Suffered From Nerves. Could Not Sleep.

To the thousands of people who are tossing on sleepless beds night after night, or who pace the floor with nerves unhinged, and to whose eyes sleep will not come, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills offer the blessing of sound, refreshing slumber.

They restore the equilibrium of the deranged nerve centres, thereby producing peaceful, undisturbed, refreshing sleep, and will cause you get up in the morning feeling that you have the strength and vitality to go through your day's work.

Mrs. Hollas Knox, St. John, N.B., writes: "I suffered greatly with my nerves, I could not sleep at night, nor work, and the least little thing worked on my mind and bothered me. Last winter I thought I would go out of my mind, I would scream out, and my mother really thought I was going crazy with my nerves. It was so terrible I would hold my head and cry. I tried two doctors, but they did not do me any good. I thought I would tell you that to-day I am perfectly cured by using three boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I can recommend them to all sufferers from nervous troubles. You can tell everyone that they are the only thing that did me any good."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have been on the market for nearly a quarter of a century, and are universally known as the best remedy for all heart and nerve troubles.

Price 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited,

A Romance of Monte Carlo

When we entered the place he found evidence of some confusion. The landlord, in his shirt sleeves, was talking in an excited manner to several neighbors and the landlady was standing by listening.

"Monsieur Carslake!" replied the good woman to Jack's inquiry. "Oh Monsieur, he is gone, and mon Dieu! such a thing has happened! The police have been here and they have searched his room and they have questioned Admette so that the poor girl has nearly had a fit with fright.
And how were we to know that he was a spy in the pay of Italy? Why, he has not even settled his bill!"
"And when did he go?" asked Jack.

"Why, Monsieur, he went out this morning with Madame your wife and he has not returned yet."

"With my wife?"

"Yes, Monsieur," replied the woman, a look of commiseration coming into her face.

Jack sat down at one of the tables.
As he did so, a police official appeared from the passage leading to the upstairs rooms. When he saw Jack, he put down Carslake's bag, which he was carrying, and came to the unfortunate at the table.

"Monsieur was a friend of Monsieur Carslake's?"

Jack raised his head. His face was flaming.

"A friend of his! Yes, — him!
A friend of his, yes, and he has robbed me of everything I had in the world! Where is he? Have you got him?"

"No, Monsieur, but we soon will. If he escapes from France this time, he will be a clever man. Will Monsieur walk outside for a moment? I should like to say a word in private."

Jack rose and came outside.

"Monsieur is aware that Madame—"

"I am aware that my wife has gone off with that scoundrel," replied Jack. "Is that what you mean?"

"Has Monsieur any idea where his wife has gone?"

Jack laughed. He took Julia's letter from his pocket and handed it to the man.

"That's the address," said he.

He felt an odious pleasure in thus exposing his own shame and Julia's.
It was necessary for him also to clear himself of any suspicion of complicity in Carslake's business.

The man, having read the letter, clicked his tongue against his teeth, folded the paper, put it into its envelope, after having examined the postmark and returned it with a bow.

"Monsieur has my condolences. It only remains for me to ask him to come with me to the bureau of the chief of police, so that he may hear this story."

They walked to the police office, where Jack's papers were examined, his full name, address and business taken down and Bachelry taken as a reference.

Then he was free to do with himself as he pleased and he returned to the hotel.

He had a vague idea of getting dinner somewhere and then going to the Casino, having a try with luck over the last few coins in his possession, and drowning himself if he lost. With a view to putting his plan in action, he went upstairs and dressed.

He dined at the Cafe Anglais and after dinner took his way to the Casino.

He had only three louis and some silver after he paid his bill at the cafe. He had no hope of winning a large sum at the tables but he thought that with care and decent luck he might possibly win enough to pay his hotel bill and his railway fare to Paris.

He passed from table to table, undecided as to where to try his luck.
He paused at the one adjoining the treasure of quarante rooms.

At this table was playing an American trust magnate whom Carslake had pointed out to him the day before—a clean shaven man, with the appearance of a butler on a holiday.
He was "acking No. 33 and for a while Jack watched him placing pieces of gold plaques on the number and always losing.

Then Jack began to play. At first he had luck, winning some forty franc or so. Then his luck began to fail him. Five-franc piece after five-franc piece went, till at last only one remained. He placed it on a number, closing nine. Thirty-one turned up, and he found himself standing in the world without a single halfpenny in his possession.

He turned and walked away, left the room, got his hat and overcoat and went out into the night. He would have to walk back to La Tur-bie. What then? What would he do in the morning, with a hotel bill unpaid and not a single halfpenny in his pocket? He had nothing that he could sell or pawn, a gold collar stud and a Waterbury watch being all he possessed in the way of jewelry, but he was thinking of this less than of the fact that he was thirsty and had not the money to get a drink. He put his hand in his overcoat pocket for his cigarette case, took it out and found it empty.

