CONGRESSIONAL BASEBALL GAME ON CBS

The early innings of the annual baseball game between Democratic and Republican members of Congress will be described over the WABC-Columbia network on Saturday, June 10, from 3:45 to 4:00 P. M., A. S. T.

The battle between the beleaguered Republicans and the big-stick Democrats will be staged at Griffith Stadium, home of the Washington American League team. Last year's fray turned out to be a series of interviews with players on both sides demanding the air to tell why they won or lost, as the case may be. The 1933 encounter, however, promises to be a real ball game, with pitchers and everything.

Representative Russell Ellzey of Mississippi will lead the Democrats into action, while the Republican will be captained by Representative Vincent Carter of Wyoming. Both leaders have made extensive statements as to the ability of their aggregations.

FAN FARE

The recent re-enactment of the historic fall of the Alamo as one of the episodes of Triple Bar X Days and Nights held a realistic note for at least one person in these United States. A few days after the broadcast Carson Robison, who is featured in the weekly program with his Buckaroos, received a letter from a woman in Little Rock, Arkansas. She just wanted Robison to know how thoroughly she enjoyed the broadcast. The Alamo, it seems was quite intimately connected with her family history. Her great-great grandfather was there at the finish.

Her great-great-grandfather's name? Oh yes. Davy Crockett. And the lady Miss Beth Crockett—the last to bear that famous name.

Major Gladstone Murray of the British Broadcasting Corporation who dropped into the Columbia studios to give a brief talk on the air Sunday night thinks the solution to all international jealousies and hatred lies in world-wide broadcast entertainment. He foresees the day when there will be program clearing-houses for the world which will make the international exchange of programs a daily occurrence. When this happens he thinks a disarmament conference will not be necessary.

Phil Regan Columbia's handsome young Irish tenor who used to be a cop on the beat is the latest idol of the CBS page boys. They refer to him indulgently as "the man who made good by living from hoof to mouth."

Phil shows the boys he's thinking of them now and then by playing practical jokes. The other night, though, the boys thought of Phil. While he was waiting to go on the air in a late broadcast he expressed a keen desire for a sandwich and a glass of ale. The pages snapped into action and in less time than it takes to lose a horse race, a caterer appeared with what was rumored to be a filet of sole sandwich. It looked good. The young tenor bit down hard. A gleam came into his eye and he launched into a aria, the words of which seemed to be "Oh, Sole Me Eye!". From his teeth there hung the neatly carved and washed sole of Tony Wons' over-shoe.

Rose McClendon, who plays the feminine leads opposite Juano Hernandez in Columbia's twice-weekly series, "John Henry, Black River Giant", has just recovered from an attack of "Stormy Weather". The attack lasted a week. It started right after her doctor had ordered her to bed to overcome a sudden illness, which forced her to miss two episodes of "John Henry". While she lay in bed in her New York Apartment, the neighbors turned on their phonographs and radios. Harlem, you know, is where the tune, "Stormy Weather", originated. And that was the tune that emanated from the open windows of the neighboring apartment houses. When Mrs. McClendon had received sufficiently to get around again, the doctor told her she would take a sea trip.

"That would be a good idea", she said, "except for one thing. Ships' bands always start playing tunes a month or so after they become popular. They'd just be getting around to "Stormy Weather" now. I think I'll just walk some place."

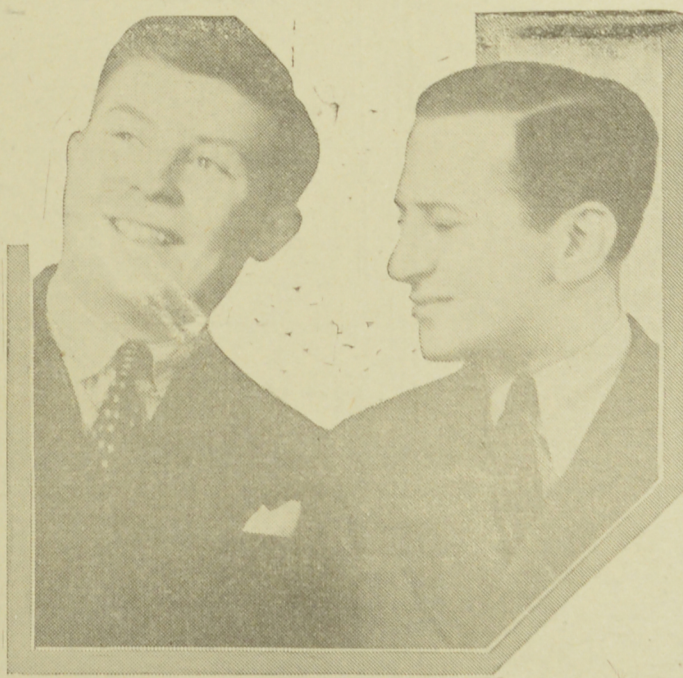

Mary Ann Bestor, seven year old daughter of Ron Bestor, the CBS band-leader, is a lucky young lady. She takes piano lessons from her daddy, vocal lessons from Nell Buckley, young singer with the Bestor band, and, to top it off, is being taught dancing by her mother former musical comedy star.

