WORLD'S GREATEST BUFFALO HERD is Now in Canada, at WAINWRIGHT PARK, ALBERTA

That the Canadian Government is meeting with signal success in its efforts to preserve the buffalo from the swift extinction which threatened it a few years ago, is demonstrated in a report on the growth of the herd at Wainwright Buffalo Park, Alberta, just received by Mr. H. R. Chaciton, General Advertising Agent of the Grand Trunk System, from Mr. J. B. Harkin, Dominion Parks Commissioner. The report shows that in April, 1909, the herd numbered 402. Since then it has gradually increased at the rate of about 200 per annum, until today it numbers 2,077. During the period from 1909 to 1913, 338 head were imported at different times from other herds, the main increase accruing from breeding. The small loss of 71 from various causes since 1909 is high testimony to the suitability of the park as a breeding ground, and the care taken of the herd, especially during the winter, when food is difficult for the animals to find, and it becomes necessary to feed them.

The history of this Wainwright Park herd of buffalo, now the largest in the world, dates back to 1872, when one of the Pend d'Oreille Indians captured four little bison calves—two bulls and two heifers—by cutting them out of a stampeded herd on the Flathead reservation in the State of Montana. In accordance with a peculiar characteristic, often noticed by old plainsmen, these young creatures obediently followed the horses of the hunters who had slain or driven off their mothers. The Indian in question gave them to the Mission of St. Ignace, where they were kept as pets and became as domesticated as ordinary cattle. When the heifers were four years old, each had a calf. From that time on they gradually increased in number, until, in 1884, there were thirteen head, and the Indian owner, finding the care of them too great a tax on his scant resources, decided to sell them. Ten head were purchased for $250 apiece by C. A. Allard and Michel Pablo, who were ranching on the reservation, and were shrewd enough to see that specimens of what was even then supposed to be practically an extinct animal would eventually become very valuable. The buffalo herd increased under their careful supervision, and in a few years it became possible to sell specimens at very high prices. Some idea of the average rate of increase may be deduced from the observed fact that half the cows give birth to calves every year, while twin calves are not uncommon. As a rule the bison calf is a very hardy creature. There are instances of the Pablo-Allard calves finding their feet in less than a minute after birth and showing fight within half an hour.

In 1906, Hon. Frank Oliver, then Minister of the Interior, obtained for the Dominion Government an option on the 600 unsold head belonging to Messrs. Pablo and Allard, and eventually they were all bought for $200,000. The "round-up" lasted two months, and was carried out by 75 cowboys, horsemen picked for their ability from every part of the great Montana ranges.

The long railway journey of 1,200 miles to Alberta was accomplished with a loss of less than one per cent. Since it became the property of the Canadian Government, this great herd has fared well in the new National Park at Wainwright. The park, which is one of the features on the Grand Trunk Pacific main line between Winnipeg and Edmonton, is becoming a favorite resort of the traveller who is interested in these "living antiquities" of the animal kingdom. It has an area of 160 square miles and contains many clean-bottomed lakes, endless chains of hay-swamps, and sheltered river valleys, and is securely enclosed with a high fence of wire and tamarac posts. A number of deer are enclosed, so that the bison have companions in their spacious reservation.

In addition to preserving the buffalo, the Government is making experiments with a herd of cattalo, an animal produced by the crossing of the buffalo with the domestic cattle, the object being to produce a strain of beef-producing animals particularly suitable to the more northern and rugged regions of Canada.

The anatomy of the buffalo is favorable to the carrying of heavy carcasses of beef. They possess an additional pair of ribs, as well as much longer spines. Although these extra ribs are not always perpetuated in the cattalo, the length of back persists. Along these spines very heavy muscles are carried, enabling the animals to carry an exceedingly high percentage of beef on the back, which is the most valuable part of the carcass.

The Printing and Publicity Specialist Talks To His Son

"Say, John, I feel quite sick today," said Mr. Blank. "Please visit the different doctors in town, and find out who will cure me for the least money. Get your quotations tabulated and then let me see them. Of course we will engage the doctor who charges the least."

"Why, I never heard of such a thing," said John. "The idea of getting quotations from a doctor; it's the asylum for you."

"Well now, why not? I am a specialist in printing and publicity. I study my business just as carefully as any doctor can do. If I do say it that shouldn't, I have just as much brains as the average doctor. I strive to give my customers the benefit of my knowledge, my artistic skill and judgement and my ideas on publicity. I give service as the term is understood in the Twentieth Century."

"When some people around here have a little printing to be done, they visit all the printing offices, get quotations from each one, and then give the work to the man who gives the lowest figures."

"The ordinary user of printing knows his own business, but he is no more a judge of the work of printing than he is a judge of what sort of medicine a doctor should give him for the cure of his ailment. If people ask me for quotations and pass me by if my price happens to be a little more than the other fellow, why shouldn't I apply the same method to the doctor, lawyer, dentist and painter? Why not? It's a mighty poor rule that won't work more than one way."
