VICTORIA PAPER'S TRIBUTE TO LATE MR. C. H. LUGRIN

A Former Fredericton Man Who Made Good on the Pacific Coast—Filled the Editorial Chair of the Colonist With a Marked Ability—A Man of Many and Varied Accomplishments—His Early Journalistic Work in This Province

(Victoria Colonist.)

Mr Charles Henry Lugin, for many years editor of The Colonist, passed away yesterday afternoon, at about 4 o'clock at his home, Esquimalt Road. He had been ill for some time, and his death was not unexpected, although just recently it was expected he might have plied through and occupied his old position which he so ably filled.

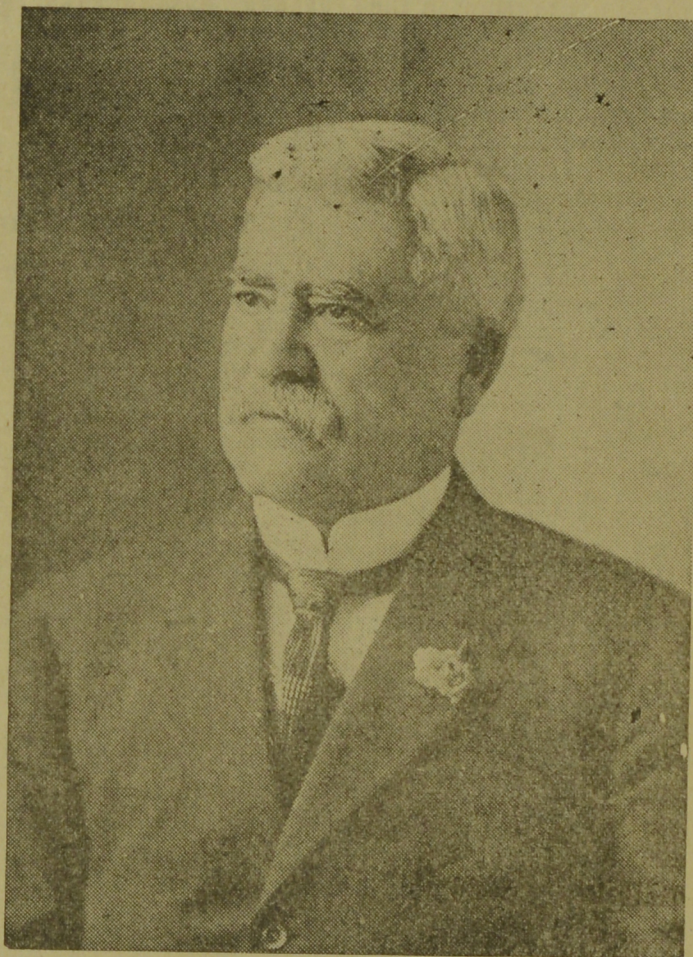

Mr. Lugin came to Victoria in 1897, when the British Pacific was a live issue, and owing to his knowledge of transportation matters, his services were greatly valued. Shortly afterwards he became editor of The Colonist, a position which he occupied until 1902, then he retired to engage in the profession of law, for which he had been trained in New Brunswick. Before coming to Victoria he had been engaged in journalism as editor of the Seattle Telegraph. At that time, business all along the coast was very bad, and the Telegraph, along with many other businesses went to the wall.

The deceased was the son of a well-known publisher and journalist, Chas. L. Lugin, and was born in Fredericton, N. B., in 1846. On one side he was of Huguenot extraction, and came of United Loyalist stock, a fact of which he was justly proud. His grandfather was King's Printer in New Brunswick. He married Maria, daughter of Mr. G. L. Raymond, of U. E. L. descent, who survives him. It is not necessary to refer to his scholastic accomplishments. Those were apparent during the years he presided in the editorial chair of The Colonist. He was graduated from the New Brunswick University at the age of 18, and received his M. A. degree in Retreats Among the Mountains of Northern Maine and New Brunswick, a descriptive handbook for sportsmen (1881); "Facts Concerning the Fertile Belt of the N. B. Land & Lumber Company" (1884), and "New Brunswick: Resources, Progress and Advantages" (1884). During the controversy over the Venezuelan boundary, he published an article in the New York Herald which attracted widespread attention, and for which he received the thanks of the late Lord Salisbury. Mr. Lugin was for some years secretary of the Board of Agriculture of New Brunswick, and his interest in agriculture was always manifest in the columns of The Colonist. Following the trend of many easterners, he went to Seattle in 1892, where he admitted to the bar, and where he subsequently engaged in journalism.

When Mr. Lugin came to Victoria in 1897 things locally were in a condition of flux. The Island of Vancouver and particularly the City of Victoria, was interested in getting connections with the mainland by direct rail communication. This was a cause in which he entered heart and soul and, in and out of season ever since, he advocated it with all his ability. He was perhaps ahead of his time, but some day his dream may be realized. In this connection, since the war broke out, he pressed his ideas very strongly upon the Dominion and Imperial authorities as a question of defense, and in his idea the Island of Vancouver was the keystone of Pacific strategy.

