Unsightly Pimples Covered His Face.

All diseases and blemishes of the skin are caused by the blood being in an impure condition.

You cannot make a good complexion from the outside; you must get to the seat of the trouble. You must make the blood pure and rich by taking a medicine that will drive out all the impurities and poisons from the blood; one that drives out everything from the system that is the cause of these unsightly skin eruptions.

The best blood cleansing medicine on the market to-day is Burdock Blood Bitters; a medicine that has been used with the greatest success for the past forty years; a medicine you don't experiment with when you buy it.

Mr. Lennox D. Cooke, Indian Path, N.S., writes: "I am writing you a few lines to tell you what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. Last winter my face was covered with pimples. I tried different kinds of medicine, and all seemed to fail. I was one day to a friend's house, and there they advised me to use B.B.B., so I purchased two bottles, and before I had them taken I found I was getting better. I got two more, and when they were finished I was completely cured. I find it is a great blood purifier, and I recommend it to all."

B.B.B. is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Unsuccessful Alumnus

The dinner was a long one. There were songs between the courses and the courses were many. The banquet hall was gay with light and color.
The class of 1898 was proud of its college spirit and class loyalty. This was 1908, but there were few empty chairs at the long table. The toasts were beginning at last. The master of the ceremonies rose, bland and smiling, to present the first speaker.
Arthur Hammond sat gazing at his program without seeing it. He had not attended a class dinner in years. Always he had been abroad or had had other engagements. He knew that his name was there at the bottom of the page, the last on the list, and opposite his name was the subject of his toast. The subject seemed burned into his brain, seemed to dance before his eyes in a variety of fantastic shapes. It oppressed and tortured him.

"The Unsuccessful Alumnus!" He
muttered the words under his breath.
He did not hear the voice of the toast-master and realized in only a vague way that the man had begun speaking. Hammond was trying to recall the theme that he had worked out before he came to the banquet hall. There had been a few finely-wrought sentences, a general outline in his mind, the whole ready to be thrown off with the careless grace and impromptu wit that had made Hammond popular as an after-dinner speaker. The thing had seemed rather better than the average when he went over it before leaving his hotel. He had congratulated himself upon handling a somewhat dull and difficult subject with a novelty and dash that would pass it off cleverly.

As he sat there with the lights flaming over the faces of his friends the whole treatment seemed trite and frivolous and unworthy of the time and place. He saw the class banner the colors draped along the wall and about the pillars. The old songs were ringing in his ears.
said again, trying to arouse his brain to new action. It was as if he had overdrunk or the wines had been drugged.

He had chosen to regard the subject lightly, humorously, to show the easy, tranquil attitude of the unsuccessful alumnus. There were no overpowering responsibilities, no insomnia, no nerve strain, for the man who was a comfortable and respectable failure.

"Yes," he thought grimly, "I'm that sort. I ought to know the advantages."
He was not generally regarded as a failure. No one knew that better than he. The charming nonchalance of his manner, the brilliant social power of the man, the inborn grace and culture, the wealth at his command—all these had been the envy and admiration of his less fortunate associates. But Hammond was regarding these attributes in a new light this evening, and the harsh revealing power of the view stunned him. The mood came suddenly and held him with merciless insistence as he sat there in the guest-filled hall.

He studied the faces of his classmates. What a noble company. He ad forgotten how tremendously in earnest these fellows were. He looked down the long line on either side of the table. Some heads were already touched with gray. There was a gravity in the midst of their gaiety, a subdued dignity in their heartiest laughter. When they sang the old songs in an exuberant chorus, a sweet, new power seemed to tremble in their deep voices. These men had found the thick of the world's struggle, and they had stayed in to the finish. He was the failure, the unsuccessful alumnus. What business had he with an honored place among them?

