CHANGE IN THE
DIVORCE LAWS
FOR BRITAIN?

London, England, Jan. 30—Another attempt has been made to bring the British divorce laws into conformity with the the more advanced systems prevailing in other countries. At the present time adultery is the only ground recognized in British courts.

The British system was found unsatisfactory by a royal commission on divorce twenty one years ago. New grounds were recommended in its majority report. The law remained unaltered.

The new matrimonial causes bill, which has been introduced in the House of Commons, is similar to one which passed through all its stages in the House of Lord in 1920, but never became a law. It proposes to permit divorce to either husband or wife on the following grounds.

That the respondent has committed adultery; has deserted the petitioner for at least three years; has been continuously a certified lunatic for the immediately preceding five years; has treated the petitioner with cruelty; is undergoing imprisonment under a committed death sentence; is an in-

WELCOME ARRIVAL
North Sydney, Jan. 30—The Steamship Montcalm made her way through the ice to Ingonish yesterday and brought supplies to three thousand people, who have been isolated for some days. She was given a great welcome by the populace many of whom ventured out on the ice to greet her.