In 1902 Mr. Lugin retired from The Colonist to take up the practice of law, but in the fall of 1906 resumed

MR. C. H. LUGRIN

1866. He taught in the High School at the age of 19, and later studied law, qualifying as a barrister in 1870. Mr. Lugin had many and varied accomplishments, and like a good many others whose tastes were in the direction of literature, took to journalism, in spite of the fact that few men in this province or in his native province had a better grounding in the knowledge of the law, or could present a case better, but his inclinations were in the direction of writing, and "cacoethes scribendi" determined his career. All regular readers of The Colonist will remember the many articles he wrote in respect of constitutional matters, and that his views were invariably sound from a legal point of view.

Practiced Law.

For some years Mr. Lugin was clerk of the peace for the County of Victoria, New Brunswick, and ran for the Legislature in 1870. Afterwards, he practiced law in Fredericton, and was counsel for the temperance party in the cases involving the constitutionality of the Scott Act. Those familiar with the law in the premises will remember that it was a cause celebre, the final decision in which settled the respective jurisdiction of the provinces and the Dominion. Quoting from "Canadian Men and Women of the Time," 1912, he also distinguished himself as a writer for the press. He was editor of the St. John Telegraph, and of the Express and the Herald. He wrote articles on economic questions, to which he paid special attention, and stories of adventure for many British, Canadian and United States periodicals. He was author, among other things, of "Open Season and Resting

Faith in Island's Future.

Optimism was the keynote of Mr. Lugin's editorial policy. He believed in the future of Vancouver Island and of British Columbia as few men did.

"Fruit-a-tives" Builds Up The Whole System

Those who take "Fruit-a-tives" for the first time, are often astonished at the way it builds them up and makes them feel better all over. They may be taking "Fruit-a-tives" for some specific disease, as Constipation, Indigestion, Chronic Headaches or Neuralgia, Kidney or Bladder Trouble, Rheumatism or Pain in the Back. And they find when "Fruit-a-tives" has cured the disease, that they feel better and stronger in every way. The Cameronian was originally the Kamerun, a Hamburg-American liner, and was one of the interned German steamers taken over by the British and re-named.

Henderson, N. C., has a woman as a member of the Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors.

Eleven women are now working in the Erie Railroad shops at Cleveland.

He was in addition a man of varied knowledge and a resourceful writer. Readers will remember that in more prosperous times The Colonist ran a weekly supplement, a feature of which was "Fruit-a-tives" with the Editor, which attracted widespread attention. Many of these articles might have emanated from the pen of celebrated specialists, a fact which shows how closely the editor kept in touch with all questions of public interest.

The deceased leaves a widow and six daughters: Mrs. N. P. Shaw, Mrs. E. B. Shaw, Mrs. Capt. W. B. Shaw, Mrs. J. Macdonald Fahey, Misses Nellie and Louise Lugin, all residents of this city; also six grandchildren. One brother and four sisters survive: Mr. George Lugin, of Brooklyn, New York; Mrs. W. P. Flewelling of St. John, N. B.; and three unmarried sisters, all resident in St. John. Mr. Lugin was a member of the Church of England and the funeral will take place from St. Paul's church, Esquimalt, at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon.

The Last Tribute.

Victoria yesterday buried Mr. Chas. H. Lugin, editor-in-chief of The Colonist since 1906. The funeral, which was quiet, took place at 3 o'clock from the family home, "Romainmottier," Esquimalt Road, and a few minutes later from the little St. Paul's Military and Naval church at Esquimalt. It was attended, amongst others, by Lieut.-Governor Barnard, accompanied by his secretary, Mr. H. J. S. Muskett, Premier Brewster, Chief Justice Macdonald and Mr. Justice Martin of the Court of Appeals, Mr. Justice Gregory of the Supreme Court, the Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance, local members of the Legislature and representatives of local patriotic and public organizations.

The Church of England burial service was sung under the rector, the Rev. W. G. Baugh-Allen, with the full choir occupied several minutes. The motor cortege then formed and wended its way to Ross Bay cemetery where interment was made.

The honorary pallbearers were: The Hon. James Dunsuir, former Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia; Mr. Justice Martin, Premier Brewster, Col. the Hon. E. G. Prior, Mr. W. J. Bowser, Mr. J. A. Mara, Mr. P. R. Brown and Mr. W. G. Gaunce. The active pallbearers were: Messrs. T. H. Slater, James Forman, John Cochrane, Chas. Swayne, J. L. Tait, B. C. Nicholas, A. S. Barton and F. Elworthy.

Among those who attended the services at the church were: Mr. Justice Macdonald, the Hon. T. W. Paterson, former Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance, Mr. Henry Hall, M. P., Capt. Mulcahy, Mr. John Jardine, ex-M. P., Mr. Arthur Wolfenden, Mr. Richard Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Green, a delegation from the Victoria Board of Trade consisting of Messrs. J. Kingham, J. L. Beckwith, R. W. Perry, C. T. Cross and J. J. Shallcross, and members of the editorial, business, circulation and mechanical departments of The Colonist.