Unlike stars of comedy and song who often retain their theatrical make up while doubling between stage and studios, or appear in costume adapted to their radio roles, some of Columbia's noted dramatic actors would find this practice a bit upsetting. There's Guy Bates Post, who spends three hours each week putting on the realistic chin whiskers and costume of General Grant for his "Roses and Drums" broadcast, only to whisk them off to appear behind the footlights with Norma Terris in "The Climax". Likewise, Pedro De Cordoba steps out of his role as the CBS "Voice of Friendly Philosophy" to become George Harris in the Players' Club revival of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

The "Irvin S. Cobb Smock" is the latest creation currently featured by a New York Department store. The garment was designed by the Padusch humorist as "working clothes". It seems that he scorns the typewriter and does most of his work by long-hand. Cobb therefore designed a comfortable, roomy smock and let's the ink fall where it will.

Lou Holtz—the gent with the dour expression—has a high regard for Shawowsky—the stoutish fellow—not for his narratives. Holtz, with the aforementioned Shawowsky (alais Benny Baker, has been assigned to keep the new Chesterfield programs amusing with his astonishing dialect. Grace Moore will sing and Lennie Hayton's orchestra will play the melodies in these fast paced variety shows to be heard over WABC and the Columbia network from 10:00 to 10:30 P. M., A. S. T., each Friday, beginning June 2.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

For sale at all drug and general stores; manufactured for the past 53 years, only by The T. Milburn Co., Ltd., Toronto, Ont.

Headaches and Pains In Stomach

Mr. W. G. Simpson, Saria, Ont., writes:—"For two years I was troubled with severe headaches, and pains in my stomach. My druggist told me to take Burdock Blood Bitters, and since then I have not been troubled with either. Each spring I find a bottle of B.B.B. is just the thing to clean the blood of the poisons gathered in the system during the winter months."

For the Women

CLOSE-UPS ON

FASHION SCREEN

It begins to look as though a woman will have to call in Friend Husband to help fasten her dress, as in the old days. More and more gowns are being shown with buttons down the back. So far, they're mostly for decorative purposes. But—

Sherbet shades, those cool colors looking like raspberry, lemon or orange ice, are among the leading color choices for dressy summer cottons and chiffons.

Shops report interest in rubber bathing suits. Their texture is quite fabric-like, light and comfortable. They come in attractive colors or combinations.

Candy stick colorings, those gay stripes duplicating the brilliant shades of peppermint and winter-green sticks, are smart for the popular shirtmaker type of frock.

Monograms continue to be a fashion item of importance. Pins of sparkly marcasite, set in sterling silver, feature two or three initials. You can have these made to order.

Paris and American manufacturers are again sponsoring gray for fall. The dark gray shades will be the thing next season, they say. Oxford and steel gray promise to be leaders.

Summer frocks of white and pastels set great store by the contrast note provided with touches of stripped or polka dotted materials used at throat and waistline.

Even beach fashions sponsor the vogue for white headgear. White bathing caps are reported as highest in demand with blue generally rated as a close second.

Linen suits in dark colors, notably black, are interesting many smartly-dressed women these days. Just the thing for the warm weather we've been having lately. The new linens are uncrushable, too.

They call it "April Showers", this new necklace which combines many strands of tiny beads held together by an ornamental clasp. Comes in the daintiest combinations of pastel shades as well as bright colors.

It's easy to fashion one of these high-hat turbans from the many attractive lengths of belting ribbon to be found on the ribbon counters. Remember this when you're looking for a hat to carry out that important ensemble note. You may fashion gloves to match, too, by making detachable cuffs of ribbon or colorful silk.

Cotton dresses grow more fascinating as the season advances. There's a pretty material called "French knot" in delectable pastel shades. A semi-sheer background with many knots of a string-like cord. This is one of the many cottons which require no ironing.

Have you seen the "Stone Age" bracelets? They're made of some sturdy composition which combines colors in the manner of natural semi-precious stones like lapis and jade. Wide and heavily craved in a primitive sort of manner, hence their name.

White hats, white bags, white gloves and even white shoes are making an early appearance this season. No need to wait until summer to get into that most refreshing of all colors, pure white, since fashion has approved it for wear right now.

Printed sheers, they tell us, are high among the best sellers in dresses at the moment. They're best liked in small patterns of colorful field flowers on a dark ground.

Even brides are going in for cottons this season. There's a love of bridal gown in white organdie, very frothy with crisp ruffles about the hem and tawny the shoulders.
