Tobacco Heart

CURED BY

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Tobacco does not seem to affect all alike. Many men enjoy their smoke, live to a good old age, and apparently suffer no ill effects from the use of the weed.

There are others, though, on whose heart and nervous system tobacco produces the most serious results.

It causes palpitation, pain in the heart and irregularity of its beat, makes the hands tremble, sets the nerves on edge, and the breath becomes short.

To counteract this demoralizing influence on the heart and nerves there is no remedy that equals Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

They make the heart beat strong and steady, restore tone and vigor to the nerves, and remove all the evil results caused by the tobacco.

Mr. Nelson Young, Brampton, Ont., writes: "I have had, up to about a month ago, a very weak heart, which I suppose came from smoking cigarettes.
When I heard of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as a cure, I immediately gave up smoking, and started using them.
It does you justice to be the founder of such a great remedy. They made me feel like a new man."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Helping Hersey

BY BARONESS VON HUTTEN

Author of "Pam," "Kingsmead" "The Black Patch," etc

"Michael doesn't like him, Hersey," Mrs. Frewen said at length, "and men are the best judges of each other."

Hersey flushed suddenly.

"Oh, I don't for a minute doubt that you know more about men than I do, Mother," she began, "but—"

"Hersey."

The girl turned and stared at her lover, hardly able, it was plain, to believe her ears.

"What is it, Michael?" she asked, as the door closed, very quietly, her mother.

"That is not how you ought to speak to your mother," said Barnes sternly. "Go and beg her pardon."

"Go and— I will do nothing of the kind, Michael," she answered hotly.

"And I think you ought to beg mine I was never so spoken to in my life."

"I do beg your pardon, dear, but your voice and manner frightened me."

She was unappeased.

"Frightened you, did they? I can only repeat that you owe me an apology."

He looked at her in surprise.
"I did beg your pardon? Didn't you hear me?"

"Then say it again." She was trampling from head to foot. "Say it again. I—I hate you. You are an —a boor, a—"

The door opened and Violet Frewen came in.

"Hersey, darling, come to me," she said, in a voice Barnes had never heard her use.

She put her arms round the girl and stroked her hair gently.

"Hush, dear," she murmured, her white curls pressed against Hersey's brown ones. "Try not to tremble so. It is all right—you misunderstood."

Suddenly Hersey burst into such violent sobs that her mother could hardly hold her.

"Go, Michael," Mrs. Frewen said hastily. "Please go. She is not well —she has been very nervous for days I will write to you tonight and tell you how she is. Please go."

"Hersey, dear," he said, disregarding her, and laying his hand on the girl's shoulder, "don't cry. You will make yourself ill. Come and—forgive me. I should have seen that you are not well, darling."

But she clung frantically to her mother, shaking him off in a fury.

"Go away—go away! I hate you!" she cried.

"Michael please go," pleaded Mrs.
Frewen.

And Barnes left without another word.

IX.

Barnes was most distressed by the scene than he cared to admit, even to himself. He realized that his voice and words to the girl had been very stern, but he knew that they were no sterner than she deserved.

Her manner to her mother, even admitting everything, had been odious, and he had been honestly shocked.

If Hersey had been merely angry, he would have thought little of it, but she had behaved in a manner that nearly frightened him. He was too just not to admit the possibility of the scene's having been only one merely of nerves, but his justice reacted on himself, as it always does.

He could judge, nay, he could not help judging, her treatment of him as fairly he did his of her, and he knew that her furious violence was unjustified as well as unbecoming.

He took a long walk on leaving the house, thinking it all over, and at last succeeded in bringing some kind of order into his brain. She had had no proper upbringing, she was apparently very high strung and the sad fact that she did not respect her mother was her own fault. That must be forgiven her.

He, a mature man, did not respect Violet Frewen, and he realized fully that this influenced his way of regarding her slightest act. So what could he expect of Hersey, who was, comparatively speaking, a child, and a child sore with her sad knowledge of her mother's character.

"I was too severe," he decided, erring, as all generous minded people do, to his opponent's advantage.
"What I meant was right but my manner was wrong."

At the hotel, when he returned there just in time for dinner, he found, as he had expected, a letter from Hersey.

