Suffered From Nerves. Could Not Sleep.

To the thousands of people who are tossing on sleepless beds night after night, or who pace the floor with nerves unhinged, and to whose eyes sleep will not come, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills offer the blessing of sound, refreshing slumber.

They restore the equilibrium of the deranged nerve centres, thereby producing peaceful, undisturbed, refreshing sleep, and will cause you get up in the morning feeling that you have the strength and vitality to go through your day's work.

Mrs. Hollas Knox, St. John, N.B., writes: "I suffered greatly with my nerves, I could not sleep at night, nor work, and the least little thing worked on my mind and bothered me. Last winter I thought I would go out of my mind, I would scream out, and my mother really thought I was going crazy with my nerves. It was so terrible I would hold my head and cry. I tried two doctors, but they did not do me any good. I thought I would tell you that to-day I am perfectly cured by using three boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I can recommend them to all sufferers from nervous troubles. You can tell everyone that they are the only thing that did me any good."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have been on the market for nearly a quarter of a century, and are universally known as the best remedy for all heart and nerve troubles.
Price 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Molly Beamish

"Pon my soul!" cried Mr. Smith.
"You overwhelm me. 'Tis good to meet a friend like you. Till my dying day I will feel the warmth of your hand. But, my dear Sir Patrick, the coal hole or the dust bin, anywhere dark and secret, would be a more convenient shelter than a gentleman's drawing room for a fool who has acted as I have done."

He told his escapade of the night before.

"Did they see your face?" asked the other. "Don't tell me you let them see your face!"

"I faith, no! I went about the business in a domino I had worn at a masked ball the night before. It was the domino that gave me the idea, but they saw my height and build, for I dismounted to milk the coach."

"And the horse you left tethered—is there anything on it to betray you?"

"No, for it was a horse I borrowed without asking the loan."

"Dammie!" said Sir Patrick, "if they were to catch you, the purse is nothing, for you flung it back and you could put it down to a freak. But the horse—"

"Means hanging."

"Pish!" replied Sir Patrick.
"They'd never hang you, but the affair would no doubt occasion a good deal of unpleasant commotion in polite circles. Why, my dear Mr.
—I beg your pardon, I was on the point of remembering your name—what I meant to say, my dear Mr.
Smith, was, your uncle would have only to crook his finger to make all these scamps who are against you go on their knees. Well, well, let's forget about it all. Come on, my daughter Molly has gone to see about some refreshment for you after your journey. Come on—gather the coal hole! Your place is in my drawing room and let any man lay a finger on you in my house, b' gad, I'll scarf him!"

Sir Patrick, with a courtly gesture, led the way to the blue drawing room, where Molly, in the absence of Rose Cowslip, had laid out on a table a decanter of port, another of Madeira and a cake in a silver las-ket. Whatever the state of their finances might be, there was always, somehow, cake and wine in the Beamish household and before many minutes were over so intimate were they that Sir Patrick was sketching his affairs, his immediate necessities and a plan which he had been carrying to unfold to his daughter when he entered the kitchen with the guinea.

"I may tell you at once," said Sir Patrick, "that I've lost so heavy at cards since I've been at the Wells, I am in a moment of temporary disability. 'Fore gad, I believe I'm at my last guinea—for the moment—and—Molly dear, I was coming to tell you of my idea when Mr.—I beg your pardon—Mr. Jones—"

"Smith," put in the stranger.

"Mr. Smith's business took my mind away. See here: the London coach passes up the road in half an hour. I'd better take it, get our rooms ready and see Tommorden, or some one with a view to a loan. I can be back by the morning coach, for, if we stay here till the guinea is gone, and no credit, and a lot of old cats twindling us at cards and taking our characters away, 'tis starved we'll be—you'll excuse me, Mr.
Smith, mentioning my private affairs Sure, Molly, you needn't be making faces at me. Aren't we all in the same bother, and like one family in affliction?—If Mr.—Mr. Smith will excuse the presumption of the remark."

"By gad," said Mr. Smith, smacking his knee at the new idea that had struck him, "I never thought of that before! If I hadn't been in trouble I should never have known what good folk there were in the world and if you hadn't been in worry about money, you wouldn't have told me your private affairs, and we should not have known one another so well.
There's some use in trouble, e'cod, and I never thought of that before."

"Now, my dear Sir Patrick, I have no purse, or the half of it would be yours. I have no possession in the world for the moment but a rich uncle, whom I have offended. I can make only one return for your hospitality and goodness: I can say to you, if my presence here during your absence seems inconvenient, say so to me, and I go. I will fight my way back to London, somehow, and to friends who will help me, and I will not take it amiss, sir, that you give me my conge. Nay, for what you have done I am your friend now and always."

"Well, God help me, sir," cried Sir Patrick, "I should account myself forever dishonored if I felt that in any word of mine I suggested such a course! You will not, sir, leave this house till I can provide a safe means of conduct for you. Tomorrow I will be back by noon, with, I hope, a coach for our journey to town from this accursed place, where there is no honor even amongst the thieves and no sense of gentility. And now, sir, your hand!"

