Afflicted with Lame Back THREE YEARS AGO COULD NOT SWEEP THE FLOOR.

Women are coming to understand that weak, lame and aching backs from which they suffer so much excruciating pain and agony are due to wrong action of the kidneys.

The kidneys are overtaxed—given more work than they can do, and when the back aches and pains it is hard for a woman to look after her household duties, for no woman can be strong and well when the kidneys are out of order.

On the first sign of any weakness in the back Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken. They go right to the seat of the trouble, cure the weak, aching back, and prevent any serious kidney trouble liable to follow.

Mrs. L. Gonslow, 683 Manning Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I take great pleasure in writing you, stating the benefit I have received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About three years ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad I could not even sweep the floor. I was advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills, and before I had used one box there was a great improvement, and my back was completely cured. I highly recommend 'Doan's' for lame back."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, $1 boxes for $1.25; at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

See that our trade mark, "The Maple

Miss Phoenix

"Oh, dear, no!" laughed Sterling.
"He always speaks well of her—"
"Speaks well of her?"

"Yes, you know what I mean. He always speaks very nicely of her.
But you can never judge from what a man says to other men about his wife."

"No more than you can judge of a husband from what his wife says, I suppose."

"Well, I can't say so to that," mused Sterling. "If women spoke as well of their husbands as they do of their favorite baking powder, this would be a better world."

There is no telling to what philosophical heights the Doctor might have flown if, at this juncture, the front door-bell had not again shrilly proclaimed a caller. Tomi entered almost immediately, and Mrs. Gray, realizing that still another stranger must be coming, leaped from her chair and turned toward the bedroom door.

"Where are you going?" inquired Sterling.

"I'm going to escape," she replied with her hand on the door-knob.

"Oh, please don't," urged the doctor, and he quickly and impudently put his arm round her in an attempt to hold her back. Mrs. Gray wrenched herself away, opened the door, slipped into the other room and turned the key. But, as ill luck would have it, these violent movements disarranged her hair again and the comb fell to the floor at the Doctor's feet. He picked it up, glanced at it casually, smiled and laid it on the table, just as Tomi opened the door and admitted Mr. Jack Gray.

The two men greeted each other pleasantly and each asked the other what he was doing there.

"Well, I've come to meet Laura Leslie, if you want to know," said Jack frankly.

"You say dog!"

"I don't feel very gay, I can assure you. Isn't Laura here?"

"She and Harry went out a few minutes ago, but will be back immediately," explained the Doctor.

"They left me in charge of the prettiest little soubrette you ever saw.
She's been lunching up here with Harry," and he waved his hand toward the table with the finger-bowls still on it. "When I came in she was sitting around a la Japonaise."

"Japanese, eh?"

"Well, she wasn't Japanese. She was only free-and-easy. She and I were just getting on friendly terms when you had to butt in."

"Why, I'll go right out again, old man."

"Nonsense, nonsense! She fled at your approach. But I wish you could have seen her. A peach! One of those dark, dreamy, delicious damosels."

"Who is she?"

"Don't know—some discovery of Harry's. Her name is Phoenix.
Know her?"

"Never saw nor head of her. I don't like that brunette style, anyway," and Jack seated himself leisuredly in the chair that but a few moments before had held his wife.

"What on earth are you looking so glum about?" presently asked Sterling.

"Because I'm in an awful hole," replied Jack, rising and pacing the floor in much apparent agitation.

"I've made a confounded jackass of myself!"

"Don't take it so unnaturally, old chap," was his friend's consoling reply.

"I can't help it. It's a serious matter. I met Laura Leslie by chance this morning and walked down-town with her to the Holland House. We went up to her sister's room, the sister was called away and Colonel Crosby walked in and found me alone with Laura."

"Who is Crosby?" asked Sterling.
"He's an old friend of my Uncle Hiram."

"The uncle who is going to leave you that hundred thousand?"

"Exactly," continued Jack. "The-live in the same town and are great friends. If Crosby ever told Uncle Hiram he had caught me as he did this morning—that is, if he knew—I'd be out off without a cent!"

"What did you do?"

"I said Laura was my wife."

"You idiot!" was Sterling's astonished comment.

"I agree with you," said Jack promptly, "but the situation was rather forced on me. However, it's the immediate future that's worrying me. Crosby expects Laura and me to dine with him at the Ritz this evening. There was no denying him at the time. I've been trying all the day to get him on the telephone to say that my wife is suddenly indisposed and that I will be there alone. He sails for Europe Wednesday and between now and then I must keep him from calling at my house. He's a sociable old fossil!"

