Nov. 10th, 1915.

A beautiful complexion is a handsome woman's chief glory and the envy of her less fortunate rivals. Yet a soft, clear skin—glowing with health—is only the natural result of pure blood.

"I was troubled for a considerable time with a very unpleasant, disfiguring Rash, which covered my face and for which I used applications and remedies without relief. After using 'Fruit-a-tives' for one week, the rash is completely gone. I am deeply thankful for the relief and in the future, I will not be without 'Fruit-a-tives'."

Former Southampton Man Weds Maine Girl at Beulah Camp.

(Fort Fairfield Review.)

Melvin W. Tompkins and Miss Grace Shorey, two of Fort Fairfield's well-known young people, were married at Brown's Flat, Beulah Camp Grounds, at Rev. H. C. Archer's cottage, by Rev. Mr. Archer, a former pastor of the Reformed Baptist church at Fort Fairfield, Wednesday morning, Sept. 27.

The couple were unattended. The bride's dress was a handsome one of white taffeta, with lace trimmings. The groom wore a suit of blue. The bride's travelling suit was of dark blue.

From the camp grounds Mr. and Mrs. Tompkins go to St. John for a short wedding tour, thence going to Southampton, N.B., to spend some time at the bridegroom's home.

Mr. and Mrs. Tompkins will return to Fort Fairfield Tuesday, October 3, and will be at home during the winter with Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Fowler, Main street.

AROOSTOOK POTATO PRICES.

(Fort Fairfield Review.)

Potatoes have brought from $2.00 to $2.35 this week, $2.25 being a fair standard price. On Monday Irish Cobblers were about 15 cents ahead of Green Mountains, but they have evened up since. They are coming in rapidly, as the farmers are getting them out of the ground very rapidly. The quality is the very finest and everybody is happy. A quite serious car shortage on both railroads is the only fly in the ointment.

Mr. Harold Rickard, of Barker's Point, who left last month with the harvest excursion, returned home yesterday.

EVIDENCE OF NEW PASSION FOR HONESTY IN THE WEST

People are Getting Sick of Grafting and Self-Seeking Politicians---British Columbia Sets the Pace---Real Awakening of Canadian People Against Treasury Looters Has Come at Last---The Patronage Evil Must Go.

(Toronto Globe.)

One of the members elected to the Legislature of British Columbia in the recent political revolution, writes to a friend in the east: "Nothing is more inspiring than to see how this hopelessly boom-crazed people of five years ago have been driven to their knees and have brought forth a new faith and a new passion for honesty. I look forward with thankfulness to the prospect of public service under such conditions."

Not in British Columbia alone, but in every Province of the Dominion, and in the Federal arena, there are evidences of a new faith and a new passion for honesty.

The moral awakening of the Canadian people was long delayed, but it has come at last. The grafter, the boodler, the manipulator of contracts, the corrupt railway promoter, whose power for evil has been incalculably great, have had their day.

The Day of Graft is Over.

From every government hereafter, Liberal or Conservative, there will be demanded a new passion for honesty. The man who obtains a dollar of the people's money will be expected to return a dollar's worth of service. The bribery of the electors with their own money must cease, and the politician who seeks to lengthen his tenure of office by squandering the resources of the country, must be given short shrift.

And with this new passion for honesty in politics there is coming a new faith in democracy and a determination that government of the people, by the people, shall not be defeated by the machinations of entrenched privilege. The sweeping-out of the liquor traffic is one of the first fruits of this new political faith. The extension of the suffrage to women in the western provinces is another. The social reform measures that bulk more largely year by year in political programmes mark one line of advance. The determination of the Liberals of the west to wage uncompromising warfare on the high protection policy that breeds trusts and combines, which have put the cost of living in Canada so high that the average man can do no more than make both ends meet, indicates another.

The attitude of the west heartens those who have fought for a generation against a tariff that hamstringed agriculture and promotes the unhealthy growth of great cities.

Abolition to Patronage Demanded.

The advocates of railway nationalization raise their heads in both parties and declare that railways built almost entirely with public money or by public bond guarantees ought to be taken over and operated in the interests of the people of Canada. The abolition of the curse of patronage in the appointment of all men and women to the civil service of the Dominion and the Provinces is demanded. The secret opening of tenders and awarding of contracts—a source of great and far-reaching abuse—can no more be defended in the case of the larger departments of Provincial and national affairs than in regard to municipal contracts.

The general utilization for the public benefit of the waterpowers, lands, forests and mines within the illimitable crown domains of the Dominion and the provinces will be a cardinal feature of the new politics.

The speculative holder of lands, of waterpowers, forests and other natural resources has been almost as great a curse to the Canadian people as the distillery and the brewery.

