THE LATE E. R. TEED.

The sad news which came over from the wires from Woodstock yesterday that Edgar R. Teed, vice chairman of the New Brunswick Liquor Control Board, and one of Carleton County's outstanding men, had lost out in his long battle with the grim destroyer, was received with expressions of profound sorrow on all sides. Mr. Teed had not enjoyed robust health for several years, but with commendable pluck carried on his official duties up within a short time ago when he was granted six months leave of absence by the Provincial Government. His health, however, continued to fail, and it was generally known by his numerous friends throughout the province that his days were numbered, and therefore news of the fatal termination of his long illness created little surprise.

The late Mr. Teed was widely known and generally esteemed throughout the up-river counties, where in his earlier days he travelled for a Saint John wholesale firm. Since 1927 he had served as vice-chairman and purchasing agent for the N. B. Liquor Control Board, the duties of which position he discharged in a most satisfactory manner. Although kept busy during late years by his official duties he maintained his interest in a number of industrial enterprises, in the majority of which he served as a director. A shrewd business man, of long experience, his counsel was highly valued by his associates, as well as by public men. He had an abiding faith in the future of New Brunswick, and was not afraid to invest his spare capital in enterprises calculated to develop its resources and give employment to labor.

In the passing of E. R. Teed the county of Carleton has been deprived of one of its worthy sons. Quiet and unostentatious, yet deeply interested in the welfare of the community, he did his whole duty by his fellow citizens and never took any particular credit for it. He displayed a keen and active interest in public affairs, and for some years has been one of the bulwarks of the Conservative party in the County of Carleton. A staunch party man his views on public questions were well known to everybody, and he enjoyed the absolute confidence of his leaders on both Federal and Provincial affairs. His official duties were performed with zealous care, as those who were brought into contact with him can bear witness. Mr. Teed was essentially a self made man; the elements in him were well mixed, and his death before his time had come has left a void in the life of this province that is going to be hard to fill.

REV. CHARLES McNALLY

Many friends in this city have learned with deep regret of the death recently at Bridgeport, N. Y., of Rev. Charles McNally, an esteemed clergyman of the Baptist denomination. He was a native of this city, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. McNally, and before beginning his theological course worked as a clerk in a furniture store conducted by his father in Queen Street. Following his ordination he labored for several years in Western Canada, afterwards removing to the United States where he held several pastorates. He was a man of distinct personality, and was an able and scholarly preacher. On numerous occasions when on vacation in his home city, he occupied the pulpit of the Brunswick Street Baptist Church. The passing of so gifted a man at a comparatively early age, is a matter for great regret.

A man never suffers so with suspicions as during the six short minutes when he is waiting for a girl's answer to a proposal that she has been waiting six long months for him to get around in.

HARD TIMES
It is hard to understand how a nation can talk hard times when it is able to produce enough necessities and luxuries to give every citizen all he needs. The good Lord has placed enough stuff on earth for everybody if the people were disposed to act sanely.

Canada for instance, can produce more food than we can eat. It can build homes for all. It can, with the aid of labor-saving machinery, create luxuries for everybody.

We have a million unemployed anxious to create these luxuries. Why can we not aid them to do so?

Meanwhile we have been running around in circles, pegging the price of wheat and killing unborn pigs, thus ruining our greatest export market and listening to college professors, who never made a dollar in their lives except by telling others how to do something that they could not do themselves.

SNAPSHOTS

One finds his life is full of drudgery if he insists on doing it.

Even in these days of mass production quintuplets are a passing wonder.

Every age has its moment; and nineteen-twentieths of the people don't realize when it arrives.

Some men fight with their backs to the wall, others to the last ditch, others to the front door.

People believe anything a scientist says; they even believe he is a scientist if he asserts that he is.

It is all right to indulge in art for art's sake if you are not an artist. He has to make a living.

The first year of life is much like the rest of it. You start with habits that have to be broken.

Some persons believe in being merciful to crooks which proves that some haven't yet been trimmed.

Soaking the rich is popular only in bad times when the rest of us have given up hope of getting rich.

Tribute to R. P. Allen

With the Fredericton Mail passing under a new management, Mr. Robert P. Allen, who has been in newspaper work in Fredericton for more than forty years and twenty-five years of that time as editor and manager of the Mail, announces his retirement from the newspaper game. Mr. Allen is one of the best known newspaper men in the province. He wields a facile pen, has a thorough grasp of public questions and has contributed much to clean and healthful journalistic effort in this province. His many journalistic friends, especially through out the province, will regret to hear of his retirement, but will wish him every success in whatever sphere his lot may be casted in the future. —Moncton Times.

Hitler Assumes Dictatorship

first came to power on the morning of January 30, 1933.

Once again the Germans showed they are a disciplined people, trained to obedience. The change from a country governed at least theoretically by constitution to absolute dictatorship seemed to cause no ripple.

Dire whisperings that the reichswehr, which worshipped the aged President Von Hindenburg as a hero, might refuse obedience proved unfounded.

By nightfall, the propaganda ministry announced, the entire army and navy had taken the oath. It was administered wherever detachments happened to be or wherever ships lay at anchor or moved through the seas.

Though everything has gone smoothly, Hitler is known nevertheless, to realize that a terrific task confronts him.

It was impressed on him by various advisers, notably Wilhelm Frick and Hermann Wilhelm Goering, cabinet members—that the world looked on Von Hindenburg as the last brake on impetuous, unbridled radicalism in Germany.

Hitler's more conservative advisers urged that he must give proof to the world that under his sole leadership Germany will not embark on policies and experiments which will bring her into conflict with the whole world.

Political circles expect that the new president-chancellor will incorporate into his funeral oration for Von Hindenburg Tuesday reassuring words as to the future of the third reich.
