A Story of Mountain Railroad Life looking up, beheld his confederate late to aid the officer to save himself, but the plucky policeman gripped forward himself, and before the is man in the room, watching apprehensively, could draw a full breath, the two men crashed violently through the skylight together almost on top of him. As it was, they landed in a heap on the bed. The Bat sprang at once on the helpless policeman. It would have gone hard with him but for instant aid from Helen. She dropped down the open skylight, caught the revolver from the officer's hand and held the two criminals at the point of it until the policeman could slip handcuffs on them. When the two men were secured, Helen demanded the stolen money.

The man Bat did most of the talking.

"I don't know what you are talking about," he said jovially, while Helen's accusations were launched at him. "I am a piano tuner, officer. I don't know this man," he pointed calmly at Sykes. "I never saw him in my life till he smashed my skylight. What do you mean, anyway, by breaking into my room? I'll put the blue-sky laws on you. Who's going to pay for all this glass?" he demanded with an injured air. "The landlord is going to come after me for it. I'll have your whole bunch arrested the minute I get to the police station. I don't know anything about your money. I don't believe you've got any money or have had any."

"What did you attack the policeman for as soon as he dropped into the room?" cried Helen, indignantly.

"Why, miss, I am near-sighted. I thought that man was a piano tuner when I saw him—a man that's tried to let the light into me two or three times with a gun—it's a fact!"

The officer shut off The Bat's talk, and Helen, with the astuteness of a detective, searched him, with the result that from his various pockets she recovered every package of the bills stolen from the safe, and nearly all of them intact.

The fat man lost none of his nerve when confronted with the result. He declared he had been made the victim of a plot, that his character and reputation were known everywhere in the city—which was quite true. And having denounced all unwarranted intrusions such as he had been made the victim of, he resigned himself to go as prisoner with a much better grace than his sullen companion did. They were taken together to the police station.

Helen telephoned immediately for a motor car, and, accompanied by her friendly officer, and with the money stowed away on her person, she stepped into the car and ordered it driven in haste to Signal. Fast as the landscape flew by it did not keep pace with Helen's impatience. They drew in sight of Rhinelander's camp.
Smoke still rose from where the fire had threatened its complete destruction. Rhinelander and Wood, with their men, had finally extinguished the conflagration, though not until a heavy toll of damage had been taken by the flames. Helen caught sight of Rhinelander just as the car raced up to the camp and, alighting, called him joyfully to her, waving the money in her great excitement, in her hands.

"It's here," she cried. "Most every bit of it."

"What do you mean?"

"The pay roll. We've got it—all of it—the money stolen from the safe.
It is here in this sack." ly ask explanations. Bit by bit Helen told the story. Her father uncle caught her in his arms, moved and all together—the men crowding around—they walked with the recovered treasure through the half-burned camp.

"SPIKE'S AWAKENING"

Resolved to get completely away from the constant interruptions in his work, Amos Rhinelander replaced his burned camp with outfit cars and moved at once to the end of his construction work, now well advanced on the desert.

The new equipment was as complete as money and energy could suggest.
And no sooner were the cars out on a spur at Baird—near the end of the new line—than linemen were busy making telegraphic connections for them with the Tidewater system. The moment the wiring was done Storm suggested the first message over the new line ought to go to Helen, who had now been transferred from Signal to Las Vegas, a division station below Baird. Rhinelander was pleased with the suggestion and Storm wrote out a telegram. The operator sounded Helen's call, and after a moment announced she was on the wire taking Storm's message. It read:

Rhinelander says contracts on Number Nineteen. Bring them up Sunday.
Storm will meet train here and drive you over to camp.

Seagrove, during this time, had already made counter-dispositions to meet Rhinelander's arrangements and had established a secondary headquarters at Las Vegas, where he controlled an icing concession.

Spike had been laggard in following Seagrove to the line as directed, and the latter was as many unpleasant messages as he could to Oceanside, where Seagrove was in retreat. But as Seagrove's continuing summons grew more and more peremptory Spike was obliged to take notice and get under way for the desert himself.

Leaving camp the night after a carouse, but the next morning as the train was falling into a desert town strange to his eyes. Somewhat muddled, unhappy and being unable to recognize his surroundings, he asked a fellow passenger the name of the place; but he forgot it the moment he

A PIMPLY FACE OR POOR COMPLEXION QUICKLY RESTORED

Thousands of young men and women would be handsome and attractive were it not for unsightly pimples, blackheads and rough uneven skin.
Custom seems to recommend lotions and salves, but unfortunately their effect is but temporary. These disfiguring blemishes do not originate in the skin—their birth in every case goes further back, to the blood, which must be cleansed of humors before the pimples depart for good.

A physician who has made a careful study of such cases, says that the quickest cure comes from a blood-building medicine like Ferrozone. The minute Ferrozone strikes the blood its good work begins. Poisons and foul matter are expelled. Every trace of humor is driven out, and the whole life current is supplied with nutriment and health giving qualities. You can always tell a Ferrozone complexion when you see it—the cheeks are clear and rosy, no signs of sallowness—the eyes are bright and expressive because rich, red blood is circulating through the whole system carrying health, energy, and strength with it.
Not only will all skin eruptions disappear, but an increase in vital strength, an all-round improvement will be apparent. No rebuilding tonic could be more efficient. Get Ferrozone today.
Good for young and old, for well folks and sick ones, too. 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct by mail from The Catarrozone

SABLE ISLAND PONIES.

Forty-one of These Sturdy Little Animals Brought to Halifax.

Halifax, Sept. 28.—Forty-one Sable Island ponies were brought to Halifax last week for sale. They were captured in their wild state only last week and brought up to the city by the steamer Lady Laurier. These ponies are supposed to be the descendants of horses placed on the island over one hundred years ago. They are stocky and hardy little beasts and soon broken to harness.

For more than one hundred years these horses have run wild among the sand hills of Sable Island. They refuse to use shelter provided for them, and even in the stormiest weather, will not approach anything savoring of civilization. They will not eat food placed where they can get it, even though the snow completely covers the surface of the island. Once captured and given a day or two to reflect, however, they "take to the hay" quite naturally.

Many a business man has been swamped by the weight of his dignity.

The meek will inherit the earth, so it is said. Up to the present none has been seen to "cash in" on any part of the prophecy.

With a shortage in the potato crop and the bakers plotting a rise in the price of bread, and the coal men getting in their little fling, living promises to be a luxurious experience this winter.

THE APPEAL

Lieut. Colonel Guthrie and Officers of the 236th Overseas Battalion (New Brunswick Kilties—Sir Sam's Own) appeal to every man who is physically fit to put on the Tartan of Clan MacLean.

THE TARTAN OF GOOD CLAN MACLEAN.

(By Major C. G. Geggie.)

Oh, men of the Thistle, the Shamrock, the Rose, You men of a land where true Liberty grows, Come fight for the women and bairnies at home,
And put on the Tartan of good Clan MacLean.

Come, follow the leaders who gave of their blood, That the flag of their country be never down trod.
Come, fight ye with might, and come fight ye with main,
Come, put on the Tartan of good Clan MacLean!

We want you, we need you, oh, men of the Gael, And you of the Green Isle, we know you'll not fail.
Come out, lusty Saxon, and strike for your ain, Come, put on the Tartan of good Clan MacLean!

A little over twenty minutes after the last exposure has been made you will be able to see "how they came with out", a
