HOMELY GIRLS, YOU CAN NOW TAKE HEART

Fifty Young Men Tell Qualifications of a Wife, But Not One Mentions a Pretty Face.

(Bangor News.)

Waterville, Oct. 18.—According to the letters received from young men by Dr. Arthur S. Phelps, of Waterville, in regard to the sort of young woman they would like to marry, there is a great chance of matrimony in Waterville for the homely girl; for in all the letters he received—and they numbered 50—none of the young men mentioned a pretty face as a thing to be desired in a wife.

Dr. Phelps took his text from the gospel of Luke, 7-44, "Seest thou this woman?" He said that from his answers he thought that the young men seemed to find considerable bewilderment concerning the characteristics of the young women of Waterville, for one of them said that they were as varied as the blossoms in a bed of pansies; another that they were impossible to understand, and after he had thought the subject over he was more at sea than when he began.

Another, after expressing his opinion about the young women of the city, expressed his uncertainty by concluding, "I wonder how far off I am."

One young man, after summing up the virtues of the other sex and what he would like in a wife, said that "it is not too much to expect of her, because she would have me."

"In speaking of the girls on the street, a young man said they were 'wholesome,' which Dr. Phelps characterized as a beautiful word, because it meant that they were natural and feminine.

"They are possessed of grace and conventionality," wrote one young man while a number said that the young ladies of today have a desire for pleasure and a desire to please the other sex, while still another young man, who evidently envies the man who wears a uniform, says that a uniform and brass buttons have a great effect on girls. One serious minded young man says that all the girls want is a good time, and that they shrink from the strain of maternal cares, while a business man said that the young women liked to be well dressed, and felt that it was commendable because, "we like to see them so."

THE POLISH LEGION HAS COLLAPSED

London, Oct. 20.—A despatch from Berne, Switzerland, to the wireless press, says:

"Germany's Polish Legion has collapsed. After long efforts and coercive pressure, Germany and Austria-Hungary succeeded in enrolling 18,000 Poles. They were divided into six brigades. Four brigades mutinied at the beginning of October, and they were disbanded and imprisoned in the Brest-Litovsk barracks. The remnants of the legion were sent to the interior of Austria, the troops being considered unreliable.

AMERICAN SPORTSMEN.

Messrs. J. E. Poor, J. J. Martin, Jud Nichols and J. L. Walker, of Boston, Mass., arrived on Friday and registered at the Barker House. Later they left for Penniac in Mr. H. M. Blair's car and from that place will go after big game with Mr. W. H. Allen as guide. Dr. M. A. Morris, of Boston, is also at the Barker House. He is going after big game.

No popular writer is a genius to his stenographer.

One young man said that the girls are full of vanity, while another said that in company they showed their ability to be unselfish; another imputed the gentler sex with thoughtfulness, and another said that their conversation is marked of optimism, keenness of wit and perception, but they lacked judgment.

"Able to talk in volumes," said another, and still another accuses them of fickleness; another invests them with the characteristic of frankness, and another said that they are deceitful. In speaking of women in the home, one young man said that they have a strong sense of fidelity to duty and can stand more adversity than a man. One speaks of their ability to nag, another says they have motherliness, another that they are afflicted with jealousy.

Nearly every man wrote that in the girl he should want for a wife he would desire purity of heart, modesty, self-control, while one deep thinker said that he should desire faith in and love for God.

A student paid the young women a greater tribute by saying that the ideals of young women are higher and truer than those of men.

BUT IT WAS FURTHER AWAY THAN EVER

The Woman Who Saw, the Dazzling Young Lady, and the Quaint Little House.

(N. Y. Sun.)

"For Rent." It was the quaintest little place imaginable—a tiny house squeezed in between two tall and imposing mansions on a side street near Washington Square. To go more into detail: it was of red brick, with a low colonial door, and it boasted only four windows to its three stories. But it showed not a sign of shame or embarrassment about itself among all the pretentious neighbors. It never had been made over and it never would—even if it had to stand empty. It said so plainly! And it exulted in being little and old and real, and scoffed at the brand new apartment house gleaming white and ornamental near by, and the two buildings opposite, thrown into one and studiofied in up-to-date fashion.

