SIR WILFRID LAURIER DE- LIVERS STIRRING APPEAL

facts the public conscience was so moved that the enquiry was granted, but on one transaction only.

The charges were proven to be only too true. Profits had been made out of the fuse contracts so large as to render it possible for that well known gentleman, Col. Wesley Allison, to hand out largesses which no king or emperor ever dreamed of.

"It seldom happens," declared Sir Wilfrid, amid laughter, "that a simple typewriter receives a tip of $105,000."

"Since then," Sir Wilfrid declared, "complaints had been coming from France that Canadian soldiers had been forced to meet the enemy improperly equipped, that men had died on the battlefield because of inefficient equipment.

"Now," he declared, amid resounding cheers, "we have the explanation. We have it in the correspondence which has recently been made public, and which shows conclusively, through a controversy between the Prime Minister and his Minister of Militia, that the most sacred trust ever placed in the hands of a government was betrayed from the start through charges, disputations and quarrels. What can you expect when there was no firm hand any time to guide?" (Resounding cheers.)

National Service Fiasco.

"A few weeks ago," Sir Wilfrid continued, "the Government had proposed a National Service Commission, and placed Sir Thos. Tait, a man trusted and tried in many things and found worthy. A commission got to work and almost the first thing they did was to ask for a parliamentary committee to come to their assistance, and Sir Thos. Tait had to resign on account of the quarrels which were going on.

"And on the morrow," declared Sir Wilfrid, "the Prime Minister blandly and coolly asked me to take part in the task which Sir Thomas Tait had to give up. I need not tell you that I am not averse to helping in recruiting. It would have been my pleasure to have contributed in any way, but when the invitation came after this good man had resigned, I would have been countenancing what Sir Thomas Tait protested against if I had accepted.

Not Afraid of Responsibility.

"Let me say at once that I am not afraid of responsibility. I have been for twenty-eight years leader of this party, and in the course of my career, both in power and in opposition, both in good and ill fortune, it has been my lot to face many difficult problems, religious, national, racial and others.

"Never was I afraid of responsibility; responsibility I have accepted on every occasion, not with a view to win, but with one object before my eyes, and that the welfare of my country.

"And so I say to Mr. Meighen and to Mr. Kemp, that the question of responsibility has no terrors to me. When it comes to decide when the parliament shall or shall not be extended, we shall await the proposal from the Government. We shall wait the reasons they have to put forth and then we shall be equal to the task of facing our responsibility." (Resounding cheers.)

ONTARIO CABINET MINISTERS IN TOWN

Hon. G. H. Ferguson and T. W. McGarry Making Tour of Lower Provinces

Two members of the Ontario Government are among the visitors to the city today. They are Hon. G. W. Ferguson, Minister of Lands and Mines, and Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer. They have been making a tour of the Maritime Provinces, securing information in regard to our natural resources. They have been spending some time in Nova Scotia and in Prince Edward Island, and on Wednesday visited Moncton, where they were banqueted by the Canadian Club.

The visitors arrived from St. John last evening in a private car attached to the regular train, and will leave for Quebec by the I. C. R. this evening.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock the visiting ministers will attend an informal meeting of the Fredericton Board of Trade.

CITY SCHOOLS

Morrison Mill School is to give a concert on Friday next, for which returns will be made later.

Doak School Does Well.

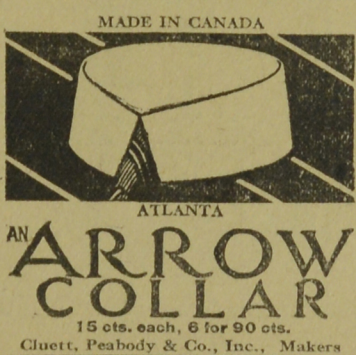

Where all have done so well, it may seem invidious to refer to any school in particular, but Doak seems to deserve special mention.

Teaching in a rural community, where cash is not so plentiful as in the city, the teacher, Miss Agnes Doohan, conceived the idea of getting contributions in farm produce of all kinds. Aided by some of her older pupils, she collected the goods, brought them to town, marketed them, and thus raised the sum mentioned above.

Individual Examples.

As examples of the enthusiasm with which the pupils entered into this work, Burton Kierstead, the young son of Dr. Kierstead, wrote to his uncle in the U. S. and received a cheque for $10, which was paid for one tag.

Again, three girls of F. H. S. volunteered to scrub the Domestic Science room, which had been used in the distribution of the candy, rather than spend the money raised for that purpose.

COM. H. R. McLELLAN

clashes between witness and counsel. Closing Arguments.

In his final argument Mr. Hughes dwelt on the point that the brand of liquor was one not sold in the hotel, and that the reputation of "Sergt. Marshall" was such that it was open to suspicion that he had "planted" the flask of liquor there himself. If that were not the case, the only other way to account for it being there was that it had been mislaid by some person who owned it privately.

Mr. Hanson, for the prosecution, stated in reply that the evidence of the witnesses from St. John or Fredericton to the effect that they would not believe Sergt. Marshall under oath did not affect the case. The evidence was that the police had found a flask of liquor in a room adjoining a bar room and in a hotel in which one of the proprietors of which had sworn liquor had been sold for twelve years. There was direct corroboration of Sergt. Marshall's statement in that of Policeman Hughes, who swore he saw the bottle found by Marshall and that it was impossible for Marshall to have placed it in the place where it was discovered. Against Policeman Hughes not one person had a word to say. He was a man who had less to say than some others, but who did his duty. As far as Sergt. Marshall was concerned, he would say that although rough, uncouth and unpleasant in manner, he had always performed the duties of a policeman in a satisfactory manner, while a member of the Fredericton police force. As far as concerned the point of the brand of liquor, Mr. Hanson pointed out that two witnesses called by the defence had sworn that they did not buy the liquor stocked by the hotel, and by that very statement rendered worthless their evidence to the effect that the liquor seized never had been stocked by the hotel.

The case attracted much attention, and the court room was crowded.

CHILDREN OF ALL AGES

When sick, the new-born babe or the growing child will find prompt relief through the use of Baby's Own Tablets. They are absolutely safe for all children and never fail to banish any of the minor ills from which little ones suffer. Concerning them, Mrs. Arthur Sheasly, Adanac, Sask., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets and think they are splendid for children of all ages." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The greatest difficulty that some people experience is in keeping appearances up and expenses down.
