POLITICAL RUMORS

Our contemporary the Sackville Tribune after indulging in some guessing in regard to pending political changes, concludes an editorial with the words "and the next Premier will be Hon. A. A. Dymally." No doubt with the Tribune the wish is father to the thought. The Opposition Leader, however, has a long and rough road to travel before he reaches the promised land. Only recently he completed his first session as party leader and it is pretty well known that he did not find his job a bed of roses. There was altogether too much outside interference, which at least one of Leader Dymally's lieutenants resented, and other evidence accumulated to show that the party to Mr. Speaker's left is anything but a happy family. We would advise our friend of the Tribune before indulging in prophecy as to what the future may bring forth to do some investigating on his own side of the fence and make known the result to his readers.

CHURCH FUNDS

An earnest appeal for the restoration fund of the Anglican Church in Canada was made over the radio from Winnipeg on Sunday afternoon by Rev. Canon Cody of Toronto. The church endowment fund for northwestern Canada of $750,000, was stolen by Mr. Machray, a Winnipeg lawyer and pious fraud, who is now doing time for his grave offence in the Stoney Mountain Penitentiary, and the clergyman, communicants and adherents of the Church have been asked to make good the amount. It is a large order, but we believe that the Anglicans will prove themselves equal to the occasion. In their appeal for support, however, the Church authorities should make it clear that a more vigilant watch will be kept on church funds in the future than evidently was the case in the past. Other churches might do well also to take a lesson from the sad experience of the Anglicans.

Laws are made by lawyers and as was once pointed out by the late Hon. Joseph Howe, it is seldom that a lawyer finds himself in jail. The case of Machray is therefore somewhat exceptional, and should be a warning to others who administer trust funds.

TO HELP SPINSTER'S SCHEME

Princess Ingrid of Sweden, granddaughter of the Duke of Connaught, gave the world a chuckle not long ago when she said:

"I want to be an eternal spinster."

Now she wants to do something for spinsters. Her plan would be available to girls between 18 and 30. Each would pay into a spinster's insurance fund. At the age of 30, each would receive an income for life. Those girls who dropped out or married would forfeit their contributions.

Any system which discourages matrimony is regarded as unwise. But there is another side to the argument. Many an unhappy marriage results from persons taking life partners because they fear that if they wait too long they will not get one as suitable.

Princess Ingrid's insurance scheme would wipe out much of this fear. Its moral aspect is debatable but its material benefits to the individual cannot be successfully denied.

The spinster has performed a service to civilization far greater than that given by many a mother. The mere fact of marriage and parenthood does not make necessarily for sublimity. Many such contracts have had evil results. Many a spinster had made heroic contributions to civilization.

Princess Ingrid's plan has appeal and we wish it moral and material success.

Spain is being asked to repeal a law enacted in 1492. It seems that conditions have changed since it was passed.

The city of Quebec, after all, is to have its exhibition this year. So much the better for the commerce of Quebec. The fact is often overlooked that an exhibition is not necessarily an enterprise designed to obtain direct revenue. Rather, it is an agency of publicity which results in profits in due course by giving an impetus to industry and commerce. If and when an exhibition can show a surplus, it is all that can be desired. If an exhibition merely balances its budget, it does well. Deficits inevitably mean a diminution of the efficacy of an exhibition's publicity.—La Action Catholique, Quebec, return to Fredericton Saturday.

Sackville which in the old days was regarded as a sleepy town is now one of the live burghs of the Maritimes. It is fortunate in possessing a live Board of Trade which recently held its annual dinner and which brought together seventy-five representative citizens of the town. The toast list brought forth some excellent speeches of an optimistic nature. The belief evidently exists in Sackville that it is the people who make a town and that prosperity is more or less dependent on their efforts.

The eyes of the whole civilized world are focused on Washington this week. Premier Ramsay MacDonald, the foremost statesmen of the British Empire is there on the invitation of President Roosevelt and has been joined by Ex-Premier Herriot of France and Premier Bennett of Canada. It is the firm belief that something is going to be accomplished by the statesmen now at the United States capital for the benefit of mankind.

Premier Bennett is in Washington on an important mission and on Wednesday will move into the White House to be the guest of President Roosevelt until Friday. They will discuss matters of interest to the people of the North American continent and it is fondly hoped that their conversations will ultimately lead up to a reciprocal trade agreement between Canada and the United States that will be to the advantage of the two countries.

Well the economic depression has started at least one new industry, the manufacture of jig-saw puzzles. They are a grand thing for the unemployed.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald who spoke over the radio at Washington was introduced by the Chairman as "America's favorite foreign diplomat." He spoke well as he always does, and made it clear that there would be no retaliation by Great Britain against the United States for having gone off the gold standard. Premier MacDonald will be heard in another radio talk on Wednesday evening.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

If one successfully lives up to the saying that "a rolling stone gathers no moss," how may one avoid becoming an old mossback?

You know people who never do the best they can, who do pretty well.

WEAVERS GO BACK TO WORK AT MILLTOWN

Milltown, N. B., April 24—Weavers who went on strike last Monday at the St. Croix mill here of Canadian Cottons, Ltd., refusing to accept a 10 per cent reduction in wages, returned to work today and the plant is again running at normal.

The strikers agreed at a meeting Thursday to accept the cut and return to their posts. Word had been received from head office by V. H. Brunneau, manager of the Milltown mill, that unless the strike was settled promptly the plant would be shut down for an indefinite period.
