SIR GEORGE E. FOSTER LIKELY TO COME TO THIS PROVINCE

New Brunswick Will Have Two Representatives in the Union Cabinet—Premier Murray Returns to Nova Scotia to Consult His Friends Before Accepting a Portfolio—Sir Wilfrid to Call a Conference of His Ontario Supporters.

Ottawa, Oct. 14. — The union government will be completed this week with the conclusion of Nova Scotia's Liberal representative who will, according to expectation here, be Premier Murray, and it is hoped also by the inclusion of a representative of labor. The swearing in of F. B. Carvell as minister of public works Saturday noon removed all doubt as to the fact that Liberalism in the east as well as in the west was to be represented in the new administration. Mr. Carvell entered the ministry on the understanding with Premier Murray that he, too, would come in, although the latter's consent was contingent upon reaching a satisfactory agreement with his Nova Scotia supporters. Premier Murray, with A. K. MacLean, left yesterday afternoon for Halifax after a brief interview with Sir Robert Borden.

It is considered here that the inveterate bitterness of political strife among the Maritime Province people makes the acceptance of a union of Grit and Tory more difficult down by the sea than among the unorthodox political free-thinkers of the prairie provinces. This is one of Premier Murray's difficulties as well as the problem of the provincial leadership which he has so ably and so long filled. Hon. Mr. Murray reels the call of duty to the federal arena in the present crisis of national peril. It is recognized that he would bring exceptional influence, experience and judgment to the union administration. Sir Robert Borden wants him badly, both for the effect it would have in smoothing the path for union, especially in the east, and for the war service he could render at the federal capital. Premier Murray will confer with his Liberal lieutenants in Halifax tomorrow and explain the situation to them. He will then give his final decision to Sir Robert Borden. Should Premier Murray find that he can still serve best by remaining at the helm in Nova Scotia, arrangements will be made for bringing in another Liberal representative from that province. It might be Hon. W. S. Fielding, or it might be A. K. MacLean, both of whom were parties to the conferences of the Maritime Province men with the prime minister.

Foster Coming Here.

The New Brunswick situation with regard to smoothing out the old political prejudices of Tory against Grit is somewhat similar to the Nova Scotia situation. Mr. Carvell has naturally the confidence and respect of all Liberals, but "Fighting Frank" has also naturally incurred the enmity of his political opponents. They haven't realized yet that Mr. Carvell has joined forces with Sir Robert Borden in a sincere attempt at "union" government. It is understood that, with a view to meeting the situation in New Brunswick, Sir George Foster will return to his native province and run in one of the constituencies there.

Thus with Sir Robert Borden and Premier Murray as representatives from Nova Scotia and Sir George Foster and F. B. Carvell as representatives from New Brunswick there could be no cavil from either side of politics about their own particular cabinet representation.

Mr. Carvell, in accepting the public works portfolio, takes the job where in the past scandals have usually developed. There will be none now. By the irony of fate Mr. Carvell has been appointed by Sir Robert Borden to the department presided over so long by Hon. Robert Rogers. The clashes between Mr. Rogers and Mr. Carvell last session and the occasions therefore now point another moral of union government.

Hon. C. C. Ballentyne has been transferred to the marine, fisheries and naval affairs portfolio. His experience as a member of the Montreal harbor board, his organizing ability and his constructive business peculiarly fit him for one of the most important departments of the government.

The new ministers are now getting acquainted with their departments and large plans for radical reorganization of Canada's war efforts are being formulated. This week will see a getting down to business with a new energy, a new determination and a new spirit. Patronage worries are cut out, and the ministers are free to tackle their respective problems purely from the standpoint of efficiency and economy. One and all agree that the relief from the worry of politics and patronage is incalculable.

Patronage No Longer Rules.

There is a grim humor in the turning down now of the suddenly renewed flood of requests for partisan appointments and contracts before the new administration got fully into the harness. The only appointments that will be made and those which had already been agreed upon before union was consummated. These will include most of the senatorships pledged by the old government, as already forecasted. The old government naturally wanted to keep faith with the men to whom definite promises had been made and so long as these promises did not seriously conflict with public interest no strong opposition was raised by the Liberals during the union negotiations.

An Election Soon.

The date of the elections will be fixed some time this week. Preparations are being rushed as rapidly as possible. While the question has been only tentatively discussed by the new cabinet so far, it is understood that the agreement is to have the election over, if at all possible, by two weeks before Christmas. The likeliest dates now are the first or second Monday in December.

Sir Wilfrid's Position

Sir Wilfrid Laurier will wait until the final completion of the new government before making his promised public statement as to his position under the new conditions. Sir Wilfrid has received a flood of letters and telegrams during the last few days from his friends and supporters in every part of the dominion. He remains as calm and as philosophically cheerful as ever during all this radical new orientation in Canada's political affairs. To your correspondent yesterday he said this much for publication:

"Just tell the people that my attitude is the same as that of the British soldiers at Mons. Their cheery cry was this: 'Are we downhearted? No.'"

THE VALUE OF ADVERTISING in all cases must be based on the return for the outlay. No better opportunity in this respect can be found in this locality than

THE DAILY MAIL

This paper has a special value to the local advertiser, as the majority of its readers are in this city and the immediate surrounding country.

Our Advertising Rates will be found decidedly reasonable in view of the results.

PEOPLE READ

ADVERTISEMENTS

They are trying to buy as wisely as they can. It is necessary they should.

They are eager to know what the local merchants have to offer, and good live advertising is interesting reading to them.

Most of our enterprising business men have already realized this fact and their advertising appears regularly in the Mail.

THE AD. AND THE MAN.

By James J. Montague.

He saw the ad from day to day And muttered: "I just it; The stuff may be just what they say."

But I'm not going to buy it. As time wore on he made remarks

It would not do to mention. For he was mad because that ad Was forced on his attention.

But in a week, or two, or three, He said: "There's no denying, The way that ad gets hold of me, The stuff may be worth trying." For just about a fortnight more He dared more words to win him.

And then the ad completely had Aroused the spender in him.

Next day he drifted in a store And quietly expended A few big iron dollars for The stuff the ad commended. He found it filled a long-felt need Its excellence surprised him, And now he's glad because the ad So deftly hypnotized him.

If you are not a regular advertiser in the DAILY or SEMI-WEEKLY MAIL, you are overlooking an opportunity that no business man in this locality ought to be too busy to appreciate.
