WOMAN'S COLUMN

THE QUINCE IS HERE.

Quince Marmalade.

Quince marmalade is one of the best of the quince preserves. To make it slice the unpared quinces, cover with water and cook until tender. Press through a sieve and return to stove, allowing 1 1/2 lbs. of sugar to each pound of pulp. Cook very carefully until stiff and pack in small jars.

Candied Quince.

Candied quince is as good as candied orange peel or preserved ginger to those who like the quince flavor. It is not difficult either to prepare. Core and slice the quinces and weigh, using the same weight of sugar as fruit. Scald the slices, then boil hard for eight minutes, remove to a kettle containing the sugar and a little water, place all in the oven to melt slowly, letting them cook until clear and a bright red. Remove and drain the pieces; when they are dry lay on plates with sugar above and below. Let them stand in a dry place over night, then pack away in dry sugar.

Honey Honey.

Quince honey is one of the quince sweets that children like. To make it have ready six cupfuls each of granulated sugar and grated quince and three cupfuls water. Boil the sugar and water together for a minute after the boiling point is reached, then add grated quince and boil twenty minutes or longer, stirring often to keep from burning. When the mixture is thick pour it into jelly glasses and when cold cover with paraffin.

Canned Quinces.

Quinces can be canned too. To prepare them pare them and cut them into eights. Remove seeds. Have ready a rather heavy syrup and cook the quinces until very tender in this.

Patience isn't necessarily a virtue; more often it's a necessity.

BETTING ON THE POOR HORSE

When this young lady—aged 9—learned that her father had been to the races and had bet on a horse she was shocked. She had heard that horse racing constituted a form of sin—just what kind of sin she was unable to determine—but a sin, and in the mind of a child, if anything is a sin it's a sin, and it doesn't necessarily require a reason for being a sin.

When dad came home from the track he wasn't in high spirits. He had lost a bunch of money. And it all went on one horse—a sure thing. So the Apple of His Eye shook her finger at him and said:

"Dad, did you go the races and bet on a horse?"

"I did," he remorsefully confessed.

"Don't you know that's a sin?"

"Is it? Why?" asked dad.

"Because," answered the young miss, "because," growing very thoughtful and impressive, "it is a terrible, dreadful, awful sin to bet on a poor dumb, helpless animal."

"Dumb is right," agreed dad.

WHAT HE DISLIKED

It had been a very tiring case for everybody concerned. The plaintiff and defendant were both countrymen and had to have everything explained to them at least twice.

"Do I understand, my man," said the magistrate at one point, "that the defendant hurled invectives at you?"

The plaintiff scratched his head wildly. Then slowly a look of understanding dawned in his eyes as he replied:

"No, sir. To tell the truth, it was only bricks he threw at me; but what I complain about was the terrible way he swore at me when they missed!"

A LINE OF TALK.

Two telephone girls in different country exchanges were having a chat over the wires on the subject of dress. For four minutes, five minutes, ten minutes the topic held their attention, and was still unexhausted when an impatient, impatient, imperative masculine voice broke up the conversation meeting.

"Are you there?" the voice yelled. "Are you there? Hello! Ah, at last! Who is that speaking?"

"What line do you think you're on?" demanded one of the girls, indignant and annoyed.

"Really," came the weary reply. "I don't know, but from the discussion that's going on I think I'm on a clothes line."

BYRON OUTDONE

While campaigning in his home State a Western politician was once inveigled into visiting the public schools of a town where he was billed to speak.

In one of the lower grades an ambitious teacher called upon a youthful orator to entertain the distinguished visitor with an exhibition of amateur oratory. The selection attempted was Byron's "Battle of Waterloo." Just as the boy reached the end of the first verse the politician gave vent to a violent sneeze.

"But, hush! hark!" exclaimed the youngster; "a deep sound strikes like a rising knell! Did ye not hear it?"

Everybody laughed, and a moment later the second sneeze—which the politician was vainly striving to hold back—came with increased violence.

"But, hark!" bawled the boy, "that heavy sound breaks in once more.

"And nearer, clearer, deadlier than before! Arm! Arm! It is the cannon's opening roar!"

This was too much, and the laugh that broke from the party swelled to a roar when the politician chuckled;

"Put up your weapons, children; I won't shoot any more."

RANCHING IN THE WEST.

(Truro News.)

Mr. A. Clifton Tabor, who with his brother is engaged in extensive cattle ranching at Coutts, near Pendant D'Oreille, Alberta, has arrived in Truro to join his wife and little daughter, Mary, who have spent the summer in the Hub. In a few days they will journey to the Celestial City and visit for a month at least at Mr. Tabor's old home in Fredericton.

It is many years since Mr. Tabor has visited friends in the east, but he is receiving a hearty welcome from all. The ever genial, ever popular Royal Bank of Canada official of some years ago is well remembered by scores of acquaintances, who are glad to see him in our midst again.

Because of the war, barbers may have hard work to get their fine shears, but just think what it gives them to talk about.

Doctor Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent. in One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 6.—Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that, according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses, and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expenses of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start, and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

A prominent City Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy for eye troubles and is well known to me. It has been used for many years and is one of the very few eye remedies I feel should be in the hand of every family."
