

MEMORIAL SERVICE AT BOSTON FOR KITCHENER

(Boston Globe.)

The memorial service for Earl Kitchener at the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, on Tremont street, last evening, attracted a crowd that would have more than filled the edifice twice over. As it was the door had to be closed at 7 o'clock, a half hour before the service began.

Soon after 7 o'clock the regular Sunday evening choral service was held on the steps of the Cathedral Church. Many of those outside thought it was a part of the memorial service.

The memorial service to Earl Kitchener was under the auspices of the Sons and Daughters of St. George and the British Army and Navy Veterans. It was the regular Episcopal memorial service, with processional singing, responses and a selection from Psalms. The congregational singing included "Crossing the Bar" and "O God Our Help in Ages Past."

The memorial address was by Rev. Edward F. Sullivan, of West Newton. He pointed out that Kitchener in his personality symbolized Great Britain, as Joffre symbolized France. The qualities that were characteristic of Kitchener were distinctively British qualities. In war he stood for Britain aroused—calm and defiant. He was not a poser, he was a doer, and had very little of the popular hero in his make-up.

The best summary of Earl Kitchener," said the speaker, "was by Lord Roberts, when he wanted the hero of Khartoum during the Boer war. He said: 'I do not expect of Kitchener rapid strategy. I want his cool calculation and inflexible strength.' His method was to advance slowly. He was masterly in preparation and had a passion for efficiency. He epitomized the British character in that he was not picturesque, but he was persistent and was harmless until aroused."

Dr. Sullivan said that when Kitchener fought in the French army in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 he saw that French bravery was useless in the face of Prussian efficiency and science. France was beaten by the military preparedness of Prussia, so it could be said that France and England had learned from Prussia how to defeat Prussia, as Prussia had learned from Napoleon at Leipsic when he crushed Germany.

"The career of Kitchener could be summed up in three words—Egypt, India and South Africa. His ideas of service were summed up in his words to the soldiers of the expeditionary force when they went to France. He told them that the honor of England was to be in the conduct of each individual of the force and that it was their duty to fear God and honor their King."

When a man breaks his promise to a woman he can always soothe his conscience by making her another "just as good."

DEPARTURE MAY BE KEPT SECRET

Washington, July 12.—If news of the departure of the German underwater liner Deutschland can be regarded as military information of value to Germany's enemies, the United States, in the interest of neutrality, will take such steps to prevent such information reaching them.

State Department officials today admitted they were considering the question of how to protect the Government neutrality in the matter.

ECONOMIC FEATURES OF EUROPEAN WAR

London, July 12.—The British Government has approved of the resolution passed by the Paris economic conference of representatives of the Entente Allies, according to a statement made in the House of Commons this afternoon by Premier Asquith.

Resolutions were adopted at the Paris economic conference governing the economic features of the present European war, first, for the duration of the war; second, during the period of reconstruction and transition from war to peace; and third, for the period of permanent peace following the war and reconstruction periods.

The conference was concluded on June 17.

Near love is like champagne, which goes to a man's head and fills him with dizziness and vanity; real love is like religion, which goes to his heart and fills him with fear and humility.

The Printing and Publicity Specialist

Talks To His Son

"Say, John, I feel quite sick today," said Mr. Blank. "Please visit the different doctors in town, and find out who will cure me for the least money. Get your quotations tabulated and then let me see them. Of course we will engage the doctor who charges the least."

"Why I never heard of such a thing," said John. "The idea of getting quotations from a doctor; it's the asylum for you."

"Well now, why not? I am a specialist in printing and publicity. I study my business just as carefully as any doctor can do. If I do say it that shouldn't, I have just as much brains as the average doctor. I strive to give my customers the benefit of my knowledge, my artistic skill and judgement and my ideas on publicity. I give service as the term is understood in the Twentieth Century."

"When some people around here have a little printing to be done, they visit all the printing offices, get quotations from each one, and then give the work to the man who gives the lowest figures."

"The ordinary user of printing knows his own business, but he is no more a judge of the work of printing than he is a judge of what sort of medicine a doctor should give him for the cure of his ailment. If people ask me for quotations and pass me by if my price happens to be a little more than the other fellow, why shouldn't I apply the same method to the doctor, lawyer, dentist and painter? Why not? It's a mighty poor rule that won't work more than one way."
