SENTENCE OF FIVE YEARS IN PENITENTIARY FOR WM. DONOHUE

Judge Crocket Considered Youth of Girl in Case--Civil Cases Will Come up on August 22nd

Pte. William Donohue, of the 140th Battalion, convicted of criminal assault upon Charlotte McCoy, was sentenced this morning by His Honor Judge Crocket in the Court of King's Bench, to five years' imprisonment in Dorchester penitentiary.

The prisoner took his sentence with little show of feeling.

Donohue appeared in civilian clothing, orders being issued that he was not to appear in uniform. Owing to the shortness of notice, Deputy Sheriff Timmins loaned the accused some of his own clothing.

His Honor, addressing the prisoner, said: "I regret exceedingly to have to sentence a man enlisted for overseas service and who had donned the King's uniform. For an offence such as that of which you have been convicted the law has provided the severest penalty. There may have been cases with circumstances more aggravated, as well as cases with circumstances less aggravated. I would have been disposed to regard the circumstances but for the youth of the girl. You no doubt believed you could induce her to consent, and failing that, you employed force. I am disposed to be as lenient as possible, having regard to the gravity of your offence, and being consistent with my own sense of duty."
