

PREMIER SAYS THAT INJURY DONE CANADA THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO WAS REPAIRED AT PARLEY

Toronto, Jan. 22.—The responsibility for Canada rests with those who profess the Conservative "faith," Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister, told the Young Canada Conservative Club at its first annual banquet here Saturday night. "In times of suspicion and unrest it has been to this great party that the people have always turned."

To keep faith with the best traditions of the past had been the Conservative policy since Confederation, said Mr. Bennett. By doing so, a better and more united Canada would be built up and passed down to posterity.

Mr. Bennett condemned the "short-sightedness" of the former Liberal Government that, embarking on an era of railway building at a time when Canada was already served with a transcontinental system, had placed on the country a burden of $1,500,000 a week in interest payments on capital outlay amounting to $1,000,000,000.

Old Wrong Righted

With regard to Canada's economic condition, he said that for 35 years the country had labored under the "wrong" that was done when Sir Wilfrid Laurier instituted the British preference. Not until the Imperial Economic Conference of 1932 had that their efforts in buildings, roads, power, wrong been righted, when reciprocal agreements were brought into being.

He declared that the Liberal party was without constructive policy to meet the depression, but that at every opportunity it advanced some new "ism" with which to charm the people. He urged Young Conservatives to organize, adding that the coming provincial election would give them every scope for the exercise of their new ideas.

Contrast in Policies

"The Conservative policy has been constructive, and it left a legacy of a united Dominion with one transcontinental railway biding its scattered provinces together. The Liberal Party left a legacy of two transcontinental railways in addition to the one already in existence, and impaired our financial resources for generations to come that two might exist in order to destroy all three."

"Today we have $1,000,000,000 of indirect debt to bear witness to their shortsightedness, costing us $1,500,000 a week in interest charges alone."

Preference Reviewed

Mr. Bennett briefly outlined the history of the Empire preferences, starting with the British preference granted by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1896, with no reciprocal concessions granted to Canada in return.

"For 35 long years successive governments labored in vain to undo the wrong that was done Canada in that year," Mr. Bennett declared, "until the Imperial Conference of 1932 brought into existence reciprocal agreements, the value of which is known to every one in Canada."

Canada's national integrity, her place in the world and in the Empire particularly, proved the truth of his claims, the Prime Minister declared.

"You only have to look history straight in the face to determine what political course you will follow," he added.

The Liberal Party had not a single constructive suggestion to offer in meeting the depression, the Prime Minister said. They have tried to tear down—to capitalize unrest and hardship among the people. They have been preaching strange doctrines and sowing seeds of distrust and suspicion. They say everything is bad and blame the Conservatives for it. "At every opportunity they advance some new 'ism' and try to charm the people with it. But there is only one charm—and that is constructive work. "Just as soon as the forces of general depression are routed the 'isms' fold their tents like the Arabs and quietly steal away—and 'steal' is the right word."

Worst of Depression

Mr. Bennett recalled his recent trip to Vancouver. "Canada has emerged from the great conflict," he said, "and it has been a terrifying experience." There had been other depressions but none so bad, and each succeeding downward swing had been worse because of the rapidly changing circumstances that bring distant countries closer together in thought and knowledge of each other. "All things change," he said, "but the great essential truth is that the character of our people remains."

To the Young Conservative workers the Prime Minister had one word of advice. "Organize," he urged. "The forthcoming provincial elections will give you every scope for the exercise of your new ideals. The Conservative Party has left a great monument for their efforts in buildings, roads, power and social services. Organize your efforts against the force that would see them destroyed."

Henry Hurls Defiance

Defiance to his political enemies and an invitation to them to make the most searching investigation of his life, Mr. Henry of Ontario.

Mr. Henry paid a warm tribute to the late Hon. E. A. Dunlop, Provincial Treasurer whose last days had been brightened, he said, by the realization that his effort to affect a balanced budget in the current fiscal year had been more than realized.

