AN OTTAWA TRIBUTE

The Ottawa Journal in referring to the death of Senator Poirier whose mortal remains were laid to rest at Shediac on Thursday pays him this tribute:

"The memorable days of Canada's first prime minister and the storied romance of Acadia are brought to mind by the death of Senator Pascal Poirier of Shediac, N. B.

"Born when men went to rest by candlelight, more than 50 years a member of the Upper House, Senator Poirier walked and talked, planned and strove, with Canada's founders, was an intimate friend of Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and those whose names are magical in history. He witnessed half a century of great political battles wax and wane, helped to govern through the long years as an unconsidered widely separated stretch of settlements grew into a nation, and saw the descendants of his forebears who penetrated the wilderness with sword and crucifix uniting ever more closely with their conquerors in the common task.

Joined with this unusual legislative record was his love for, and intimate knowledge of, ancient Acadia. Himself possessing the courtly manners and distinction of his lace-ruffled forebears, he made a particular study of the olden days. In more than a dozen books he re-created the veritable atmosphere of that far-off time which saw Champlain hemmed in by the Indians on the St. Croix; La Tour battling for mastery along the wind-swept shores of Louisbourg; and the unavailing tears of the children of Evangeline as they went into exile from their beloved homeland where the wild rose is forever blown by the Atlantic spindrift.

"His long service to Canada was commendable and his service to Acadia more than noteworthy in its preservation of the gallantry and high achievement of a romantic race."

MATTER OF DETAIL

Whether a man was named Zamir or Damar would make little difference to folk of the western world. But it nearly disrupted the course of empire, or what have you, over in Turkey.

Mustapha Kemal, perpetual president of the Turkish "republic," met some henchmen on parade. They had scrupulously adopted European styles, including the creased trouser, the iron hat and the standup collar. But one of them had retained his Arabic name of amir. Mustapha may have heard of Shakespeare, but he disagreed with the bard about what's in a name. He ordered the surname of his offending deputy changed to Damar, the Turkish form, forthwith.

Zamir rushed home and got his birth certificate, ran to the city hall and had the change recorded. He returned to inspection as Damar and loyal to the cause.

While democratic nations try to break down the walls of narrow nationalism and race consciousness, dictators fuss and fume over such details as this!

The Ancient and Honorable Artillery lery Company of Boston, arrived in Saint John this morning on a brief visit. This venerable organization spent a few days in Saint John five years ago and their visit is remembered with pleasure. Great plans have been made to entertain them in the present occasion and they are sure of a good time.

Moncton Times:—The new Liberal Government in Nova Scotia is sending a garage manager to England to sell Nova Scotia lumber. He worked hard in the election a few weeks ago and possibly deserved a trip but some old-fashioned people think a man engaged in the lumber business should have been sent on this particular mission.

A streamlined bicycle capable of thirty miles an hour is now offered, calling for the re-enforced rider.

Mr. J. K. King Talks On Agriculture

(continued from page 1) stock feeding the speaker said some 5,000 carloads of meal feeds are brought into the Maritimes each year for this purpose. He felt this demand could be supplied in part by native-grown feeds if properly developed.

Other products which he believed offer opportunities for New Brunswick producers were butter and cheese. He concluding by asking the delegates to avail themselves of every chance to offer constructive suggestions to the department of agriculture.

"If you have any ideas which you think will be helpful to the department of agriculture please send them along. The door will always be open to you. Remember that in helping agriculture you are helping yourselves because the welfare of every resident of the province is directly related to the agricultural development of the province as a whole," he said.

Mr. King was accorded a vote of thanks for his address.

Agricultural Opportunities

"There are greater agricultural opportunities in New Brunswick than in any other part of Canada", J. K. King, recently appointed deputy minister of agriculture, declared last night in an address delivered at a complimentary dinner in the Union Club tendered him by the Saint John Board of Trade.

Mr. King coupled a comprehensive survey of agricultural problems and agricultural opportunities of the province with an appeal for full co-operation between farmers and business men.

The new deputy minister of agriculture strongly advocated the growing of more mill feed in New Brunswick. He said that from the point of view of the British market the Maritime Provinces are more advantageously located than any other section of the Dominion and their possibilities in regard to this are unlimited. He declared that there are few farm products the Maritimes are importing which could not be produced as well, if not better here, than in other parts and placed himself on record as welcoming all suggestions which are made to him in the interests of advancing agriculture in the province. Mr. King also expressed the opinion that the Maritimes should be given a lower domestic freight rate on mill feeds.

GIVE THE BOYS A CHANCE!

A visitor to the Stanley Fair on Thursday on observing a Fredericton man operating with great skill a game of chance, was heard to remark: "Why does the Fredericton Exhibition find it necessary to import midway operators from the United States? Why not give our own boys a chance. If there is any easy money to be picked up at exhibitions our own people ought to be allowed to gather it and keep it in the country."

PRINTER AND PUBLISHER HANGS UP HIS STICK

St. John, Sept. 30—Following a sudden seizure, W. Franklin B. Paterson, well known printer and publisher, passed away at his residence, Elliott Row, late last night. He had been at his office during the day and had seemingly been in usual health. The tragic suddenness of his passing will occasion deep sorrow in the community.

For more than 40 years Mr. Paterson had been engaged in the printing business which bears his name, the Paterson Printing Company, a firm that publishes several periodicals circulated throughout the Maritime Provinces.

In business relationships, fraternal life, church activity and in the community generally Mr. Paterson was respected, a man of quiet manner, kindly, generous and courteous. He had a host of friends.

Besides his wife he leaves one son, Edwin H. H., two brothers, A. P. Paterson of Saint John and S. B. Paterson, of Winnipeg and three sisters.

J. J. HARPELL BEING SUED FOR COUNSEL FEES

Montreal, Quebec, Sept. 30—Considering that he had to employ other lawyers to help in the handling of his defence in the criminal courts on a charge of criminal libel, James J. Harpell considers that the legal firm of Cormier, Gouin & Demers were paid all their services were worth and are not entitled to an additional $2,939.35, for which they have sued him in the Superior Court. In a plea to the action of the lawyers, Harpell says that he was obliged to call in other lawyers at considerable expense because the plaintiffs did not possess enough experience to handle the case unaided.

The action of the lawyers, which covers professional fees and disbursements, in the Harpell case, was called before Mr. Justice Mercier in the Superior Court this morning, but was dropped from the roll when the lawyers involved failed to appear. Under existing court practice, the action may be restored to the roll at some future date by giving a new notice, within a certain time, if the plaintiffs so desire.

Open Season For Game Fish Closes

Campbell has entered his fish in the competition for the prize offered by the New Brunswick Guides' Association for the largest salmon taken by a non-resident, employing a guide belonging to the Association.

The angling season for salmon will not reopen until May 24th, but when ice breaks up in April, permits are issued, which allow anglers to take one a day for food purposes.

FOR DEVIL'S ISLAND

St. Martin-De-Re, Sept. 30—a long line of convicts boarded a ship here yesterday with Devil's Island, the penal colony as their destination. They were pressed up the gang-plank through rows of soldiers. Hot steam is already to be turned on the convicts, should they become riotous during the voyage to the tropic island.
