

YOUNG WOMAN INJURED BADLY IN NASTY FALL

Miss Katherine McManus, Stenographer Fell Through Elevator Shaft—Fractured Leg In Fall.

Miss Katherine McManus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. McManus, South Devon, and employed as stenographer in a local book and stationery store, narrowly escaped death this morning when she accidentally fell down the elevator shaft on the bottom floor of the store, to the cellar below, a distance of about twelve feet. The young lady suffered a compound fracture of the right leg as well as sustaining painful cuts on her face and head. She was rushed to the Victoria Public Hospital immediately following the accident and is resting as well as can possibly be expected this afternoon.

Lost Balance.

The accident occurred at about 11.30 o'clock this morning. The victim of the accident had gone to the back of the store to procure something, not noticing the open shaft. Losing her balance, when almost upon the opening, she fell headlong into the cellar, which is covered with a concrete flooring. The other employees of the store were attracted by the cries of the young lady and came rushing to the scene of the accident. When picked up the young woman was bleeding profusely from cuts in her forehead and was suffering intense pain. An ambulance was at once called and she was taken to the Victoria Hospital where medical aid was rendered.

Fires This Morning

The fire department was called out twice this morning to answer to two slight fires. The first, a still alarm, was at the home of William Seary in George street and proved to be an overheated pipe. Later in the morning an alarm was rung in from box 27, the fire being in the cellar of Edgecombe's store. It was at first thought that quite a fire was in progress, but the firemen ascertained that the clouds of supposed smoke which issued from the cellar, was steam and resulted from a broken tube in one of the boilers. The damage was quickly remedied and no serious damage was reported to the building.

GUIDES LEAVE ON THURSDAY FOR BOSTON

Noted Hunters and Anglers Will Sing the Praises of the Province at Big Sportsmen's Show.

A party of New Brunswick guides will leave here Thursday evening for Boston to attend the Sportsman's Show. They will arrive at the Hub on Friday morning and their first job will be to lick into shape the New Brunswick booth in the Mechanics building where the show will be held.

The freshly cut evergreens and other material will help to convert the stage of Mechanics Building into a typical New Brunswick camp scene. With the logs for the cabin and the trees, which will make the wooded scenes, there were forwarded 37 cases and crates of exhibit material, including mounted specimens of game and fur-bearing animals and game fish and typical camp equipment, which will be used in filling up the log cabin as well as some novelties which have never before been shown at a sportsmen's show.

Noted Guides.

FLU MENACE HAS EASED UP DURING PAST FEW DAYS

Health Officials Satisfied With Medical Inspector's Report Of Schools — Optimistic Views Held.

The flu situation in this vicinity, which has been quite serious for the past number of weeks, and though still causing some concern to the health officials, has eased up a bit and there is no likelihood of a further serious outbreak. The impression prevailed that the city schools would be closed for a time, due to increased sickness about the city and among the pupils and teachers. However, an inspection and census of the situation by Dr. S. Loggie, medical inspector of schools, showed that as much as 84 per cent of the total enrollment of pupils was in attendance at the reopening of the schools on Monday morning, after the Christmas holidays. This was thought to be a satisfactory attendance and no action was taken.

Proved Satisfactory.

The Sub-district Board of Health officials had planned to take definite action should this census by the medical inspector warrant but the result

Rug - Sta

Makes rugs stay in place
Prevents Slipping

The universal use of rugs has created a similarly universal problem of how to keep them in place. Rugs, mats and carpets will slip on polished floors and up to the present time no means suitable for universal use to prevent this have been proposed. Various devices have been tried which are either too expensive for general use or hold the rug permanently in one place. NOW COMES RUG-STA—A protective Liquid ready to use that is simply brushed on the back of the rug, forming a colorless, invisible film that absolutely prevents slipping. RUG-STA is a Necessity in Every Home.