"Well, it doesn't look so bad after all," said Sterling. "Laura won't mind missing a meal."

"Oh, she said she wouldn't go, anyway. But it's after tonight I must scheme for. You come round to my house right after breakfast tomorrow morning and help me lay out a plan of campaign."

"Certainly."

"It will be a great opportunity for you to meet Mrs. Gray, too," added Jack. "It's high time you knew my wife."

THE COMING MILLINERY.

Ribbon and Wired Silk Bows for the New Hats.

Some of the most interesting of the spring hats are those designed by a French creator who has faith in lace and tulle as hat fabrics. Large and small hats have dropped floppy brims of Chantilly lace, embroidered tulle, plain tulle and chiffon.

There is also a generous number of small trim turbans. Some have a single pom-pom for embellishment, others content themselves with a crown band of fruit and foliage, some top themselves with clusters of flowers and others show a fondness for feather trimming.

Ribbon and stiffly wired silk bows are pushing their way upward. This type of trimming has been used chiefly on turbans or models of a size that are neither turban or "picture."

Many of the small bonnets of the season are ribbon trimmed.

Long streamers of narrow ribbon float away from beneath the upward tilted backs of Watteau chapeaux.

Black Straw, Pleated Tulle.

One of the hats seen this week was of black lisere straw, lined under the brim with vieux rose Tagel, and trimmed in a new way with a band and bow of moire ribbon.

A new picture hat of black chiffon velvet was also seen, with a deep upturned brim, taking a sharp curve at the back and lined inside with emerald green taffetas. Big imitation brush ospreys formed the only trimming.

One of the newest Watteau shapes for the spring curves downward deeply on either side, but turns up sharply off the hair at the back. The hat was covered smoothly with pale grey taifeta silk and trimmed very effectively with closely gathered ruches of Joffre blue satin ribbon, finished on one side with a true lover's knot, standing erect and caught in front with a ring of bright pink roses.

Novel Trimming for High Crown.

Smooth black Tagel straw is employed for making that high-crowned hat which is trimmed on one side with a big bunch of dark violets, and the brim of which is turned up a little to show an underlining of soft pedal straw, chosen in the pale shade of mauve. A drapery of mauve satin ribbon encircles the crown, and is drawn up high at the back, where it takes the form of a fan-pleated bow. In front this drapery is held down by a large cabochon of mauve satin set around with tiny satin balls.

Another hat with a high crown—made higher still by the way it is trimmed, is carried out in one of the new biscuit colored nutmeg straws lined underneath with dark green Tagel, and decorated on top with a mass of velvet daisies, white and yellow. Rising above the flowers are loops of biscuit colored ribbon.

Something New in a Tall Hat.

Something quite new in a tall hat, arranged with a draped crown of chif-fon velvet is of the inverted flower pot variety and is made in a fancy Japanese straw chosen in a very becoming shade of pale amethyst. The soft draperies of chiffon velvet which compose the crown display a very much darker shade of the same beautiful color, and can be arranged in any style that may happen to suit individual requirements.

Put into a saucepan four tablespoonfuls of tomato puree, a little salt, a sprinkling of white sugar, a teaspoonful of French mustard, a teaspoonful of vinegar and pepper and salt to taste. An onion may be added and removed before serving. Let it all simmer together for a few minutes, then add the chopped ham and cheese and stir all together until it is hot through. Just before serving stir in a well beaten egg and when it is thoroughly beaten into the mixture serve on fried bread crumbs or toast.

OTTAWA RUMORS OF GREAT CHANGES

Ottawa, April 2—Ottawa's weekend was alive with political rumors, based upon the parliamentary revelations of the past week. Early in the day it was reported that the prestige of the Premier had been seriously affected by developments, indicating that Sir Robert Borden had been definitely warned by very prominent men in a position to know even before he received his warning in the protest of Hon. Andrew Borden, and that the Premier had refused to take the action necessary to investigate and clean the situation up promptly and effectively. The rumor was to the effect that Sir Robert was now to be permitted to carry out a course he has twice before attempted, and retire from the leadership of his party.

A second rumor which was in circulation tonight was to the effect that His Royal Highness had been in conference with Sir Wilfrid Laurier in reference to the whole situation.

Efforts by The Globe to secure either confirmation or denial of the rumors were unavailing. It is generally believed, however, that important events are imminent.