Opportunities Easily Available.

The natural opportunities of the Dominion must be made easily available to the worker or capitalist who desires to use them in the production of wealth and altogether inaccessible to the forestaller and exploiter.

A good many of the old type of politicians who have gum-shoed their way around these great issues will have to be discarded if the new faith and the new passion for honesty of which the British Columbian speaks are to find expression in the statute

ADMIRAL JELlicoe IS EVERY INCH A SAILOR

Capt. Norman Thwaites, of the Royal Irish Dragoons, who was in charge of a distinguished party of civilians that recently visited the Grand Fleet, says that he was less impressed by the ships than by Jellicoe. He brought away a sense of this little man absolutely dominating all the huge ships and every sailor aboard of them.

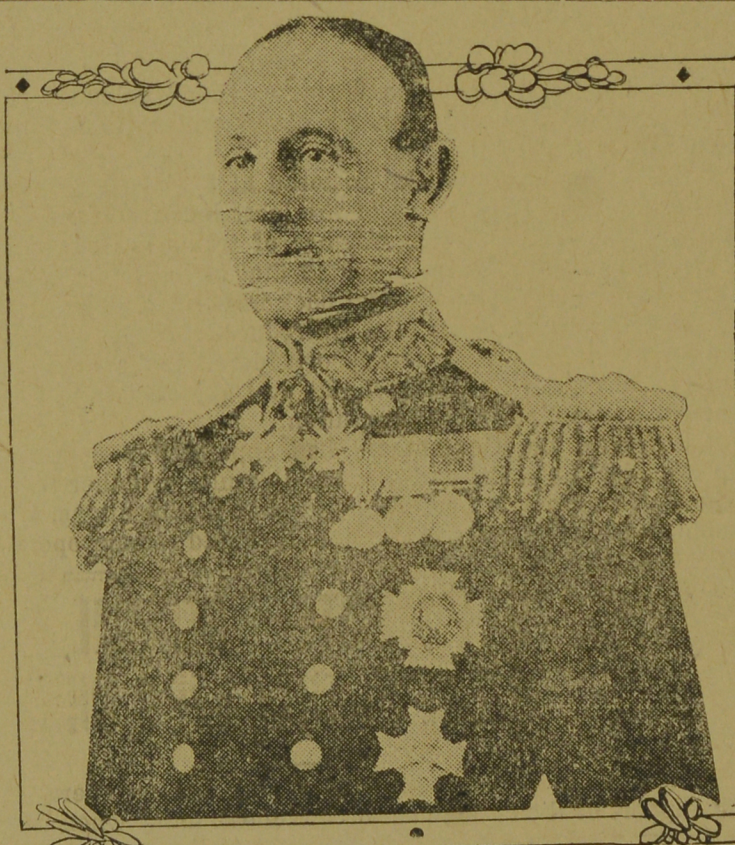

Jellicoe, he says, is a man you would always remember if once you saw him, a man that you would turn to look at as he passed in the street. He is under the average height, and he books. They will fight for the old ways and the old dishonesties and the old compromises, but theirs will inevitably be a losing fight.

The dead hand must be loosed from the helm if the ship of state is to avoid shipwreck.

ly that he has done so on many occasions in the past two years. Joviality shines from his face; he is always thoroughly at ease, with not the slightest trace of nervousness or self-consciousness in his manner.

His officers say that so conspicuous a part did he play in the battle of Jutland that they were extremely nervous lest he might attract the attention of some sharpshooter on one of the German ships. His officers and men have the greatest respect for Jellicoe, and believe that there is not another sail-weighs perhaps 150 pounds, but he has that mysterious quality that is variously called "individuality" and "magnetism," and it impresses one at first sight. His agility and thickset build, and the habit he has of starting forward as though he were a pugilist leaving his corner, arrest one's attention. Incidentally it is recalled that Jellicoe was the featherweight boxing champion of the Britannia and some of the old ring tricks adhere to him.

For instance, when he stretches out his right hand on an introduction, his left hand involuntarily sweeps out too, as though he were preparing to parry a blow.

Capt. Thwaites noticed that Jellicoe was the shabbiest officer on the ship, that the gold lace and braid on his uniform was tarnished, and that the clothes showed signs of wear. He does not suggest that Jellicoe sleeps in his clothes, but it is extremely likeor in England so well qualified as he for the command of the fleet. As for Jellicoe's feelings to the admirals under him, his official reports of various engagements show his pride in the exploits of Beatty, Sturdee and others. He has no fear or thought that his own reputation will be dwarfed by the reputations of others. He prizes unstintedly.