PRAISES THE WORK OF HON. H. H. STEVENS IN EXPOSING THE METHODS OF CHAIN STORES

(Sherbrooke Record)

It was high time that some man of position and responsibility should ring the warning bell on the riot and ruin which has come to the retail trade of Canada, through villainous and unfair competition.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, an able man and a close student of business economics, exposed the methods of the department stores, the sweat shops, the flour mills and other concerns which bedevil trade in the old Rockefeller way, killing honest competitors so that they may control trade and get big profits on cheap and tawdry wares.

Mr. Stevens is being "berated" by men whom the shoe hurts in the launching of an attack on those who are unfair and deceitful and ruinous in their methods.

R. Y. Eaton comments: "A man in his position would never make such statements unless he were certain of what he was saying, but to make such charges as applicable generally would, of course, be absurd." From C. L. Burton, of the Simpson stores:

"It is rather too bad that a Minister of the Crown should make such general statements for they are quite wrong as far, at any rate, as our country is concerned."

J. S. McLean, of Canada Packers: "Mr. Stevens' charges are utterly without foundation. The Minister made a similar statement some time ago and was then fully informed by the packers of the present position of the cattle industry."

Agree with Stevens

The farmers and stockmen of Canada are quite in agreement with Mr. Stevens that the live stock export from Canada is in the hands of amateurs, who are mighty poor merchandisers. They have not begun to take full advantage of the new market created by the lifting of the embargo and the Imperial preferential.

But Mr. McLean further says he "cannot see how any good can come from such irresponsible charges against an industry which is doing everything within its power to advance prices of livestock for the good reason that its interest lies in so doing."

Where are the old drovers and cattle buyers who at one time visited the farmers and bought up their surplus beef cattle at or near values quoted in the stock market. It is admitted by dealers who visit the Live Stock market that they find the various buyers gathered together, twiddling their thumbs, and all ready to quite the same price. There is no competition.

Whilst intelligent buyers of merchandise are aware that in many stores they are tendered cheap and parantage, the cheap and nasty, therefore, the most expensive for poor people. Only a rich man could afford to waste his money on these nameless goods.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—Danger of death to Dr. Alice L. Wynekoop if subjected to further strain today brought an end to her trial for the operating table murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta.

On the evidence of physicians that the 62-year-old defendant was in a serious condition from heart disease and complications, Judge Joseph B. David withdrew a juror from the case and declared it a mistrial.

Under the mistrial ruling, Dr. Alice must remain in the county jail until she recovers sufficient strength to against stand trial—or until death removes her from the jurisdiction of the court. Dr. Wynekoop, her family, and several physicians said they believed death was not far away.

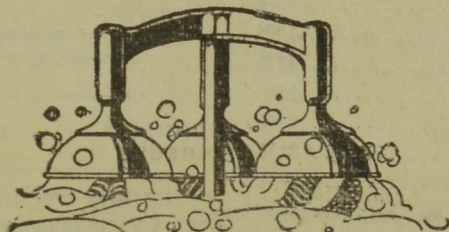

JACK RUSSELL GIVES VIEWS ON RELIEF WORK

Jack Russell, proprietor of extensive sporting camps at Ludlow is now a member of the Northumberland Municipal Council. His maiden speech delivered at the meeting last week was reported as follows in the Newcastle press:

Coun. Russell of Ludlow was the first called upon and Coun. Russell expressed his pleasure in taking his seat in this Council for the first time. He stated that he was a newcomer and had made it his business during the year to make an intensive study of conditions existing. First of all the tax situation. Many people of his Parish had no means of paying taxes. The work the men have been able to get realizes such small wages that there is no money to pay taxes. He stated that he had been in Russia during the revolution and had seen the conditions in that country. He believed that the men should receive something for their labor and that the Municipal Council should take some step to see that the workman is paid cash for his services rendered.

If one is not excitable, a crisis is just part of another day.
