engine had a weapon, and as Sea-grue's men came on it looked as if the train would be taken then and there by force of numbers. Helen, however, was not without reserves. 'Give them the live steam, Geor nd a lot of it, quick," she cried.

Don't let them capture us." Storm needed no more than the lint. Turning on the valve he let oose a hot cloud that drove Seagru and his gang gasping from the engine The foremost of the men caught in the white fog were glad to get away inhurt, and halting at a safe distance rallied for orders. Delaney, whose fighting blood was just getting warmed up, saw a further chance and called to his men to fo low him around the cut. The gang divided and Delaney's part of it, start ing over the hill, met Rhinelander men. For a time there was a ho mix-up. As the enemy came on in ever increasing numbers, Wood and his men were soon getting the worst of it, but fresh shouts were heard down the hill and at the moment the sheriff's posse-now arrived-running in, took the side of Rhinelander's men and helped them beat Seagrue's gan

Outnumbered, driven from their vantage ground and disheartened at the unexpected diversion of the one my, Seagrue's men sullenly gave way; even Bill Delaney's florcest efforts failed to rally them. It was only a few minutes before the sheriff's men rounding up the stragglers and march-ing them down the cut. The hill had been won and lost, but the ties had been firmly held and were safely in Rhinelander's possession. The memory the Gentury

HELEN'S WILD RIDE

Helen spied him the minute she stepped inside Rhinelander's hut to deliver the telegram-a small, fluffy bun earnestly dle of black and white, lying curled up olicited for the men of the 104th tightly on Rhinelander's cot, as if this 40th, 115th and other New Brunswick was the haven of warmth and refuge so long sought. "Where," demanded Overseas Battalions, and will be re eived at the Red Cross rooms in the Parliament Building, until September 30th. Mrs. C. McN. Steeves is speci-ally requesting donations for the 115th Helen of Rhinelander, and emphasizing each word in amazement, "did you get that dear, little dog?"

"That dear, little dog," explained Rhinelander, with corresponding emphasis, "is the last addition to my already overburdened pay roll." "What's his name? Who," demanded Helen in delight, "put him on? "He just got hold with his teeth and hung on. He blew into camp the other day, the tiredest, orneriest, hungriestlooking cur you ever saw. Some mo-toring party lost him, probably." Rhinelander reread his telegram: Rhinelander.
