

RECORD WRITER TELLS HOW PARIS NOW ECONOMIZES

Many Luxuries Are Cut Out and Only the Richest Can Afford to Run Autos--- Even the Lights Cut Out---Sale of Firearms Prohibited.

(Boston Record.)
Paris, Nov. 2. — Said an army officer just arrived in France from America:

"It seems almost impossible to arouse our people to a realization that they are in a great war. We'll have to have casualty lists first."

The French people don't need casualty lists to remind them. Every hour of the day war is impressed on them—whenver they eat, sleep, talk, travel or seek amusement.

And what goes for the French also goes for the thousands of Americans now in France.

You arrive at a hotel and, naturally, the clerk tries to induce you to take a room with a bath, if he has any such luxury to offer.

Pretty soon you come down to the office, storming.

Get no Hot Water.

"There's no hot water in that bath," you complain.

He shrugs his shoulders and smiles. You want to choke him.

"C'est la guerre"—"It is the war"—he says. "We are permitted to have hot water only on Saturdays and Sundays. We must be economical with our coal, you know."

"C'est la guerre"—"It is the war"—is almost a national motto over here. No matter what the trouble is, blame it on the war.

You go into the dining room with a ravenous appetite, figuring on a nice juicy steak with French fried potatoes, etc. (You know the kind war correspondents eat who have liberal expense accounts.)

But there is no meat. The waiter is grieved because you've forgotten it is Monday.

"It is prohibited to eat meat on Mondays and Tuesdays, monsieur," he says.

You soon find that Tuesday is the black day for eating.

On Tuesdays you can eat neither meat nor pastry. Pastry also is forbidden on Wednesdays.

About 40 per cent. of the people in Paris eat their meals in restaurants, and these restrictions on meats and pastries have resulted in enormous savings of food supplies.

Even Lights Cut Off.

If your room at the hotel is dark, you try to turn on the electric lights soon after supper. But there's no light.

The very minute each evening when "the lights come on" is fixed by law. Conservation of coal again.

If you burn kerosene in lamps or gas in your cook stove your consumption is limited to 65 per cent. of what it was before the war.

Only the rich can afford to run autos any more, because gasoline in France now retails at $1.25 a gallon. It makes one smile to recall the storms of protest in America about a year ago when the price of the juice got up to about 25 cents a gallon.

You go to the theatre, and after the performance you wonder why everybody rushes away pell-mell for the subway entrances.

You walk leisurely, only to discover when you arrive at the subway, that "the last car is gone." And there are no "owl" cars for late stayers.

"On account of the war, service is prohibited after 11 o'clock," says the signs.

If you've missed the last car, the chances are you'll either walk home or stay in a downtown hotel, for taxis in Paris after 10 o'clock are few and far between.

The government allows a taxi driver only so much gasoline every day, so he can run his car only so far, and he's usually run down by dinner time in the evening.

You decide to call a friend over the long distance in another city.

Troubled for Years With BRONCHITIS

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup Gave Instant Relief.

Bronchitis is a disease which is very prevalent during the late winter and early spring, when there are sudden atmospheric changes. It is a condition of inflammation of the bronchial tubes which produces mucous or phlegm. This irritates the throat and causes you to cough in order to get rid of it. The cough may be tight or loose, according as to whether this mucous is sticky and hard to remove, or soft and easily expelled.

Bronchitis is not really dangerous, but the complications which are liable to follow makes it necessary to get rid of it on the first sign. This you can do by using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A remedy that has been on the market for over 25 years.

John D. McFarlane, Jr., S. W. Margaree, N. S., writes: "I was troubled for years with bronchitis, and could not find any relief. I was especially bad on a damp day. I went to a druggist, and asked him for something to stop the constant tickling in my throat. He gave me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I found gave me instant relief. It is the best remedy for bronchitis I know of, and I now take care that I always have a bottle of it on hand."

See that you get "Dr. Wood's." Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c.; manufactured by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"Come to the office and identify yourself," you are told by the operator, and you have to go many blocks to a telephone sub-station, and then you are told you cannot talk if your party lives more than 65 miles away. Restrictions also govern the sending of telegrams. Always your identification papers must be produced and then dispatches can only be sent in French for France, in Italian for Italy, in English for England and the United States. For all neutral countries, French only.

All shops must be closed at 6.30 in the evening, the idea being to economize light.

You can't buy a gun or pistol under any circumstances during the period of the war.

Every line in every newspaper has been censored by the government before publication, and the big blank spaces that so often appear are sure signs that something was cut out that might have given "information or comfort" to the enemy.

And as to photography—you almost take your life in your hands to appear in public with a camera.

"C'est la guerre"—"It is the war"—the policeman apologizes who nabs you and tells you to get rid of your picture taker.

Otherwise, France is a very free country.