At his right hand sat Tim Murphy the Irish wit of class-room days red-headed Murphy, who came into college as penniless, as dauntless and as full of jokes as he went out.
It would be worth while to have wealth and honor and preferment if they came, the result of individual effort, as they had come to Murphy.
At his left was Ginter, a round-shouldered "dig" with a crippled foot. Hammond sighed as he studied the clean-cut profile and remembered that this man had stirred the world to admiration by his engineering feats. He had passed in the tets that try brain and muscle and physical endurance. His work would stand in the material and industrial progress of all time. No matter what others might accomplish, his record could not be discounted.

He saw Bobby Mathews at the foot of the table, a man with money and leisure, but no indolent weakness. His scientific writings were regarded as authority by the best men in his profession. There was B. C. Kern, fat, blonde and dimpled —about the same old pipkin, no doubt. It was not consoling to find himself in the company of this wheezy, red-faced laggard. Brown was a preacher, Beauchamp an artist and Carter a newspaper man. Hammond did not know the careers of all of them, but the men he knew best, those who were his closest friends in the old days, seemed to have ex-stripped him to a man.

With Awning Stripes

Cushions for the porch and lawn are covered with awning stripes.
There are some interesting new square cushions—circular, about eight or ten inches high. These are quite hard and firm and are good to sit in on lawn or porch.

For the girl who wears a skirt or acket of awning stripes for tennis here are racket holders of the same material that make the sport suitable and effective.

Parasols, too, for beach use, and country use generally, are made of awning stripes, which come in silk as well as in linen. They are especially pretty in the new shades in pongee, used in combination with the lain silk.

The stripes, too, come in some of the fabrics for summer window curtains and are quite as good as awning stripes in other fabrics for other uses.

Even when a leap year girl gets turned down she can't help but be a more the young man's judgment.

A SMART COLLAR

The neck line is like the waistline, no longer a stationary thing.
From Paris comes a high collar of black taffeta tied in the back with a flaring bow and falling over it a circular collar of white organdie—the whole a smart little conceit which is especially becoming to the tall, slender woman. High collars are not easy to wear, but they are smart.

WORTH KNOWING.

Coffee stains can be removed from table linen and from the most delicate silks by brushing the spots with glycerine. Rinse with lukewarm water and press on wrong side. If the material is very delicate, care should be taken not to wet more than is possible and to have the iron very cool. Peach stains can be removed from wash materials by moistening the spot with glycerine. Let it stand for a while and then wash.

To save window cleaning, use a dry cloth on windows once a week and rub them hard. It will keep them just as clean as a lot of times as when soap and water are used.

Lemons may be purchased when cheap and kept for months. Put a layer of fine, dry sand about an inch deep in an earthenware vessel.
Place a row of lemons on this, with the stalk ends downward, and be very careful that the lemons do not touch. Cover them with another layer of sand about three inches deep, and on this layer put another lot of lemons, and so on until the jar is full. Store in a cool place.

HELP FOR MRS. NEWLYWED.

"I am trying again to wash my chamois gloves, but they are so hard and stiff when dry I dread to cleanse them," complained Mrs.

Newlywed.

"Kid or doe skin gloves should be well washed, as usual, in soap and warm water, but instead of rinsing in clear water, a basin of thick suds should be made and the gloves saturated in these suds, and then wrung out without putting in clear water and hung up to dry.
The suds have a softening effect on the skin of the gloves, when dry it will be found that the gloves are quite soft. The cotton gloves are, of course, to be washed like any other cotton article, in hot water and soap, and then well rinsed in clear water," advised Mrs. Neighbor.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

Clean the gas burners on a gas stove by boiling in water and potash for an hour; keep the burners covered with the water.

Run an elastic through the band of the little girls bloomers; much nicer than the usual buttonholes.

Try cleaning gilt frames with cold water and kerosene oil; great for removing fly specks.

Paper bags which accumulate from the grocery store are very useful to slip over jars and various other articles to protect them from dust and flies.

A piece of card board slipped over the nails and hooks in your kitchen sink door will protect it from soil and mold from damp cloths and may be replaced frequently.
