RURAL LIGHTING
An executive of a gas and electric company in a radio talk from an American station one day this week, gave out some interesting information, regarding the cost of electricity to the farmer. He said that his company operated sixteen hundred miles of rural light and power lines, the cost of installing which was about $2,500 per mile, or a total investment of about four million dollars. Light was supplied to customers at a cost of 2.45 cents per k. w. hour. He declared that there was no question as to the value of electricity to the farm, but in most cases the farmer had difficulty in raising the money to pay for the installation and equipment. True it would be done by mortgaging the farm, but many farms are already mortgaged, or in cases where a mortgage had been retired by hard work, the farmer did not view with favor a proposal to put on another. As to the value of electricity to a farmer, especially to one operating a dairy farm, the best test would be to take it away from a farmer who had once been using it, and see what he would say. The official's opinion was that the farmer should have assistance in financing the installation of electricity and that the monthly payments should be spread over a sufficient period so that they will not be a burden to him.

Monday, October 9th will be observed throughout the Dominion as a day of Thanksgiving. While Canadians have not as much to be thankful for as was the case a few years ago, all should be grateful over the signs of improvement that are now evident on every side. Unemployment is gradually diminishing, there is more industrial activity, the lumbering industry is being revived and farm prices have improved as compared with a year ago. There is also cause for thankfulness in the knowledge that Canada has weathered the storm of depression at least as well as any other nation and will not have as far to go in order to execute a comeback.

Charlottetown Guardian: — Reference has been made in these columns to the gratuitous advice offered by the Hon. W. D. Euler, M. P., former Liberal Minister of National Revenue, that the Maritimes and the Prairie Provinces should unite into two large Provinces. The Maritime union idea finds no press support in this section of Canada, and it is interesting to note that the Winnipeg Free Press is equally skeptical of the alleged benefits, which would result from a union of the Prairie Provinces.

Sydney Post-Record: "One gratifying result of the recent Provincial election, is that Liberal newspapers now vision the general signs of business betterment as clearly as their Conservative contemporaries, and the entire press of Nova Scotia has become gloriously optimistic. Whether we are to have worse or better government at Halifax, the voice of journalistic pessimism has at least been silenced, it is to be hoped, for good."

The record breaking price of gold now prevailing should mean a lot to Canada. In 1931, when gold was selling at about two thirds of its present price, the output of Canadian mines was 2,693,892 fine ounces, valued at $55,687,680. In 1932, with little change in the price, Canada's output was 3,055,168 fine ounces, valued at $63,156,000. Canada is now the world's third largest producer of gold.

It appears that "Machine Gun" Kelly is a bold man only when has the drop on the other fellow or shoots from ambush.

A seersucker suit we suppose, is as susceptible as the rose of Sharon which stops blooming as soon as the nights are cool.

In order that Canadians and visitors to Canada may be encouraged to appreciate the marvelous beauty of the Canadian woods this present season, the Canadian Pacific Railway is offering two prizes each of five dollars for the largest and most beautiful maple leaves in full colors collected within two miles of any Canadian Pacific Railway station. Entries must be received by the director of exhibits at Windsor Station, Montreal before November 1st. Both prizes should be captured by New Brunswickers.

As our government is "geared" to perform more and more functions at the will or by the acquiescence of the people, it becomes more expensive. This is natural and is to be expected. No government, if it is efficient, can be carried on cheaply; and it was John Ruskin who said, "But whether governments be bad or good, one general disadvantage seems to attach to them in modern times—that they are all costly."

MUCH MEAT AND CHICKEN IN THE MARKET TODAY

Good Variety of Vegetables—Eggs not plentiful—Meat and Chicken Predominate — Prices Show Few Changes.

Meats and chicken were plentiful in the country market this morning and proved to be the feature of the day. Goose and fowl were also listed among the produce. Vegetables were more plentiful, and of a greater variety, than usual. Eggs were only moderately well supplied this morning but the price remained about the same as last week.

The fall vegetables are offered in good quantities in the market these days. Lettuce, the second crop of the year and of excellent quality, is also on sale. Native grapes were in the market this morning along with other fall fruits. The grapes are only small but have an exceptionally good taste.

The Price List:—

Uncle Ben Norrad Hits the Long Trail

Attended World's Fair

Mr. Norrad guided many other noted sportsmen from the states of Ohio and Indiana, and on one occasion Dr. Greene headed a party of ten. Uncle Ben, as he was familiarly called, was a favorite with all non-resident sportsmen, who accompanied him into the woods; they admired his skill as a woodsman and moose caller, and greatly enjoyed his hunting yarns and Miramichi folklore. As a mark of appreciation of his services his patrons from the Middle West on one occasion, gave him a free trip to the World's Fair at St. Louis, and upon his return home he declared that he had had the time of his life. Mr. Norrad retired from active work in the woods about twenty years ago and has since lived quietly on his farm.

The First Break
The deceased is survived by a widow, and family of four daughters, and four sons. The children are Ernest Norrad, Ethelbert Norrad; Mrs. Burt Carson, and Mrs. Fred W. Fairley of Fairley, Northumberland County; Wilfrid Norrad, of West Scarborough Maine; Mrs. William Foster of Portland, Maine; Mrs. Benjamin Brown, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Willis Norrad of Bloomfield Ridge. All of the sons and daughters were at home, when the old gentleman passed away, and his death was the first break in the family circle. The late Joseph Norrad of Boiestown was a brother.

The funeral took place this morning from the homestead at Bloomfield Ridge with services by Rev. D. R. Chouen of Boiestown. A large number of relatives and friends followed the remains to their last resting place.

Early Settlers Will Be Honored Sunday

T. C. Barker, aide-de-camp, will attend His Honor.

Preparations have been made to handle the expected large throngs that will gather tomorrow for the ceremony, which commences at the monument at 12.45 pm. Seats have been arranged for the invited guests who will be ushered by members of the Boy Scouts, who also distribute programs.

When arriving at the monument the militia will line up in front along Waterloo Row. The York Regiment band will be drawn up behind the boulder and in front of it will be the standard bearers of the I. O. D. E. Four troopers of the N. B. Dragoons will stand guard at the monument.

MOOSE IN CITY

Another cow moose has showed itself to be unafraid of the perils of the city. This morning three local young men started out hunting at 4:30 in the morning, and upon arriving at Church Street, they saw Mrs. Moose strolling nonchalantly along the middle of the street. They chased her up to St. John Street, and cornered her in a yard, but the lady of the forests was not frightened very much. Since it is not permissible to shoot cow moose the young men let her go and continued on her way to the woods in search of legitimate game. This is not an unusual occurrence since the animals of the specie often make trips to the city.

New York, N. Y., October 7.—Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and chairman of the NRA Board, is of opinion that the strikes in various parts of the country are a good omen, and a sign that industry is picking up. He predicts that no due time all industries will be codified.