The Woman Who Saw was so lost in admiration that for a minute she didn't answer when a voice said, "O, isn't it beautiful!"

Then she came to herself with a start and turned around. There stood a young woman looking from her to the little house with the most appealing blue eyes in the world, and saying again, "O, isn't it too beautiful!"

Now, instead of being pleased at finding a fellow feeling, the Woman Who Saw became exceedingly irritated.

Why? Because she didn't approve of the young woman at all. She was much too dazzling and much too wonderfully dressed. There was a gleam of pearls on her neck and at her ears. She was appalling modern and appallingly expensive—just the type to provoke anarchy and socialism.

So the Woman Who Saw answered shortly, "Yes."

"And it's for rent!"

"Yes," snapped the Woman Who Saw, and to herself she added, "Go build yourself a palace on Fifth Avenue, my dear, and stop annoying me!"

"Several years ago," confided an entrancing voice, "I had a wee attic room in a dingy gray boarding house on this street. During the day I painted furniture and lived on milk and crackers; at night I leaned way out of my low dormer window and dreamed about the day when that little house would be for rent and I could afford to take it—"

"And now?" questioned the Woman Who Saw, softened in spite of herself.

"And now—it's for rent—but it's further away than ever."

"Why?" asked the Woman Who Saw, impulsively. Suddenly the scales had dropped from her eyes. She saw that the girl and the house would suit each other perfectly; each was simple and fine and real.

The girl smiled, half humorously, half sadly. She looked up the street, started, waved her hand. "I must run—there's my husband," she explained. "Good-bye."

The Woman Who Saw watched the big limousine draw up at the sidewalk, the chauffeur help the girl in. A large blonde man, inclined to stoutness, greeted her. His glance was kind and adoring, but he could never, never understand.

"Yes, you're father away than ever!" agreed the Woman Who Saw, sorrowfully, with a farewell nod to the red brick house.

A light head seldom finds its counterpart in a light heart.

DON'T SCOLD, MOTHER THE CROSS CHILD IS BILIOUS, FEVERISH

Look at Tongue! If Coated, Clean Little Stomach, Liver, Bowels.

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish; full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomachache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow; but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember, there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

NORE DEATHS FROM INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Montreal, Oct. 20.—Three more deaths and three new cases of infantile paralysis were reported by the authorities here today. There have been six deaths from the disease during the last three days and there are now fifteen positive cases of the dreaded malady and one suspicious case.

Up to the present time the outbreak has been confined entirely to the western portion of the city and district.

A notice was sent out today from the office of the patriotic fund, warning the ten thousand soldiers' families on their list to keep children away from the schools, public gatherings and entertainments. The schools in the central portion of Montreal have not yet been closed.

ST. VITUS DANCE CAN BE EASILY CURED

A Tonic for the Blood and Nerves With Rest, All That is Needed.

Many a child has been called awkward, has been punished in school, for not keeping still or for dropping things when the trouble was really St. Vitus' dance. This trouble may appear at any age, but is most often met between the ages of six and fourteen. The most frequent cause of the disease is poor blood, aggravated by indoor confinement, or mental strain at school. Under these conditions the blood fails to carry nourishment to the nerves and the child begins to show listlessness and inattention. Then it becomes restless, and twitching of the muscles and jerking of the limbs and body follow. A remedy that cures St. Vitus dance and cures it so thoroughly that no trace of the disease remains, is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which renew the blood, thus feeding and strengthening the starved nerves. This is the only way to cure the trouble, and parents should lose no time in giving this treatment if their child seems nervous or irritable. Mrs. Wm. A. Squires, Canington, Ont., says:

"My only daughter, now, fourteen years of age, was troubled for several years with St. Vitus' dance. She was so bad that at times she would lose control of her limbs and her face and eyes would be contorted. We had medical advice and medicine, but it did not help her. In fact we thought the trouble growing worse, and finally we had to take her from school. About a year ago we began giving her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and by the time she had taken five boxes she was completely cured, and is now a fine, healthy girl. I firmly believe we owe this to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and are very grateful for her restoration to perfect health."

You can get these pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
