RECRUITS FOR ROYAL NAVY CALLED FOR LAST NIGHT

Meeting Held in City Opera House---Addresses by Judge Wilson, Bishop Richardson, Major Morgan and Lieut. Wood ---Expected That Results Will be Noticeable Later.

The first appeal for recruits for the British Navy to be made from a public platform in Fredericton was made last night at the City Opera House. The audience was not large, and women formed a large proportion. It is expected, however, that this meeting will direct public attention toward the Navy, and that this section of New Brunswick will provide its quota of the 5,000 recruits required from the Dominion. Three members of the 236th Highlanders expressed a desire to enter the Navy, but it is not likely that they will be transferred, as it is not the intention to rob the army of men.

The Fredericton Brass Band and the 236th Highlanders pipe band paraded up Queen Street to the Opera House and during the meeting rendered selections. His Worship Mayor Mitchell presided. The speakers were Judge Wilson, Major Cuthbert Morgan, of the 236th, His Lordship Bishop Richardson and Lieut. H. deL. Wood, R. N. C. V. R. Others on the platform were Capt. E. A. Sturdee and Sergt. Lawney, 236th Highlanders, Rev. J. E. Wilson, Rev. J. S. Sutherland, Very Rev. Dean Neales, J. J. McCaffrey, J. W. McCready and Capt. J. A. Read. The latter was referred to by Judge Wilson in his address as Canada's oldest sea captain, who, in spite of his seventy-five years, had since the outbreak of the war sailed in the war zone as captain of a merchant vessel and who, if a young man, would answer the call for men for the Navy.

Judge Wilson.

His Worship introduced Judge Wilson as the first speaker. The latter referred to the work of the British Navy being taken for granted by the people of Canada. That was quite true if the Navy had not done its work well, Canadian troops would not have crossed the seas safely. But it must be remembered that ships wear out and men become tired. Canada was not being asked too much when requested furnish 5,000 men.

Major C. Morgan.

Major Morgan followed Judge Wilson. It was hard, he said, to make a recruiting appeal to an audience composed so largely of women. The latter, however, could put in a word for the Navy at home. This was the first opportunity for Canadians to join the senior branch of the service. The Navy had suffered heavy casualties, although they were not as generally known as those of the army. It was on this account that the call had come to Canada, for the Admiralty, having seen what Canadians could do as soldiers in France and Flanders, probably decided that they would do as well as sailors.

Bishop Richardson.

His Lordship the Bishop of Fredericton was the next speaker. He opened his remarks by showing that the Allies had gone into the war to give the small nations the right to live. The motto was that of those noble Frenchmen who barred the Germans' way at Verdun: "They shall not pass." The danger to the British Empire was as great at this stage of the war as at the beginning. Canada would not fail the Empire.

Here and there throughout the Empire could be heard a voice raised for peace. There was too much of such talk. Optimism was dangerous. There should be no stopping at the crucial moment. All rejoiced in the work of Canadian soldiers, but the British fleet had made it possible.

Too much was being said about what Canada had done in raising 375,000 troops. Had she raised armies in the same proportion to population as had Britain she would have 1,200,000 troops, and of that number 126,000 would be from the Maritime Provinces.

The time would come when men would regret they had not enlisted before. The call for the Navy was the latest, and should be heard.

Lieut. Wood, of the Royal Naval Canadian Volunteer Reserve, was the final speaker. He mentioned the fact that he was the first naval officer to address a Fredericton audience, and he appreciated the distinction. He pointed out the heavy losses the Royal Navy had suffered in various actions, both in ships and men. He also referred to the enormous shipbuilding operations which were being carried on and which would give Britain the most powerful ships on the sea. For these personnel must be provided, and the colonies were being asked to give the men. Conscription in Great Britain had drawn all men to the Army and the Navy could not recruit there without interfering with the army. Men from 18 to 38 years old were wanted. No previous experience was necessary, only a good physique. He could promise that in the Navy the physique of any man would be improved. He himself had joined in his youth and had been round the world five times before he was nineteen.

During the meeting, Petty Officer Bennett, who accompanies Lieut. Wood acted as usher.

HAD BRONCHITIS FOR YEARS

Bronchitis comes from a neglected cold, and if, if neglected, will surely turn into pneumonia. The first symptom is a short, painful, dry cough, accompanied with rapid wheezing and a feeling of oppression or tightness through the chest.

The phlegm raised from the bronchial tubes is at first of a light color, but as the disease progresses it becomes of a yellowish or greenish color and is very often hard to raise.

Dr. Wood's Norway is just the remedy you require, as it loosens the phlegm and heals the lungs and the bronchial tubes.

Mrs. Chas. Egan, Amherst, N. S., writes: "I was troubled for years with bronchitis, and could not find any relief. I was especially bad on a damp day. I went to a druggist and asked him for something to stop the constant tickling in my throat. He gave me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I found gave me instant relief. I think it is the best medicine for bronchitis I know of. I now take care that I always have a bottle on hand."

"Dr. Wood's" is the genuine, put up in a yellow wrapper, three nine trees the trade mark, price 25c. and 50c. Manufactured for the past 25 years by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
