The BLACK BOX

E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

Novellized from the Photo Play of the Same Name. Produced by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

"Not so fast," she advised. "French is a good sort in his way, but he's prejudiced just now against the boss.
I'm not sure that this evidence would go far by itself."

"It's evidence enough for us to go to Craig, though! What we have got to do is to get a confession out of him, somehow!"

Laura studied her companion, for a moment, curiously.

"Taking some interest in Mr. Quest, kid, ain't you?"

Lenora looked up. Then her head suddenly sank into her hands. She knew quite well that her secret had escaped her. Laura patted her shoulder.

"That's all right, child," she said soothingly. "We'll see him through this, somehow or other."

"Laura," exclaimed Lenora, "we will save Mr. Quest and we will get hold of Craig! I have a plan. Listen!"

CHAPTER XIII.

Craig's surprise was real enough as he opened the back door of the professor's house on the following morning and found Lenora standing on the threshold.

Lenora smiled pleasantly.

"I came to this door," she said, "because I wanted a little talk with you."

Craig's attitude was perfect. He was mystified but he remained respectful.

"Will you come inside?" he invited.

She shook her head.

"I am afraid," she confessed, "of what I am going to say being overheard.
Come with me down to the garage for a moment."

He opened the doors of the garage, leaving the keys in the lock, and they both passed inside.

"You can say what you please here without the slightest fear of being overheard, miss," Craig remarked.

Lenora nodded, and breathed a prayer to herself. She was nearer the door than Craig by about half a dozen paces. Her hand groped in the little bag she was carrying and gripped something hard. She clenched her teeth for a moment. Then the automatic pistol flashed out through the gloom.

"Craig," she threatened, "if you move I shall shoot you."

It seemed as though the man were a coward. He began to tremble, his lips twitched, his eyes grew larger and rounder.

"What is it?" he faltered. "What do you want?"

"Just this," Lenora said firmly. "I suspect you to be guilty of the crime for which Sanford Quest is in prison.
I am going to have you questioned.
If you are innocent you have nothing to fear. If you are guilty there will be someone here before long who will extract the truth from you."

The man's face was an epitome of terror. Even his knees shook. Lenora felt herself grow calmer with every moment.

"I am going outside to send a message," she told him. "I shall return presently."

"Don't go," he begged suddenly.

"Don't leave me! I am innocent. I have done nothing wrong. If you keep me here, you will do more harm than you can dream of."

"It is for other people to decide about your innocence," Lenora said calmly. "I have nothing to do with that. If you are wise you will stop here quietly."

"Have you said anything to Mr.
Ashleigh, miss?" the man asked piteously.

"Not a word."

A expression of relief shone for a moment upon his face. Lenora pointed to a stool.

"Sit down there and wait quietly," she ordered.

He obeyed without a word. She left the place, locked the door securely, and made her way round to the other side of the garage—the side hidden from the house. Here, at the far corner, she drew a little pocket wireless from her bag and set it on the window sill. Very slowly she sent her message:

I have Craig here in the professor's garage, locked up. If our plan has succeeded, come at once. I am waiting for you.

There was no reply. She sent the message again and again. Suddenly, during a pause, there was a little flash upon the plate. A message was coming to her. She transcribed it with beating heart:

O. K. Coming.

The guard swung open the wicket in front of Quest's cell.

"Young woman to see you, Quest," he announced. "Ten minutes, and no loud talking, please."

Quest moved to the bars. It was Laura who stood there. She wasted very little time in preliminaries. Having satisfied herself that the guard was out of hearing, she leaned as close as she could to Quest.

"Look here," she said, "Lenora's crazy with the idea that Craig has done these jobs—Craig, the professor's servant, you know. We used the phototelesme yesterday afternoon and saw him burn something in the professor's study. Lenora went up straight away and got hold of the ashes."

"Smart girl," Quest murmured, nodding approvingly. "Well?"

"There are distinct fragments," Laura continued, "of embroidered stuff such as the Salvation Army girl might

"If You Move I Shall Shoot You!" have been wearing. We put them on one side, but they ain't enough evidence. Lenora's idea is that you should get hold of Craig and hypnotize him into a confession."

"That's all right," Quest replied,
"but how am I to get hold of him?"

Laura glanced once more carelessly around to where the guard stood.

"Lenora's gone up to the professor's again this afternoon. She is going to try and get hold of Craig and lock him in the garage. If she succeeds, she will send a message by wireless at three o'clock. It is half-past two now."

"Well?" Quest exclaimed. "Well?"

"You can work this guard, if you want to," Lenora went on. "I have seen you tackle worse cases. He seems dead easy. Then let me in the cell, take my clothes and leave me here."

Quest followed the scheme in his mind quickly.

"It is all right," he decided, "but I am not at all sure that they can really hold me on the evidence they have got. If they can't, I shall be doing myself more harm than good in this way."

"It's no use unless you can get hold of Craig quickly," Laura said. "He is getting the scares, as it is."

"I'll do it," Quest decided. "Call the guard, Laura."

She obeyed. The man came good-naturedly toward them.

Quest looked at him steadfastly through the bars.

"I want you to come inside for a moment," Quest repeated softly. "Unlock the door, please, take the key off your bunch and come inside."

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

For soiled matting dissolve some oxalic acid in water, and apply with scrubbing brush. Wash afterwards with clean water.

Raisins are good food when added to a plain dish makes it interesting and at the same time nourishing. Brown bread, for instance is delicious if raisins are added.

Cakes will stick to a pan that is greased with butter. The salt and water in the butter cause the trouble.
To avoid the sticking melt the butter, a low it to cool and then grease the pans.

Borax is of great aid in the household. Some of its purposes are as follows: A disinfectant and an antiseptic, a washing powder for both dining room and kitchen brightens chinaware, glassware and silver, purifies coffee and teapots from musty taste or odor and a small amount added to the bath gives splendid results, being much better than soap.

If a small box is nailed to the wall just above the gas stove the used matches may be easily thrown in one-half of it and the unused ones into the other, thus keeping the matches off the stove.

When peanuts are salted in quantities it is better to buy them by the bushel unroasted. As it takes too much time to blanch the nuts as well as salt them, they can be salted as they come from the shells using plenty of butter and salt.
The skin become brown and are easily removed when the peanuts are cooked. They taste almost as when done the ordinary way, but more butter must be used.

WORLDLY WISDOM.

Some people would feel awfully hurt if you should rob them of their belief in a personal devil—they were depending on him to help them get even with their enemies.

It always hurts a man's feelings to discover that just because he was generous and courteous enough to become "engaged" to a girl for the kissing season she expects him to marry her.

The difference between a tyro and an artist in love-making is merely that the former says "I love you," as though it were a jest, while the latter were a declaration of eternal devotion.

Early to bed and early to rise—is a theory only.
