INSTITUTE OF PARASITOLOGY
OPENED AT MACDONALD COLLEGE

MacDonald College, June 28—The official opening of the institute of parasitology here yesterday by Dr. H. M. Tory, president of the National Research Council, puts MacDonald College in the proud possession of having within its grounds the only institute in the world specially built for working on animal parasites and the occasion was marked by speeches that gave high praise to the Quebec Government who have provided the building and the National Research Council who have undertaken the maintenance of the institute.

A portion of the building has been in operation for some 18 months past and it has been drawing its research material from stock maintained locally, from packing plants throughout the Dominion, from voluntary collectors stationed in every province, including the Northwest Territories situated within the Arctic Circle, from the Quebec Zoological Gardens and from individual naturalists stock owners and other throughout the Dominion and in the West Indies, as well as from other parts of the Empire.

Papers Published

It has already published a host of papers on parasitology, which are standard reference work and its value has been proved in many directions. The building consists of research rooms, general laboratories, experimental rooms, aquarium and even a sheep breeding room, and complete in every detail.

Traced History

Dr. H. M. Tory, in formerly opening the institute, traced the history of its development, mentioning that the original idea was that it would undertake research in parasitology not only for Canada but for the various parts of the Empire, and that was why the Empire marketing board had agreed to share the cost of maintenance but with the disappearance of this board the responsibility rested upon the National Research Council itself under the direction of a committee approved by the council and McGill University. Dwelling on the importance of research work Dr. Tory mentioned that the average of human life in the last 50 years, through the application mainly of bacteriological science, had been lengthened by over twenty years. Intellectually, from the same source had sprung a series of institutions for the scientific training of men and the accumulating knowledge had become part of the intellectual life of everyone who pretended to have any claim to participating in the world's thought.

The increase in the world's wealth as a consequence of bacteriological developments paralleled the tremendous economic developments resulting from the physical sciences and must be given an equal measure of importance. Similarly the modern foundation for the study of parasitology had started a new era in the development of science the value of which to human life and human happiness would, without question have to be measured by similar standards.

Five Stars and Three Maestros Feature the "Variety Hour"

George Jessel will introduce five stellar vocal acts and the music of Isam Jones, Freddie Rich and Mark Warnow as highlights of George's variety hour over the WABC-Columbia network Sunday, July 1, from 8:00 to 8:30 P. M., A. S. T. In addition to "MC-ing" the acts and offering comedy bits, Jessel will sing "I Love A Parade", aided by a double male chorus. Performances by Jerry Cooper, singing "For All I Know"; Evan Evans, offering "Wagon Wheels"; and the feminine stars, Mary Eastman, Sylvia Froos and the Do Re Mi trio, will complete the vocalists roster.

Jessel will "telephone" Jones, now in Atlantic City, to play a medley of his own song compositions. Other orchestral features will include Warnow's arrangement of "Flying Down to Rio" and Rich's version of "Swanee" and a medley of "Rose" songs.

In forthcoming George Jessel Variety Hours, Little Jack Little's orchestra from Atlantic City, and Gerde Grofe's Orchestra from the Claremont Inn, will be heard on July 8 and July 15, respectively.

STRAWBERRY TIME IS HERE

Strawberry time is with us longer than it used to be. Thus it becomes very easy to put off making jams and jellies that we think of making until suddenly, strawberries for this year are no more. So just as a reminder, and in case this week-end offers some tempting berries we'll have a few recipes tonight.

First, however, we will give the recipe for the salad in Saturday's menu.

JELLIED CUCUMBER SALAD

One good sized cucumber; one medium can sliced pineapple; one half cup lemon juice; one cup granulated sugar; two tablespoons gelatine; one cup of gingerale.

Soak the gelatine five minutes in half a cup of cold water. Drain all the juice from the pineapple, saving it and cut the pineapple into small shreds. Run the cucumbers through the meat chopper and let it drain. Mix lemon and pineapple juice with the sugar, let boil five minutes, stir in the soaked gelatine (after removing from fire) and, when this is dissolved add the gingerale and a few drops of green coloring to tint a pale green. Cool and when slightly stiffened (about to the consistency of egg white), add the pineapple, and cucumber. Chill. Slice and serve on lettuce with Mayonnaise. This makes a large quantity but it is a delicious salad—and some may be desired for Sunday's supper. Or the recipe may be cut in half, using a smaller cucumber instead of the large one.

STRAWBERRY AND RHUBARB CONSERVE

Put together in a saucepan a quart of hulled perfect strawberries, one half box of chopped seeded raisins, one pound of white sugar, two quarts of tender, diced rhubarb and the pulp and grated yellow rind of two fine oranges. Let these cook together very slowly for half an hour. Then add one fourth pound of coarsely chopped nuts, mix well, put in sterilized jelly glasses and seal with paraffin.

STRAWBERRY JAM

Four pounds of fine strawberries; two and one half of sugar.

Hull (of course, wash and drain all slightly, add the sugar and let stand about half an hour. Then cook, stirring often for half an hour, or until thickened as desired. Put in sterilized jelly glasses and seal with paraffin.

UNCOOKED STRAWBERRY PRESERVES

Hull (of course wash and drain all berries. To every cup sugar. Place them in a bowl in layers. Cover and let stand on ice overnight. Next day put in sterilized jars and seal airtight.

CHERRY STRAWBERRY PRESERVES

Use equal quantities of red cherries and fine strawberries. Wash, drain and hull the berries, stem and stone the cherries. For each pound of fruit use a pound of sugar. Put in large bowl in layers. Cover, let stand over night. Drain off juice into preserving gettle next day, boil to a thick syrup, add the fruit, cook slowly until clear and transparent. Put in sterilized jars and seal airtight while hot.

STRAWBERRY-RASPBERRY PRESERVES

To equal parts of hulled perfect strawberries, and fine red raspberries. Use a pound of sugar for every pound of fruit. Put them in a deep bowl in layers with the sugar, cover and let stand over night. Next day measure and pour off juice into a preserving kettle. For every pint of juice add a cup of currant juice and boil it until a drop from a spoon on a cold plate will retain its shape. Add fruit, boil three minutes of actual boiling. Skim, fill sterilized jars and seal airtight.

Pray not to be too sensitive; or if you are, not to show it.