He held out his hand and as the other grasped it Molly, who had been listening with admiration to the sentiments just expressed, sprang to the window.

Far away and faint from the direction of the Wells came the cheerful notes of a coach horn.

"The coach!" cried Molly. "It has left the Wells, 't will be past in a minute. Run, Father! The back way is quickest—take the path through the woods. Your hat? Why 't is in the hall. Nay, I have forgot You are in your old coat and things —you cannot face the town like that."

All of which, cometic and dying away, Mr. Smith heard, as the distracted Sir Patrick, still in negligee, still in the old plum colored coat wanting several buttons and with his left stocking slipping from his leg, made through the hall, the kitchen passage and the kitchen.

In a minute the girl returned, flushed, half laughing, half crying and beautiful.

(To Be Continued.)

A woman's idea of a hideous gown is one that isn't in style.

HOUSEKEEPERS' HINTS.

If you will place lemons in the oven before using them, heat thoroughly and roll with the hand until they are soft, you will not only get twice as much juice as when they are cold, but there is a flavor which a cold lemon never possesses.

When the mayonnaise separates, becomes clotted and seemingly hopeless, add the white of an egg, putting in slowly half a teaspoonful at a time, until the mixture is smooth again. In almost every instance the separation will be overcome.

When using paraffine wax, melt in an old tea or coffee pot, and you will be interested to see how easy it is to pour the contents of the pot into jelly glasses or other receptacles after they have been filled and need to be sealed.
No scattering drops will sprinkle the floor and your apron.

When children and mahogany furniture dwell together under the same roof, the former are liable to make "impressions" on the latter. When Tommy comes with the sad apology, "My engine ran right into the table leg," or Betty tells how her doll carriage "just went against the corner of the desk itself," do not be downcast. A piece of wet blotting paper placed over the dent and held there by the pressure of a warm (not hot) iron will draw the dented tissues of the wood up into place provided the scar is not too deep. Of course the polish will be dulled if the finish is high, but that may be remedied by a little furniture polish.

When the curtain rings and pole ends grow discolored and black they quickly brighten up and show most of their original lustre if they are boiled in vinegar for a short time.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

When mending a sweater or other knit article that has a rib, do not darn in the usual way. Instead, take yarn and run stitches across the rent. Then begin at the top left-hand side and chain stitch down the row of cross threads, taking in a thread at every stitch. These chain stitches have the same effect as the knitted rib, and if the yarn matches the darn will not be noticed.

Sofa pillows were never more charming. Where is the woman who can resist the appeal of the newest rose petal one? It is shaped exactly like a rose, with the petals nearest the heart of the deepest shade. Each petal is cut separately, gathered where it is attached and by this means is simulated petal by petal. Among these satiny petals the head sinks to rest in downy ease.

MEN, LEARN EDICT ON DRESS.

St. Louis, Feb. 8.—Single breasted two-button sack coats, with drapery over the hips, is the proper style for men this spring, according to designs exhibited at the convention of the National Association of Merchant Tailors which opened here today.

The ballroom of the hotel, at which the convention is being held, was filled with models of spring styles and many striking designs were shown.

Double-breasted coats are to have peak lapels and both single and double breasted will follow natural lines. Extensive padding will be avoided.
Scotch plaid is to be a popular pattern, judging from the designs.

An extreme model in evening dress was exhibited by one designer, who showed a wine-colored coat. With the coat goes a lavender vest.

Outing coats are to have two pleats in the back, running over the shoulder.
In summer clothing, designs of seer-sucker coats weighing eight ounces, were shown and also a fawn-colored coat with white buttons.

Sleeves this spring and summer are to be small, with a button at the cuff.
Trousers will follow the conformation of the leg, but will not be tight.

MIZZI LOST HER BET.

(Boston Record.)

Mizzi Hajos, the star of "Pom-Pom" at the Colonial Theatre, lost a bet of $5 to John Rogers (not his real name) a Harvard student. After the first act of "Pom-Pom," a note was sent back stage addressed to Mizzi Hajos, and marked "Important."

In the envelope was a $5 bill and this message signed John Rogers:

"I'll bet you $5 you won't take supper with our party after the performance tonight."

In a few minutes an usher sought out Mr. Rogers in his seat on the aisle.
He carried the same envelope re-addressed to Mr. "Sure-thing" Rogers.
It now contained two $5 bills, and this laconic reply:

"You win"—Mizzi.

But Mizzi is not taking on any more bets.

FEMALE LAWYERS ARE NOT WANTED IN QUEBEC

Quebec, Feb. 29.—Seven lawyers in their capacity of members of the legislation committee of the Legislative Assembly, today outvoted two confreres and refused to admit women to the bar of the Province of Quebec.

SUFFICIENT.

"Bobby," inquired the mother, "did you wash your face before the music teacher came?"

"Yes'm."

"And your hands?"

"And your ears?"

"Well, ma," said Bobby, judicially
"I washed the one that would be next to her."

Be satisfied with the best you can get.

fast friends.
