DR. C. C. JONES A SPEAKER AT THE N. B. TEACHERS' INSTITUTE, MANY SUBJECTS WERE DISCUSSED

Saint John, June 29—Notable address for the teacher" was the subject of dresses were heard at yesterday's address by Dr. C. C. Jones, pre- sessions of the New Brunswick Teach- sident of the University of New ers' Institute while members were Brunswick. He had been attending much impressed with a Junior Red teachers' institutes for almost 40 Cross demonstration. The convention years, he said, remarking the improve- concludes today when various busi- ment in programs which had been ness matters will be dealt with, a consistent with the progress of educa- demonstration of physical training tion.

DR. C. C. JONES
Chancellor of the University of New Brunswick will be given by 60 pupils of the Sacred Heart School, Bathurst, and Dr. D. G. Davis, principal of the Nova Scotia Normal College, and J. E. De-Grace, Campbellton, inspector of schools, will be the special speakers.

Dr. A. S. McFarlane, chief superintendent of education, president of the institute, is presiding and yesterday the morning session held in the Capital Theatre was addressed by Dr. J. Clarence Webster, of Shediac, who dealt with the subject of history value of the New Brunswick Museum. Dr. H. H. Hagerman, principal of the Provincial Normal School, dealt with the teaching film as an important educational aid. Both morning addresses were fully illustrated with slides and films.

Dr. E. A. Hardy, who spoke in the afternoon on the teaching of literature as a fine art, urged the teachers to support a movement for the establishment of a non-commercial motion picture exchange. Such an exchange would be able to bring into Canada duty free a great store of educational films that cannot be obtained at the present time without payment of a prohibitive duty.

Dr. E. A. Hardy.

"Is the teaching of literature a fine art?" was the theme of Dr. Hardy's afternoon address. To teach artistically there had to be a knowledge of the subject far in advance, a technical skill and an achievement of beauty, grace, elegance and force. Dr. Hardy used poetry to illustrate his contention. He quoted "A. E." George William Russell as defining poetry as something that "writes itself." To teach poetry it was necessary to read of poets and poetry and to read poetry.

Dr. Hardy said a complete library of the works of Canadian poets would comprise 1,200 volumes, but he feared Canadian people had not got the habit of buying the works of Canadian poets. He asked the teachers to buy the works of Canadian poets.

He deplored the fact that examination papers on literature became largely questions on the content.

Having received the 900 entries in the Canadian Author's Association competition he gave assurance there was to be no lack of Canadian poets. He noted the nine awards in that competition went to the provinces of British Columbia, Alberta, Quebec and New Brunswick.

As to how to teach literature, especially poetry, as a fine art, Dr. Hardy believed the creating of "the right atmosphere at the outset was essential. He generally achieved that result by first reading contemporary fugitive verse.

The incentives to fine art he described as the urge to achieve perfection, the seeking of appreciation and the gratitude of patrons.

C. H. Cochrane conducted community singing in the interval between the addresses.

Dr. C. C. Jones

"The value of cultural education,

He felt it was a matter of pride that Bliss Carman and Charles G. D. Roberts, mentioned by Dr. Hardy as among Canada's greatest poets, were natives of New Brunswick and this province had produced another poet, Frank Sherman, whose works were to be collected and published and who, it was claimed, equalled or excelled Carman and Roberts.

"If teaching is to become a profession, said Dr. Jones, "it is a fundamental necessity that the teacher should be also, to a very great extent, a scholar. I do not wish either to slight or to over-emphasize the importance of teacher training, but training can in no way take the place of the prime necessity, a sound education. You cannot train an uneducated person to be a successful teacher."

Dr. Jones claimed the teacher to be in a very real sense, the guardian of the state. He urged teachers to improve their general culture by reading. He made practical suggestions in the way of books and types of books to read.

Value of Travel

The value of travel for cultural development he stressed also. He urged the teachers to take their profession seriously.

"Do not be content with merely keeping school!" said Dr. Jones. "Make your influence felt both inside and outside the school-room. Do not be afraid to venture in new paths. Give some rein to your individuality. Do not be afraid to try new methods, even to experiment occasionally. Widen your mental horizon by all the means in your power—by reading, by study, by social contacts of various kinds, and, if possible, by observation through travel. Let your own growth and development be an inspiration to those under your influence."

