WOMAN'S COLUMN

FESTIVE HALLOWE'EN.

Fortune and Foolery for the Gay and Festive Night.

By Biddy Bye

Fortunes may be written in milk on white paper and after drying they may be folded into tiny balls and shut in walnut shells. When paper is warmed milk will turn brown and the writing will appear on what looked like blank paper.

Any girl can be a palmist, gypsy or witch fortune teller. Cut paper symbols of good or bad luck and place them, gummed side up, on a platter. He who would have his palm read, enters a darkened room, is ordered to hold his hand on a piece of ice and then to lay it flat on the tray or platter. His "fortune" sticks to it, and the palmist is successful according to her imaginative power.

The symbols may be a dollar sign or money bag for wealth; a button for bachelorhood; a clothespin or poverty, rice for a wedding, an umbrella for a journey; a caldron for trouble; a horseshoe, elephant or four-leaved clover for good luck; a penny for a farmer; a ring for an early marriage; a key for fame; a ball for unsuccessful business venture.

Place lighted candles in the open window at midnight, giving each an admiral's name; the one which burns longest will remain most faithful.

Combs covered with paper make popular musical instruments for a Halloween grand march.

A barn, cellar, attic, garage, tent or solarium outclasses any parlor as a place for a witch night revel.

Cat cookies may be shaped of any firm cookie dough, dipped in melted chocolate after they are baked, adorned with white candy eyes, and supported on wooden skewers.

A pumpkin filled with favors makes an inexpensive table decoration.

Constructing a chicken, parrot, eagle, owl or other bird from a peanut, some pins, toothpicks and feathers make an exciting contest. The winner is not the maker but the one who gives the bird the best name.

In a new rear signal for automobiles, pressing a button on the steering wheel lights a red light and lifts a semaphore which is lowered and the light changed to green when the button is pressed a second time.

SCENE FROM "THE GIRL AND THE GAME" (Story.)

Slants of Humor

BRED IN THE BONE

It was school visiting day, when the audience consisted mainly of mothers, proud or envious, according to the parts their offspring were playing.

Up rose one small boy on the platform. Striking a dramatic attitude he began boldly:

"Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears!"

Whereupon a woman in the hall turned to her companion.

"There, that's the Jones boy!" she said acidly. "He wouldn't be his mother's son if he wasn't trying to borrow something!"

FOUND HIM

An old farmer had 16 employees, and as none of them was energetic he hit upon a plan which he believed would cure them of their lazy habits.

"Men," he said one morning, "I have an idea, easy job for the laziest man on the farm. Will the laziest man step forward?"

Instantly 15 of the men stepped forward. "Why didn't you step to the front with the rest?" inquired the farmer of the one who had not moved.

"Too much trouble!" was the reply.

NO GROSS INCOME

What the case was about no one seemed to know exactly. The lawyers themselves were pretty well mixed up.

Then an important witness entered the box and was presently asked to tell the court the total of his gross income.

He refused; the counsel appealed to the Judge.

"You must answer the question," said the Judge sternly.

The witness fidgeted about and then burst out with:

"But—but, your Honor, I have no gross income. I'm a fisherman, and it's all net."

CONSULTING A LAWYER

That is my opinion. Twenty-five dollars please.

"I got the same opinion from another lawyer and he charged me $5."

"Um. You have no confidence in him."

"No—no."

"But you have in me?"

"Yes."

"Precisely. Our opinions are the same but the difference in cost is $20, and to have confidence in your case is well worth $20. This war in Europe is a terrible affair, is it not?"

GOODBY DOLLY GRAY

Dolly's father owned a mule:

Gray was Dolly's name,

Pete, the mule, had always been

Sleepy-like and tame.

One day Dolly took a pin,

Stuck old Pete in play.

At the funeral they sang,

"Goodby, Dolly Gray."

AN EASY ONE FOR NEWRICH

Mrs. Newrich had been told by her caller that a certain dinner party had "wound up with great eclat."

When her husband came home she asked him what "a-kla" meant.

"Why, that's the dessert, I guess," said Newrich. "Didn't you ever eat a chocolate a-kla?"
