$250.00 REWARD

I WILL give the above amount for information that will lead to the conviction of the person who, between 3 o'clock p.m. on Tuesday, September 12th, and 5 o'clock on Thursday, September 14th, placed pieces of meat poisoned with strychnine, for the purpose of poisoning my bird dog, a red cocker spaniel, who answered to the name of "Rock."

The culprit who placed the poison in my enclosure at my bungalow or camp, Royal Road West, was familiar with the premises and knew exactly where to place it so as to catch the dog. He succeeded. The culprit came around the lower fence, between the pond and fence, and threw it over between the well house or spring, and camp, about six feet inside of fence, and just below the path to spring—he knowing the dog always trotted down to the overflow of the spring for a drink after riding up twelve miles in my wagon.

A STORY OF MOUNTAIN RAILROAD LIFE

"I don't expect to spend all my life in this country. I shall have to leave behind me, when I go East, someone to represent my interests and to guard them. The great wealth that has come to me in this property has come over night. I wasn't suffering for money before I owned it.
But I want the man who stands out in this country, for the interests of Amos Rhinelander to have a substantial monetary backing outside his care of my affairs. This is why George, I am presenting to you in this certificate, a second one-third of the capital stock of the Superstition mine. Now," he exclaimed, putting up his hands to shut off the protest and expressions of gratitude voiced by his companions together, "I don't want to hear a word further about this from either of you. All Helen and I ask from you"—he was speaking to Storm—"is to see that our dividend checks are mailed to us promptly."

A man came up to Rhinelander with a letter. He opened the note and read:

Dear Mr. Rhinelander:

Please tell Helen Holmes that Leary, known likewise as Lefty (but whose real name was Hyde), has confessed he killed her father.

The warden says that maybe I will be paroled about the 16th. SPIKE.
Rhinelander read the note aloud very slowly and distinctly. For a moment the three were silent.

Rhinelander handed the letter to Helen. She stood deeply moved.

Seagruel, in his apartment, was still chagrined over the loss of what he had believed to be a worthless mine but which had already become known all over Nevada as the richest gold bearing property on the great Superstition range. He had not yet abandoned his hope of recovering through some clever trick the property that he had played trick for what now seemed a paltry sum, and his mind was set on regaining control of it. He was now studying the bill of sale that signalized his loss of the property. He presently took up a pen and wrote out a dispatch:

Amos Rhinelander, Superstition Mine: Quarterly payment Superstition mine due tomorrow.

SEAGRUE.

Storm and Helen were with Rhinelander when the telegram was handed to him at the mine. Rhinelander showed it to his companions.

"I think I will draw the money from the bank and go to town with it in the morning," said Rhinelander, studying the substance of the message.

Helen intervened: "Let me go with you," she exclaimed, "and I can start Spike for the mine when he leaves the jail. I should hate to see him get mixed up with any more crooks when he gets out."

Rhinelander assented, and writing out an answer to Seagruel's message, read it to Storm before he gave it to a messenger:

Earl Seagruel:

Albemarle Apartments,
Oceanside:

Will make payment on time. In on the morning passenger.

RHINELANDER.

Seagruel received the prompt answer without much elation. He continued thoughtful, and as Adams, his servant, was leaving, called him back, asked for his hat and coat, and, accompanied by the man, left the apartment.

Directing his steps up street, Seagruel made his way to a quarter of the town less noted for its attractiveness than for its reputation as a haunt of men of doubtful character. Having reached the vicinity he desired—a shabby and deserted side street—he looked about to see whether he was observed, and, perceiving no one, started down an obscure alley. He knocked at the door of a weather-beaten house standing close to the street. A man opened the door, Seagruel, followed by Adams, went in side.

"Ward," said Seagruel, addressing the scowling occupant of the room, "I've got a job for you."

The man addressed as Ward, a scowling, beetle-browed adventurer, scrutinized Seagruel silently at the intimation.

"I know you're sore," continued Seagruel, "at the way the last job went," he added, recalling the incident of the stealing of Rhinelander's pay roll.
"But that wasn't your fault or mine." Ward, without answering, continued to regard him askance. Seagruel unfolded his idea to the hardened crook and the promise of ready money and enough of it—whether he succeeded or failed—finally enlisted him.

"You and Adams here"—Seagruel nodded toward his servant—"can handle the thing without any trouble. If you can't do it, you'll be paid anyway.
But if there's any possible chance, I want to see you separate Rhinelander from his money for twenty-four hours."

"There's no time to lose," muttered Ward, picking up a railroad time table. "Are you ready to go, Adams?" Adams nodded. Seagruel supplied both plentifully with money and the two left together.

Ward and Adams, proceeding to the station, boarded an outgoing passenger train from Las Vegas which should bring Rhinelander to Oceanside.
Learning from the conductor where the down train would be flagged, they left their own train at a convenient station and buying tickets back, boarded the Las Vegas passenger when it stopped.

In the observation car, Rhinelander, seated with Helen, was watching the landscape through the window when Seagruel's men coming in paid for seats not far away.

In his lap Rhinelander held a small bag, and from the care with which he retained it, Ward surmised it might contain something of especial value.

