THE LATE JUDGE BYRNE

There will be general regret throughout the province over the passing at his home in Bathurst last evening of Mr. Justice J. P. Byrne of the King's Bench division of the New Brunswick Supreme Court. He had not enjoyed good health for several years, but his death, which resulted from a heart attack, came as a distinct surprise to his many friends. The late Mr. Justice Byrne was a native of Sussex, Kings County, but practiced his profession at Bathurst for many years. After serving as a member of the Gloucester Municipal Council he was elected to the Legislature in 1908 as an Independent Liberal and sat in opposition to the Hazen government until 1912, when he met with defeat. In 1917 he was re-elected and joined the Foster Cabinet, formed in that year, as attorney-general which important portfolio he held until 1924, when he was elevated to the Supreme Court bench. As a member of the Legislature and chief law officer of the crown, he discharged his duties in a manner that won for him universal esteem. An experience of thirty-five years at the bar stood him in good stead as a Supreme Court Judge. His death removes from the activities of this life one who without any special advantages worked his way up by his own energy to one of the highest positions in the province, the important duties of which he discharged with credit to himself and satisfaction to the public.

A MILITARY BLUNDER

The battle of the Onio Valley, which resulted in a disastrous defeat for a British force under General Braddock, during the war with France, was re-enacted in a radio broadcast over an American station last night. The production was historically quite accurate. Braddock was a brave general, and good disciplinarian, but knew nothing whatever about Indian warfare. Col George Washington, who accompanied him on the expedition, against Fort Duschene, tried his utmost to persuade the general to send out an advance guard of colonials to dislodge the ambused Indians, but he refused to entertain the proposal. The result was that the British force was almost annihilated by their savage foes and General Braddock was fatally wounded. Washington, who had discarded his military uniform for the occasion, had several bullet holes in his coat when the unequal battle ended. General Braddock could not be persuaded to believe that a band of savage Indians stood any chance against the King's trained troops.

The death of Hon. John Stanfield at Truro, N. S., yesterday, makes another vacancy in the Canadian Senate. Senator Stanfield was the head of Stanfield's Limited, underwear manufacturers and one of the largest concerns in Eastern Canada. He had been long active in public life, being first returned to the House of Commons in 1907, when he broke the solid eighteen, the province at the previous general election having returned eighteen liberals. He was elevated to the Senate in 1920.

What a lot of high-hatting must have gone on at the annual butler's ball in New York the other night. For, if there isn't caste among butlers and others who serve the wealthy, there is caste nowhere. The affairs was in the name of charity and 3000 butlers, stewards, maids and chauffeurs were in attendance.

Eat carrots for beauty, is the latest medical advice. Certainly, just look at goats.—Portland Oregonian.

Note what beards they raise; and rabbits, what ears!

A report comes from Ottawa that a bill to provide for the retirement of Supreme Court judges at the age of seventy-five years, passed by the House of Commons last session and thrown out by the senate, will be re-enacted during the coming session, with greatly improved chances of becoming law.

Gulf stream is the world's greatest river. It is 50 miles wide and 2,000 feet deep—and makes Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida well worth visiting in winter.

Some folks don't consider their family connections of much relative importance.

Farmers, being sensible men, don't like war; but war made wheat $2 a bushel.

No five year plan for Turkey should fail to take cognizance of the recurrence of Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Talk may be cheap, but silence often is of unspeakable value.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

This cold winter has been pie to the fuel dealers.

If one is not excitable, a crisis is just part of another day.

After all, the real mission of a bronze statue is to influence those who are left alive.

Men have to follow the fashion because they can't find the old-fashioned clothes they are used to.

Some men phaspheme a great deal in order to be taken seriously and this is exactly what prevents it.

Is it a sense of piety that makes a man who goes to church Sunday morning feel better for it?

Even troubles and debts have their beneficient uses. They take a woman's mind of her hair and a man's off his golf.

A man is born free, but as soon as he is old enough he hurries around and obligates himself to as many people as he can.

Man is supposed to be the stronger sex, but show us one who can dress a year-old baby is less than 40-minutes.

People speak of "enemies" as if everybody had them. Millions of people have no enemies at all; only here and there a person who mildly dislikes them.

One thing that simply can't be "modernized" is love. Trying to make a success of marriage, without the good old-fashioned brand is about as futile as trying to make bread and leaving out the flour.

HIS DIET RULES ALL WRONG

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 23—It turned out to be a fine reducing diet, but in seeking a divorce Mrs. Marie Lonetti disclosed that she apparently didn't want to reduce.

She charged that John A. Lonetti her husband, didn't have her enough to eat—the menu was mostly beans and potatoes, she said— and caused her to drop in weight from 160 pounds to 125.

CO-EDS USE $147 FOR CLOTHES

Emporia, Kan., Jan. 23—Coeds at the College of Emporia spend an average of $147.52 per year for clothes, according to a three-year survey completed by home economics students under the direction of Miss Margaret Lindsay. The figure included cost of cosmetics, considered a part of the "dress" of any coed.

MUCH BETTER

The condition of Mrs. Alfred Barker shows marked improvement today at the Victoria Hospital.
