns could move simultaneously into Jehol through Kailu and Chaoyang.

THE STUDY OF TAXATION IS TO BE KEPT UP

Ottawa, Jan. 19—On the subject of duplication of Dominion and provincial taxation, the Dominion-provincial conference adopted the report of the sub-committee appointed to study the questions.

"1.—The possibility of reallocation of tax sources as between the Dominion and the provinces or the clearer definition of relative jurisdictions, with a view to reducing as far as possible causes of litigation in regard to constitutional status of certain taxes; and "2.—The possibility of co-operation in the administration of certain taxes now levied by the Dominion as well as by several of the provinces with a view to reducing administrative cost to the governments concerned and eliminating unnecessary accounting, legal and other burdens on the part of the taxpaying public."

The report was:

"Preliminary examination of these questions indicated that considerable opportunity for administrative co-operation existed, particularly in the field of income taxes and transfer taxes on the sales of securities."

"It was agreed to carry on by correspondence and exchange of information and of views as to the detailed working out of such co-operative arrangements, and to meet at a later date to consider recommendations for administrative co-operation and to explore further the other major problems remitted to the conference, namely, the possibility of reallocation of tax sources."

ALL ROADS THAT LEAD TO HIS ARE NOW CLOSED

Minneapolis, Jan. 20—What can a man do with a farm to and from which all roads are barred?

That in brief was Roy Corbett's problem today in connection with the quarter section of land he owns fifty miles from the Canadian border.

Corbett acquired the land twenty-two years ago. Seven years later the State declared the area surrounding it a State forest.

Now he would like to farm it but it seems the only way he can reach the land is by foot or airplane. State officials told him they could do nothing to relieve the situation—that the State couldn't even buy the land from him because of a depleted treasury.
