THE POWER OF THE PRESS

The Toronto Globe which has for several years been posing as an independent newspaper, threw itself into the recent Ontario election campaign on the Liberal side with all its old time vigor, and has been given much credit for the victory achieved by Mitchell Hepburn. An Ottawa correspondent in referring to the self-styled independent press and to the Globe's part in the campaign says: "One of the most striking changes of the last few years has taken place in the public press. In the old days in a town of any size there were two papers, one Liberal and one Conservative. Each hammered the other. The situation was not without its political advantages. It increased the interest in politics and in public life. The trouble is that they erred too often on the side of partisanship—in the long run the broad fences of economic change were too great for them. They merged or submerged. In most towns and small cities the change was not so rapid. Here a touch of politics was not taboo. But the virulence was not so deep, the tone was softer and hammer blows fell infrequently between election time. In the old days in the province of Ontario the Toronto Globe was a flaming sword on behalf of the Liberal cause. But the Globe in the last few years had weakened in its political allegiance. Its support had become indifferent. But its sword had not been dulled, it was only sheathed and ready to be drawn and throughout the campaign the Toronto Globe was in the fight from start to finish, waging the battle with all its old force and vigor. It must have renewed the life and spirit of the old guard and made many a good Scot from Western Ontario feel that he heard once more the pibroch's martial note leading the clan to victory. The Globe's dilatory notes in past year became its strength now—when a wavering battalion rallies to the charge, it carries courage through the shaken ranks of the army."

"Germany has ceased to be a part of integral Europe", says the London Times in a recent editorial. It ceased to be a part of modern Europe soon after the outbreak of the great war in 1914. German culture was responsible for the sinking of the Cunard Liner Lusitania, the most diabolical crime ever committed on the high seas. It was to prevent the brand of culture of which Germany boasts from spreading over the world that sixty thousand Canadians sacrificed their lives during the great war. Recent events have made it clear that they did not die in vain. Canadians today grumble over taxes and high cost of government, but they should be devoutly thankful that Germany lost out in the great war.

Acting Chief Justice Ives of the Alberta Supreme Court after a jury had returned a verdict against Premier Brownlee, has thrown the case out of court. The jury whose duty it is to decide on questions of fact, decided that the seduction charge had been established and awarded the plaintiff $10,000 damages and her father $5000. Premier Brownlee as a result of this verdict has resigned. It is likely that an appeal will be entered against the decision of the presiding judge.

QUEEN URGES FRANCE TO HELP
Paris, July 5—Perette, last queen of Moheli Island, a dot of green in the Indian ocean, petitioned the government today to increase her allowance so she may buy three cows for her mountain farm in Eastern France. For 35 years Perette has lived on the farm as the wife of Brig. Camille Paul, formerly of the military gendarmerie.

She was reigning queen of the island when Paul went there as a military policeman.

Madam Marie Currie, the noted scientist who conferred a boon on humanity by the discovery of radium passed away yesterday at a Sanatorium at Sallanches, France. Her name will go down in history as one of the outstanding women of the twentieth century. She had been honored by many governments as one of the greatest scientists of all time.

Judging by recent atrocities at Berlin, German culture about which so much was heard of during the great war, seems to have fallen from its high estate.

If the German people are not already tired of Hitler and his methods the indications are that they soon will be.

Delinquent Taxes Was Discussed by Council

Warden's View
Warden Morrison said that delinquent taxes represented a serious problem for which a solution must be found. It was important that the delinquent taxes should be reduced. He was glad to hear the views of the different councillors on the subject.

Council's Power
The county solicitor quoted from the law to show that the council had power to appoint a collecting justice of the peace. He said that the secretary-treasurer could proceed against real estate owners for all taxes due.

Coun. Doherty remarked that the solicitor's opinion was not in accord with that of R. B. Hanson, M. P.

The county solicitor said that a collector could only enforce an execution against goods and chattels, and could not take the body.

County solicitor said that in Victoria one man did the tax collecting for all the parishes and the system was working out well. In Carleton County he understood that there were one or two collectors. He thought some more satisfactory scheme might be worked in York County.

Annual Visit

Coun. Dunphy moved that the councillors pay their annual visit to the Municipal Home during the afternoon. The motion was seconded by Coun. Ebbett and adopted.

Coun. Estey regretted that after a lengthy discussion that no action had been taken with regard to the collection of delinquent taxes.

Committee Named
Coun. Robertson moved, seconded by Coun. Dunphy, that a committee of three be appointed by the warden to formulate a scheme for the collection of delinquent taxes and report on Friday morning.

The motion was adopted and the warden named as the committee Couns. Barry, Wetmore and Estey.

The Market Question

Coun. Robertson for the committee appointed to confer with the city authorities on the matter of an indoor market, submitted a verbal report. He read a communication from Ald. McKnight, the chairman of the city market committee, who stated that the matter was brought up at the council's June meeting, but received scant support. Ald. McKnight called attention to the regulation governing the Saint John city market where stalls were rented, and a tax imposed on the different commodities offered for sale.

Coun. Robertson, continuing, said it was evident that the city authorities did not favor the indoor market proposition. It was his opinion, however, that the agitation should be kept up, as he considered a covered market to be a necessity. In conclusion he suggested that another be named on the committee in his place.

Coun. Dunphy agreed with Coun. Robertson that the agitation should be carried on until a covered market was established.

Coun. Robertson suggested that a councillor living near the city be appointed on the committee.

Court House Market

Coun. Doherty pointed out that the county already possessed a market established at the court house some years ago at considerable cost. He wanted to know why it was not utilized.

The warden announced that he would name Coun. Waugh as a member of the committee.

Coun. Doherty said he had lived in Saint John and could say that the farmers were not satisfied with the market in that city.

On motion of Coun. Seymour the council separated until 2:30 o'clock p.m.

NEWSPAPERS WILL PRINT ADS FOR LIQUOR

E. G. Odell To Be a One-Man Liquor Commission For Ontario.

Toronto, July 4—Edmond G. Odette, who has announced his selection by Premier-elect Mitchell F. Hepburn as a one-man commission to replace the present Ontario Liquor Control Board, declared here last night he proposed to permit all periodicals and press in the province to accept advertising from breweries and distillers. He said he was convinced the Ontario newspapers and magazines had been "penalized" long enough in the matter of liquor advertising.

"For a good many years", he said, "I have felt that our Ontario papers have been unfairly penalized from taking liquor advertising, especially when papers and magazines from border cities in the United States, come into Ontario all the time, carrying all kinds of advertising of beer and liquors.

"In my opinion it would not be amiss to permit our own papers and periodicals to take such advertising subject first of course to any censorship and restrictions that I, in charge of liquor management, may see fit to impose."

He explained, however, this was his proposal and that any action would not be forthcoming until it was passed upon by Premier-elect Mitchell F. Hepburn and his government. He declared newspapers opposed to advertising liquors "need not take the advertising."