Ward, while he sat studying out a scheme to take a chance on the proposition and at least get the bag into his possession, presently spoke to Adams:
"The train stops twenty minutes at Clinton Junction," he muttered to his companion. "We can get hold of a bag there something like Rhinelander's."

No further words were needed to convey his meaning. The moment the train pulled into Clifton, Ward and Adams hurried off uptown to a leather goods store. Breaking precipitately in on the proprietor, they pulled and hauled his stock about with small sense of responsibility. Evidently they wanted a bag, but they seemed to the shopkeeper hard to suit. It was only after much searching and many hard words that Ward's eyes lighted on something such as he was looking for.

The diner had been put on and luncheon called. Rhinelander, taking Helen started for the dining car, closely watched by Ward. No sooner had the two seated themselves at a table than Seagruel's men following took seats directly behind them. Rhinelander placed the handbag at his feet.
Ward made no move until Rhinelander became occupied closely with the bill of fare. While he was trying to tempt Helen with the various delicacies offered, Ward put his foot carefully out, slid Rhinelander's bag away with his toe and, unobserved by the hurryling waiters or the busy diners, pushed the dummy leather bag into its place.

The knaves then coolly ordered their luncheon, ate it—somewhat hurriedly—and left the dining car ahead of their victim.

When slackening speed warned Ward and Adams that the train was nearing Oceanside, they were in no hurry to start out. In fact, they lagged noticeably in their movements, and Helen and Rhinelander left the station and took a taxicab without noticing the absence of the bag that had been so carefully guarded.

Opposition Platform

The following platform was adopted at the Opposition Convention held in St. John recently: In the event of the Opposition being returned to power, we pledge ourselves:—

NO PARTIZAN CONTROL OF CROWN LANDS.

1. We pledge ourselves to completely reorganize the Crown Lands Department, so that its administration shall be entirely severed from politics and administered on sound business principles under systematic plans by a non-partizan commission specially appointed for that purpose, responsible to the Legislature and working in co-operation with the Dominion Commission of Conservation.

TAKE THE HIGHWAYS OUT OF POLITICS.

2. We pledge ourselves to take the highways out of politics, giving the expenditure of the money collected from the people and the control of the labor, together with the Government appropriations, into the hands of supervisors, chosen by the people of each parish, to whom a detailed and audited account must be rendered every year at the annual meeting, and a duplicate thereof forwarded to the Department of Public Works, the work of the supervisors to be under the inspection of a competent provincial engineer.

We also pledge ourselves to set aside the money collected from the licenses upon automobiles and other motor vehicles, together with an equal appropriation from the revenues of the Province each year, to pay the interest upon the bonds to provide for permanent roads, which shall be constructed as rapidly as possible.

PROHIBITION PROVINCE WIDE.

3. We pledge ourselves at the first session of the Legislature to pass a law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors within the Province to the fullest extent allowed by the Constitution, and within three months after the passage of said Act to submit the same by referendum to the electors of the Province, and should the majority of votes cast be in favor of the said law, then to bring the same into force by proclamation within one year thereafter.

ELECTION LAW.

4. (a) To amend the electoral law so as to make it impossible for members of the Legislature to traffic with the Government and still retain their seats.

(b) To make it possible for young men, when they reach the age of 21 years, to register their names and be placed forthwith upon the voters' lists, instead of waiting for the tedious machinery of revision as it now exists.

(c) To divide the counties into electoral districts which shall each be represented by one member.

(d) We will also consider amendments to the election law to make bribery in municipal as well as provincial elections impossible.

PROVINCIAL FINANCES.

5. To obtain at once a correct statement of the financial condition of the Province in order that the people may have definite knowledge of the vastly increased public debt and the enormous obligations of guaranteed bonds they will be called upon to pay; and to so reduce the cost of the administration of affairs and the number of useless officials as to avoid the necessity for direct taxation now confronting us.

AGRICULTURE.

6. To give the farmers all the practical assistance that the resources of the Province will permit, to improve agricultural methods and the quality and quantity of the stock upon the farm; to reduce the enormous salary list in the department, and to spend the educational grant received from the Federal Government without regard for political patronage.

VALLEY RAILWAY.

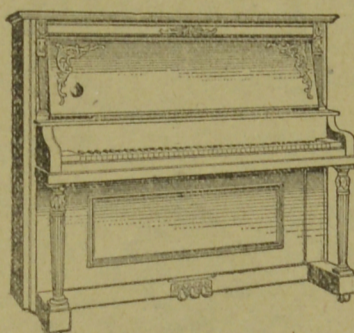

7. To complete the Valley Railway from a point on the Transcontinental Railway at or near Grand Falls, to St. John, and insist upon the Dominion Government carrying out the terms of the original legislation and allow the Province forty per cent. of the gross earnings thereof.

EDUCATION.

8. To always maintain and improve the educational service of the Province and to co-operate with the Federal Government in carrying out the recommendations of the commission upon technical education.

IMMIGRATION.

9. The inauguration of a vigorous immigration policy to properly place before intending immigrants, whose number will be large after termination of the war, the advantages of the agricultural possibilities of New Brunswick.