Dear Michael:
Can you forgive me? I am so sorry. I get like that sometimes. I did when I was a child, and I honestly can't help it. But I will try.
Please forgive me.

Hersey.

Forgive her! He smiled over the childish worded note. If love could not forgive a fit of temper, he reflected as he dressed, it would hardly be worth the name of love.

Two hours later he rang at the doors in Bloomsbury.

Yes, the ladies were in. Miss Frewen was in bed, though. Gwendolyn informed him. She had been took bad that afternoon and had gone to bed.

"Oh, thanks, then I'll not come up—"

But as he spoke, Mrs. Frewen appeared on the stairs and called his name.

"Please come up, Michael!" she said, "just for a moment."

When they stood together in the sitting-room, she began hurriedly:

"I want to be able to tell her that it's all right. She's asleep now."

"Didn't she get my note? I sent it the moment I had hers. I—I went for a walk before going back to the hotel."

FOR RETURNED SOLDIERS.

NOTICE is hereby given that a branch of the Provincial Returned Soldiers' Aid Committee has been organized for the Counties of York, Sunbury and Queens, and the City of Fredericton, as a district, with Dr. T. C.
Allen Chairman and Judge Wilson Secreary.

All employers of labor in said district willing to give preference to returned disabled soldiers as employees and all returned discharged soldiers wanting employment residing therein are requested to notify the secretary.

JUDGE WILSON,

DR. T. C. ALLEN, Secretary.
Chairman.
January 22nd, 1916.

FASHION NOTES.

The new top coats are cut with the broad shoulders and square sleeves of the mandarin coat. This has always been considered a comfortable fashion, for the space is wide enough to keep from crushing the gown beneath.

Almost all the new skirts are slightly stiffened at the hem and just at the knee line. Even the simplest skirts are slightly stiffened with a peculiar whalebone which the French call ondoline.

HABITS are hard to break. But the next time you need soap, remember to ask for Gold, the big, good laundry soap. It will pay you. You will get a larger cake. You will get better soap.

Gold Soap is made in Canada by the Procter & Gamble Factories at Hamilton.

Woman's Column:-

SOME NEW RECIPES.

Graham Bread—Take one cup of sour milk, little salt, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 egg, two teaspoons sugar, 2 teaspoons melted butter, a little flour and enough graham flour to make it thick enough to spread in a medium baking pan.

Brown Bread—Take two cups Indian meal, 1 cup graham meal, 1 cup flour sifted with one teaspoon soda and  $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon salt.
Mix with 1 cup molasses and 2 of water. Add raisins if liked and steam about 3 hours. Make it often for hot bread for mid-day dinner, but may be made in forenoon and steamed till ready for Saturday night beans. Makes it darker in color to cook longer, but is excellent in the shorter time.

Chocolate Marshmallow Sauce— Take 1 teaspoon cornstarch mixed with tablespoonful of cocoa,  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup of sugar wet with cold water, then pour on 1 cup of boiling water; cook a few minutes, then add 8 or 10 marshmallows; flavor a little with vanilla.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

An effectual hard water softener is oatmeal.

After the dust is wiped off a mirror a little camphor will brighten it.

A piece of alum kept in the silver drawer will prevent the silver from tarnishing.

Dip new brooms in hot soap suds. This makes them tough and flexible.

To remove a rusty screw, first apply a very hot iron to the head for a very short time, then immediately use the screwdriver.

Obstinate whitewash stains may be removed with a little hot vinegar.

To clean painted walls do not wash with soap, but dissolve 2 ounces of borax in 2 quarts of water and add 1 teaspoon mixture to a pail of warm water. After washing the walls, rub with dry cloths until clean.

Wood's Phospholine,
The Great English Remedy.
Tones and invigorates the whole nervous system, makes new blood in old veins. Cures Nervous Debility, Mental and Brain Worry, Les-sion, Loss of Energy, Palpitation of the Heart, Failing Memory. Price $1 per box, six for $5. One will please, six will cure. Sold by all druggists or mailed in plain pkg. on receipt of price. New pamphlet mailed free. THE WOOD MEDICINE CO., TORONTO, ONT. (Formerly Wood's.)
