The BLACK BOXE. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIMCopyright 1915 ONS F WOOD Novelized from the Photo Play of the Same Name. Produced by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company."I guess the return of the jewels squashed the Macdougall theory," he remarked. "He wouldn't be likely to part with the stuff when he'd once got his hands on it. However, I always meant, when we had a moment's spare time, to look into that fellow's whereabouts. We'll take it on straight away. Can't do any harm.""I know the section boss on the railway at the spot where he disappeared," Laura announced."Then just take the train down to Mountways—that's the nearest spot—and get busy with him," Quest directed. "Try and persuade him to loan us the gang's handcar to go down the line. Lenora and I will come on in the automobile.""Take you longer," Lenora remarked as she moved off to put on her jacket. "The cars do it in a quarter of an hour.""Can't help that," Quest replied.
"Mrs. Reinholdt's coming here to identify her jewels at twelve o'clock, and I can't run any risk of there being no train back. You'd better be making good with the section boss. Take plenty of bills with you.""Sure! That's easy enough," Laura promised him. "I'll be waiting for you."She hurried off and Quest commenced his own preparations. From his safe he took one of the small black lumps of explosive to which he had once before owed his life, and fitted it carefully in a small case with a coil of wire and an electric lighter.
He looked at his revolver and recharged it. Finally he rang the bell for his confidential valet."Ross," he asked, "who else is there here today besides you?"

"No one today, sir."

"Just as well, perhaps," Quest observed. "Listen, Ross, I am going out now for an hour or two, but I shall be back at midday. Remember that. Mrs.
Reinholdt and Inspector French are to be here at twelve o'clock. If by any chance I should be a few minutes late, ask them to wait. And, Ross, a young woman from the SalvationArmy will call too. You can give her this check."Ross Brown, who was Quest's secretary-valet and general factotum, accepted the slip of paper and placed it in an envelope."There are no other instructions, sir?" he inquired."None," Quest replied. "You'll look out for the wireless, and you had better switch the through cable and telegraph communication on to headquarters. Come on, Lenora."They left the house, entered the waiting automobile, and drove rapidly towards the confines of the city.By Quest's directions the automobile was brought to a standstill at a point where it skirted the main railway line, and close to the section house which he had appointed for his rendezvous with Laura. She had apparently seen their approach, and she came out to meet them at once, accompanied by a short, thick-set man whom she introduced as Mr. Horan."This is Mr. Horan, the section boss," she explained.

Mr. Horan shook hands.

"Say, I've heard of you, Mr. Quest," he announced. "The young lady tells me you are some interested in that prisoner they lost off the cars near here.""That's so," Quest admitted. "We'd like to go to the spot if we could.""That's dead easy," the boss replied. "I'll take you along on the handcar."The section boss turned round and whistled. From a little side track two men jumped on to a handcar, and brought it around to where they were standing. A few yards away the man who was propelling it—a great, red-headed Irishman—suddenly ceased his efforts. Leaning over his pole, he gazed at Quest. A sudden ferocity darkened his coarse face. He gripped his mate by the arm."See that bloke there?" he asked, pointing at Quest."The guy with the linen collar?" the other answered. "I see him.""That's Quest, the detective," the Irishman went on hoarsely. "That's the man who got me five years in the pen, the beast! That's the man I've been looking for. You're my mate, Jim, eh?""I guess so," the other granted.
"Are you going to try and do him in?""Now then, you fellows," Horan shouted. "What are you hanging about there for, Red Gallagher? Bring the carriage up. You fellows can have a smoke for an hour. I'm going to take her down the line for a bit."The two men obeyed and disappeared in the direction of the section house. Quest looked after them curiously."That's a big fellow," he remarked.
"What did you call him? Red Gallagher? I seem to have seen him before.""He was the most troublesome fellow on the line once, although he was the biggest worker," the boss replied.PLEASE do not

SoapThe Big, Good Laundry SoapWOMAN'S COLUMN*LONG SPOONS.The usefulness of long spoons of enamel or wood or aluminum is not always appreciated by the young housekeeper. A row of these near the stove will prove a true aid in stirring large kettles of boiling food, and in basting roasts in very hot ovens. Wooden spoons should always be used in making salads and stewed fruits, such as cranberries, which contain acids corrosive to metals. Reliable chemists say, however, that the darkening of aluminum does not effect the food that is cooked in the vessels to the injury of one's stomach.SATIN WEAVES RETURN.Sartorial history repeats itself constantly! Satin and brocades, which have their recurrent periods of popularity, are once more a la mode. For the autumn beautiful brocades in self tone and metal effects are to be extremely popular, the entire leaning in the selection of silks being for those of a high lusture, the satin-surface weaves taking precedence over the corded silks. The fabrics showing some "body" will generally be preferred to the softer ones for the fall and winter wear, especially when selected for daytime or actual service garments.Serge, gabardine, broadcloth and tricot are fabrics that will be greatly favored in the development of the popular coat dresses and quite the smartest frocks will employ one of the wool fabrics mentioned, combined with satin in their makeup. A touch of bright silk or bead embroidery is a favorite trimming touch.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.At this season the particular housekeeper contemplates the use of the duster.The automobile comes with the promise of good things, but with it comes also the constant presence of dust on the dark mahogany tables, and a gritty feeling around the edges of our books.The shops keep pace with this demand. In the gift shops we find dusters of gay colored cheesecloth, pink, blue, yellow and lavender.
Some have dainty cross-etched borders and some have initials delicately embroidered upon the corners.MORE DEATHS FROM INFANTILE PARALYSISNew York, July 19.—Both deaths and new cases in the infantile paralysis epidemic took another jump to-day.
During the 24 hours ending at 10 a. m. today the disease killed thirty children and attacked 142 others in the five boroughs of New York city.This is an increase of 150 in both the mortality rate and development of the plague in the last 48 hours.Since the inception of the disease on June 26 there have been 2,327 children stricken of whom 456 died.It's hard to believe some things—even when we want to believe them.