Introducing the presentation of a model Junior Red Cross meeting Dr. McFarlane referred to Junior Red Cross as an uplifting factor, especially in the lower grades, and said Junior Red Cross had the hearty endorsement of educational officials.

Under the direction of Miss Margaret Hamilton and Miss Muriel Thompson, Junior Red Cross members of Winter Street School carried out most capably their Junior Red Cross meeting. Jean Morehouse reported as secretary of "Jolly Workers" of grade 3 and Olive Myles as secretary of "Merry Mariners" grade 4. Isadore Babb as treasurer announced the two branches had 94 members and their finances were in good standing.

Garth Gunter was the very efficient president of the Junior Red Cross. A Junior Red Cross pageant was then most effectively presented by the children.

his head. The men at the stand carried the victim off the street between the stand and the Arctic Rink. Policemen arrived and they summoned Dr. Arthur Vanwart.

Condition Serious

Dr. A. F. Vanwart, in his testimony described the condition of Doherty as he found him as "serious" and had the injured boy taken immediately to Victoria Public Hospital where he ascertained the full extent of his injuries as above. The broken jaw, Dr. Vanwart stated could, in his opinion be the result of a right handed blow with the fist and the fractured skull would result, he thought from the fall on the concrete sidewalk.

The witnesses called this morning included John Doherty, Dr. A. F. Vanwart, C. E. McLean, Harry Davidson, Percy Lyons and Constable Kenneth Foster of the city police force.

Committed for Trial

At the conclusion of the preliminary hearing the prisoner was committed for trial at the September sitting of the York County Court.

PUBLIC WORKS PROGRAM IS IN MUCH FAVOR

The House Approves the Principle, But Liberal Members Complain of the Allotment.

Ottawa, Ont., June 28—The $40,000, 000 building program to provide jobs and stimulate general recovery came a step closer to reality today when the House of Commons gave second reading to the government bill. Every man in the House gave his approval to the plan although many expressed disappointment their own end of the country had been neglected.

At the end of the day, the decks were cleared to send the bill to the Senate tomorrow in the usual prorogation rush of legislation. It was expected many gangs of men would be at work in a few weeks' time, starting construction of the post offices, military barracks, warehouses, breakwaters, wharfs, immigration and custom sheds enumerated in the bill.

Opposed in Senate

The Bank of Canada bill passed second reading in the Senate today but not until it had been vigorously opposed by Senators J. P. B. Casgrain, Montreal, and James Murdock, Toronto. Senator Arthur Meighen, government leader in the Upper House, defended the bill.

Senator Casgrain spoke against the measure because he claimed the proposed central bank would be an adjunct of the Bank of England.

Senator Murdock feared that the chartered banks of Canada would gain control through "under-cover men" sitting on its board of directors.

That the bank bill was airtight excluded any official or employee of the chartered banks sitting on the board, was stated by Senator Meighen. The bill would no more connect the central bank of Canada with the Bank of England than with the Bank of France.

The bill was referred to the banking and commerce committee of the Senate.

To Aid Exporters

United States exporters to Canada will, it is expected, benefit materially as a result of legislation now before the House of Commons dealing with the application of the dumping duty.

Two bills, one amending the Customs Act and the other the Customs Tariff Act, are now making their way through the House. If they are approved they will give to the government power to ignore excise duties or excise taxes in the exporting country when figuring the fair market value of a commodity for special or dumping duty.

The dumping duty becomes applicable when it is found that goods to which it applies are being shipped into Canada at less than the fair market value. The dump is the equivalent of the difference between the declared value placed on the goods and the actual fair market value in the country of origin as determined by the department of national revenue. In figuring the fair market value, the department has been including excise taxes and duties which, of course, add materially to the amount fixed.

TEMPERANCE IN WORK HIS RULE

Berlin, June 29—"Temperance and routine are my rules of life," President Paul van Hindenburg confided to a friend a few days ago before leaving Berlin for his family estate off Neudeck, in East Prussia, where he always spends his Summers. He will pass his 88th birthday next October. "And by temperance I mean not only in food, drink and play, but more than all, work, which has shortened the lives of so many," he continued.
