FORMER CABINET MINISTERS RELEASED

FORMER CABINET MINISTERS RELEACED FROM THE FORTRESS OF ST. PETER AND ST. PAUL Most of the ministers of the Kerensky cabinet who were captured after the eight-hour battle at the Winter Palace last Wednesday night have been released from the fortress af St. Pete rand St. Paul. M. Terestchenko and M. Konevaloff are still behind the prison walls, as are the military cadets captured in the battle at the telephone exchange on Sunday. In the telephone exchange

Agents of the committee of public safety have gone to Gatchina in an effort to effect a compromise with Premier Kerensky on an all-socialist government.

The Bolsheviki report officially that Moscow is still in their hands, although telegrams to the committee of public safety on Sunday said that the Kerensky adherents there had driven the Bolsheviki into the Kremlin, where they were besieged.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 13 .- The Bolsheviki short day of triumph in Russia is rapidly nearing its close, in the opinion of M. Goulkevitch, the Russian minister to Sweden, who bases his belief on information received from various sources during the Goulkevitch, who was greatly depressed when the Associated Press correspondent saw him immediately after Nikolai Lenine's coup, was beaming with optimism today. "Everything is coming out all right," he said. "There no longer is any reason to worry over the situation. All the information that has reached me since Saturday shows that the crisis has virtually passed and that it will be only a short time until the Bolsheviki will have played out their brief rule.

'This thing had to come some time, and I believe it is well t came when it did. It was a state of sickness which could not be avoided, and convalescence will be rapid.'

RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR TO THE U.S. REFUSES TO RECOGNIZE THE LENINE GOVERNMENT

The correspondent referred to the fact that the Russian ambassador to the United States had given formal notice of his refusal to recognize the Lenine government, and asked Goulkevitch whether he had done the same.

I made it quite clear from the first day," the minister replied, "that there could be no question of recognizing the Leninites, but I gave no formal notice to that effect. The whole thing is so absurd and even laughable that I considered it unnecessary to formally give notice of anything so obvious as my refusal to recognize the Bolsheviki.'

KORNILOFF HAS ENTERED PETROGRAD.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 13 .- General Korniloff has entered Petrograd, where the entire garrison except the sailors went over to his side, according to a Petrograd despatch to the Social Demokraten under Monday's date. There was sanguinary fighting on the Nevsky Prospect, says the despatch, and the Bolsheviki failed to hold even the workingmen's quarter of the city. The foreign ambassadors, the message reports, are now in communication with General Korniloff.