He closed the case and replaced it in his pocket. Fate had never treated an unfortunate mortal as she was treating him. This last little stroke was worthy of her. Not a cigarette, even!

He had stopped close to a lamp and as he walked on the glitter of something lying on the ground struck his eye. He stopped and saw what he thought to be a five-franc piece. He picked it up. It was a hundred-franc piece, a plaque, one of those gorgeous coins they mint at Monaco and the sight of which changing hands at the tables is at once a tonic and a stimulant to greed.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Ethel Barrymore will receive $40,- 000 a picture for four pictures a year for three years from a prominent moving picture concern.

Of the 3,914 women recently interviewed by the state factory inspector in Iowa, 39.7 per cent. were found to be earning less than $6 per week.

Mrs. William T. Purdy, a wealthy widow who died recently in New York city, left two trust funds of $3,000 for the care of her parrot Polly and her dog Hop.

The Duchess of Marlborough was the only woman speaker at the mass meeting recently held in London to inaugurate a national campaign to promote the welfare of motherhood and infancy.

Five thousand women of Paris have organized themselves into an army and are hoping that the French government will finally allow them to enter active military service.

While in the East in the interest of suffrage, Mrs. Kate O'Hara of St.
Louis will gather industrial statistics, especially concerning the employment of women in factories. She will make her report to Mayor Kiel, of St. Louis.

Mrs. Zelia Nuttall, of Los Angeles, is thought to be the only woman in the world at the head of the active work of an archaeological research fund.
She is director of the Crocker-Reid fund of the University of California.

Lady Sybil Grant, daughter of Lord Rosebery, is running a newspaper for her husband's men at the front, which tells them the news and tidings of their wives and families at home. Lady Sybil collects and edits the copy herself.

SMART HANDKERCHIEFS.

The smartest kerchiefs for thrusting into the breast pockets of tailored coats are of a sheer, fine linen, with narrow hemstitched hems in color. The one-color woman will have a dozen of these dainty ker-chiefs, bordered with her favorite shade; but most women prefer a variety of shades, so delicate and desirable are the colors. One may purchase a box of these handkerchiefs with hems in flesh pink, pastel blue, buff, spring green and lilac.

THE GIRL THAT IS PALE

SHOULD READ THIS

She is in danger, her system is run down, weak—she needs nourishment, needs richer blood. More than all else she needs Ferrozone, needs it because it brings back the nerve energy which rapid growth and study have exhausted. The old-time vigor, happy spirits and new strength return with Ferrozone. The delicate maid is energized, strengthened and rebuilt.
Isn't it worth while using Ferrozone when it surely does so much. At all

USES FOR STOCKINGS.

Use the feet of all old stockings for cleaning ranges or stoves; sew the feet together in a long strip; roll up and as needed clip off a piece the size needed, and when it has been used a few times discard and get a fresh strip. Old stockings cut into strips three inches wide and put into a common mop stick make a first class mop for hardwood floors.

SAYS THE COOK.

If you want the best pie crust, says the cook, it should be made the day before you wish to use it and put into a cold pantry. Then the crust will be flaky and crisp.
If you wish to retain the crispness after baking let the pies cool thoroughly before putting away.

To improve the top crust of the pie she has found the following very good: Brush it over with water and then sprinkle with granulated sugar. This improves the appearance and makes it brown and crisp.

HAIR COMING OUT?

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 26-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little in your hand rub it into the scalp. After a few applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff.

MARYSVILLE NOTES

Marysville, Feb. 7.—About six inches of snow fell here in the last two storms, causing the place to take on a more wintry appearance.

Searle Roberts, son of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Roberts is confined to his home with a severe cold. He is being attended by Dr. H. H. McNally.

We regret to announce the illness of Miss Minnie Titus of the Marysville teaching staff. Her many friends hope for a speedy recovery.

A food and fancy sale will be held in the Town Hall Saturday afternoon and evening by the ladies of Main Street United Baptist church.
Everyone is requested to be present.
Free, with permission of setting your own price to get out.

It is rumored that a popular young widow will in the very near future, be led to the altar by a machinist from foreign parts.

The monthly missionary meeting will be held in the Main Street Baptist church Tuesday afternoon at half past two.

James Stafford, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stafford, is seriously ill at his home, with symptoms of congestion.

Mr. Millard Arnold has rented the house owned by Mr. Melvin Hudson, recently made vacant by Mr. John Marshall.

It is possible that a new bylaw will be passed, namely, any officer drawing salary in the Town of Marysville who refuses to act as alderman the following year, must forfeit all the money paid to him in the past year.
Some easy money going.
