CAPITALIZING ADVENTURE

Examination of the figures reveals a somewhat large commercial side of the Graf Zeppelin's voyage in the air around the world. While the amount contributed by the publishing interest chiefly sponsoring the trip has not been stated, a substantial income from other sources is apparent. On the basis of the postage rates and the numbers of letters and cards put abroad by the United States Postal Service at New York, the German revenue from this source figures to about $108,000. Of the 22 passengers 18 are said to have paid fares which for the full journey amount to $9,000 each. That would add $162,000.

The phase has more interest than importance. Capitalizing the novelty and the adventure at the outset of new transportation enterprises realises a part of the large cost and speeds the experimentation which should lead eventually to their establishment on a more serious basis.

THE GREEN GRASS

A rich man from India, visiting in England, was shown every attention that a spirit of welcome and hospitality could suggest. When he was later asked what had impressed him most he said: "The green grass."

Most of us give a great deal of our time to thinking about and bothering about diamonds—about wealth and beauty and fantastic entertainment. After all, the most beautiful things in life, the most to be appreciated over the long run, are the common-place things. Rain and sleep and shelter and sunshine and green grass are common-place—and yet they are priceless beyond the wealth of the world.

CONCERNING CAMP

This is the time of year when thousands of boys and girls from all over the land are at camp. Camps for boys and for girls are proving to be one of the finest developments of modern civilization for body-building and character-building. If you can afford even at great sacrifice to send your child to a camp for part of the summer you are likely to receive fine dividends on your sacrifices all the rest of your life. Life in the open, under sound direction and discipline, sets up the habit of clean thinking—and nothing is more important than that.

The resignation of Rev. Dr. G. C. Warren of the pastorate of the Brunswick Street Baptist Church which he has successfully filled for twelve years, will be deeply regretted. He has given up his present post to become editor of the Maritime Baptist, the official organ of the denomination. An able and earnest preacher Dr. Warren has made many friends during his stay in Fredericton and will carry with him to his new field of labor their very best wishes. None will more seriously regret Dr. Warren's departure than the members of the York Municipal Council of which he has been chaplain for a number of years.

Mr. F. W. Cowans, Chief of the Dominion Preventive Service says smugglers on the coasts of the Maritime provinces cost Canada over a million dollars yearly. Mr. Cowans is in a position to know what he is talking about. He says that nine-tenths of the smuggled goods smuggled into Nova Scotia come from St. Pierre. This is the great booze entrepot of the St. Lawrence. Conditions which now exist in Nova Scotia prevailed in New Brunswick prior to the enactment of the government control law and the formation of a provincial police force.

If we had our lives to live over again, it is probable that we would have less trouble making our mistakes.

It is to be regretted that no interviewer got to the whale in Jonah's day, to see how he felt about stow-aways.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

Finding a needle in a hay stack has nothing on finding a parking place on Queen street on Saturday night.

He may be self-made, but it isn't a good job if he boasts of it. Criticism may or may not be constructive, but faultfinding isn't.

There is the kind of girl who thinks a mental reservation is something you tell a few dear friends.

We see by the paper that both Russia and China are guilty of doing whatever it was they were not to do.

Our guess is that there is not a last season's overcoat in town that would look well over a pair of pajamas.

Sam Hill of the Cincinnati Enquirer has undertaken the difficult task of defining an ideal husband and this is as far as he got: "One who acts married even when his wife isn't along." There is some doubt whether it can be done.

LOCAL MAN DROWNED, WAS BURIED SUNDAY

and Williams, who were groping with the irons below the highway bridge, came upon the body a few feet from shore off Lemont's Wharf. A number of members of the Masonic Order, who also were engaged in the search for the missing man, also were present at the time of the discovery. The body was first seen by Mr. Williams and aided by others present, it was soon brought to shore. Dr. Charles McKay, the coroner was called immediately, and he declared that the death was due to suicidal drowning while of unsound mind. There was no inquest.

According to several local persons, the deceased was last seen alive near the Armory in a taxi. Two local young men were talking with him a short while later in Carleton street near the highway bridge, after which he was not again seen alive. When he did not turn up at his home in 447 Charlotte street next morning, inquiries were made. He failed to show up on Thursday, at which time his family and friends felt keen anxiety. Following no word of his whereabouts on Friday, the two local rivermen were engaged to grapple in the river as it was now feared that he may have come to harm in this way. Representatives of the Masonic fraternity as well as close friends of the unfortunate man were the most active in the search for him.

A War Veteran

Deceased was a veteran of the Great World War and was 33 years of age. He was the son of the late Byron Brewer, of this city. He had served overseas for a long period and was awarded the Military Medal. Commissioned in the 7th Canadian Machine Gun Battalion on his return, he held the rank of major in that unit at the time of his death. He held a position in the local Post Office as postal clerk for the past number of years.

A Large Funeral

The funeral was held yesterday afternoon from H. R. Adams Funeral Parlors in Queen street and was attended by a very large number. It was held at four o'clock and was attended by delegations from the Canadian Legion, the Masonic fraternity and the Knights of Pythias, including the postmaster Donald Cameron, and staff, who attended in a body. Deceased is survived by his wife and two young daughters, also his stepmother, a half brother and two half sisters. The pallbearers were G. Cumings, A. Anderson, F. Haviland, Thos. Chapman, A. Brewer, and H. L. Merrithew. The chief mourners were: Alex. Sinnott, John Sinnott, Jud. Brewer, Cyril Brewer, Bayard Brewer, John D. Brewer, J. Doug Brewer, Claud Brewer, Percy Sinnott, John Green, H. P. Lint, Melvin McKiel, Ivan McKiel, representatives of the Canadian Legion, postmaster and staff, representatives of Masonic Order, representatives of the Knights of Pythias.

The tragic and untimely death of the local young man has caused regret on all sides and the kindest sympathies are being extended to the family in their bereavement.

SPECIAL ATTRACTION AT GAIETY THEATRE

"Shady Lady" is the photo play at the Gaiety for Monday and Tuesday featuring Phyllis Haver. The scene is laid in Havana and has to do with the hi-jacking of guns, ammunition and machine guns for use in Central American Revolutions.

Louis Wolheim is the goat of the piece, who meets the double-cross at every crossroad. Russell Gleason as the reporter Jimmy Haley, puts the newspaper profession in a bad light; he carries a bag of hot-dogs around with him and when asked what he'll have—this is Havana, mind you—he says: "A banana!"

Lima Beane says the way to kill a personal grievance is to neglect it for forty-eight hours and it will die for starvation.
